11:00 a. m.—Senate takes up reciprocity bill.
11:15 a. m. to 1:25 p. m.—All pending amendments defeated on roll call.
1:36 p. m.—Bill passed, 53 to 27.
President Taft will sign bill July 25.
The President "I am gratified and delighted."
Senator Penrose "It was easy."

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The reciprocity trade agreement between the United States and Canada embodied in the reciprocity bill that passed in the Senate without amendment today by a vote of 53 to 27, is a victory for the public. It was the first time since the passage of the tariff act of 1890 that the House of Representatives has not passed a bill without amendment. The Canadian parliament has not yet acted on the agreement and with one exception the provisions of the bill as passed by Congress will not become effective until the President issues a proclamation that Canada has ratified the pact. The exception to this procedure is in the paper and pulp section of the bill, which it is anticipated will become immediately effective when the President signs the law.

The Vote on the Bill
Following was the vote on the bill: Republicans—Against the bill—Borah and Heyburn. Idaho, Bourne, Oregon, Fister and Curtis. Kansas, Burnham, New Hampshire, Clapp and Nelson, Minnesota, Clark and Warren, Wyoming, Crawford and Gamble, Wisconsin, Cummins and Kenyon, Iowa, Dixon, Montana, Gronna and McCumby, North Dakota, LaFollette, Wisconsin, Lammitt, Rhode Island, Lorimer, Illinois, Oliver, Pennsylvania, Page, Vermont, Smith, Michigan, Smoot, Utah.

Alberta Gives Exhibit
Silver Cup Worth $100

The Canadian province of Alberta is to donate a silver cup to the exposition of the International Dry Farming congress at Colorado Springs next October. The announcement came from Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture, whose department presents it. The cup is worth $100 and is to be competed for by any county or district in the world that raises forage crops and grasses. The letter of the minister to Secretary Burns of the Dry Farming congress is as follows:
"Edmonton, July 13, 1911.
"Mr. John T. Burns, Colorado Springs.
"Dear Sir,—I wish to say that the agricultural department of this province will give a $100 sterling silver cup for the best exhibit of forage crops and grasses shown by any county or district at the Sixth International Dry Farming congress exposition the competition to be open to the world.
"Yours truly,
"DUNCAN MARSHALL,
"Minister of Agriculture."

Pendant for Pretty Girls Causes Arrest of Alleged Criminal

Desire to gain a smile from a pretty face and the opportunity of a few moments conversation with the owner proved too much of a temptation for W. T. Lord about noon yesterday and he fell into a trap set by the police and Miss Longfield of West Mill street. Lord accepted a gambler's chance and called at the young woman's home and within 10 minutes after his arrival two plain clothes men from headquarters dropped in upon the pair. The man in the city jail charged with swindling a dozen or more women in this city out of $2 each and a score of his associates in Pueblo and Miss Longfield is receiving the congratulations of the police for the part she played in assisting in Lord's capture. Lord, who the police say has made a profession of being a gambler, is in Colorado Springs for several days and in Pueblo for two weeks. A recently invented fireless cooker which he offered for a $2 subscription to Everybody's magazine was the bait Lord offered his patrons. For every subscription he said Lord offered the fireless cooker as a premium. Business was good and at the rate orders were taken here and there nearly everywhere wanted a little fireless cooker in her home.

Then the police got wind of the affair and in telephone conversation with Miss Longfield yesterday morning the trap was set for Lord.

Call him back and make eyes at him till we get there were her instructions from the desk at headquarters, whatever you do don't let him get away.

Miss Longfield was on the job in a jiffy and it wasn't long before the police received a whispered summons over the wire.

He's here said the voice at the other end hurry.

Plain clothes men were at the West Mill street house in quick time and Lord was taken to jail. During the afternoon a number of his alleged victims called at the station and identified him.

Lord the thief of his orders that he has no interest in his orders. He says that he is in hard luck and intended to make good his promise as soon as he was financially able.

Arrangements for the illumination of the business district of Colorado Springs should be made at the earliest possible moment if the city is to present the proper appearance during carnival week and business men are urged to give their contracts at once, so that the electricians of the city may have time to do the work. The managers of the various electric supply companies state that while they have been assured by scores of business men and large firms that the buildings will be elaborately illuminated they have not received very many contracts, and expect the orders will be all poured in at the same time. In this event it will be impossible to have the work done in time for the carnival since the number of electricians in the district is limited. Speaking on the necessity for immediate action, J. F. Boynton said yesterday:

"There is no question that the business district of the city will be illuminated as never before but the business men are forgetting that the time is short for so much work before the carnival opens. Unless the business men begin right away and get their orders in, the electric companies of the city will be overloaded with business and it will be absolutely impossible to find enough men to do the work. This is a case of work that can not be done by any but experienced electricians and it is plain to anyone that we will be up against it unless we get early orders and get started at once. The electric companies hope that the business men will show them consideration in this matter as of course, everyone wants to see the very best decorations possible and in order to obtain this result we must get busy right away."

The Colorado Springs Light Heat and Power company will furnish the current free of charge for such decorations.

SPRECKELS PUTS BLAME ON ALLEGED TRUST

Charges Drainage of Liquid Into Sewer and Sanded Machinery to Same Source

NEW YORK, July 2.—The Associated Press reports that John Spreckels, owner of the Federal Sugar Refining company of New York, today gave the most sensational testimony that has been developed by the congressional committee investigating the sugar trust during the hearing here.

Besides giving an important side light on the conference between John Arbuckle and the late H. O. Havemeyer which is believed to have ended the great sugar war, he described under oath the vicissitudes of an independent sugar refiner. He said his plant in Philadelphia, before it was controlled by the trust, had been put out of commission several times by persons who threw sand in the machinery, beatings and otherwise injured the plant.

He swore that at the Y. M. C. A. refinery after he had turned over a first mortgage of $100,000 on the plant, he had been ordered to pay $100,000 for sugar and that the sugar was sanded. The sanded sugar had been drained off in the plant and the sugar was sanded.

NOT TO OPPOSE MADERO FOR PRESIDENCY.

Thinks More Candidates Would Only Harm Best Interests of His Country.

MEXICO CITY, July 2.—Despite the breaking of the agreement that General Herrero would be the minister of war in the cabinet of Francisco I. Madero and notwithstanding Madero's assurance that Reyes was free to enter the presidential race, the general today insisted that he would not be a candidate.

Supporters of Madero shrug their shoulders and express their disbelief in Reyes' statement. Reyes said he offered to release Madero from the promises relative to making him minister of war solely because of the growing opposition in the ranks of the Maderistas as expressed by the anti-Reyesists.

Madero was prompt in answering him. He said he would not release him. He said he would not release him. He said he would not release him.

PRESIDENT TAFT, Who is Exceedingly Gratiified Over the Passage of the Canadian Reciprocity Measure by the Senate

E. A. Palmer Charged With Raising Small Checks to Big Sums

Charged with raising two checks one for $5 and another for $4.50 each to $50,000 in the arrest yesterday of E. A. Palmer, another police says, admits that the checks were raised but that he did not do it.

Both checks are on the Exchange National bank in the city and one was cashed by a saloon man in Pueblo a few days ago. The other which Palmer offered to a clothing dealer on Huerfano street yesterday is in the hands of the police. Palmer is said to have received $100 on the check and was to call later for the balance. In the mean time the check was investigated and declared to be raised and Palmer was arrested.

The checks were "fixed" by Ed Honan, a contractor and for whom Palmer worked. The police say Palmer used and to remove the amounts written on by Honan and then raised each check to $50.

Close friends of Reyes give full credence to his statement that he will not oppose Madero. They believe a strong campaign against Madero would result in more turmoil and possible armed conflicts.

MEXICO CITY, July 2.—Three armed thieves yanked the heart of the treasurer at his gayest hour tonight, smashed a Sixth avenue jeweler's window shot his clerk dead, seized $300 worth of diamond rings and escaped in a taxicab pursued by scores of persons and who had witnessed the murder and robbery.

A woman who the police believe, was a confederate entered the store of Jacob Jacoby a few minutes prior to the shooting and asked Mr. Jacoby to test her eyes for glasses. While she engaged him the window glass was smashed and Adolph Stern, a clerk, rushed to the street. A small man with a revolver blocked him at the door. Stern tried to brush past him to get at a man who had poked his hand through the broken window and grasped a tray of diamonds rings.

The small man shot twice and Stern fell dead. Passers by saw the man at the window withdraw the tray of rings, tuck it under his coat and dart across the street. He disappeared through the open door of a red touring car and was gone with a half hundred men pursuing. Three he soon outdistanced. The man who shot Stern ran in the opposite direction unseen by anyone but Jacoby.

The murderer fired a wild shot at Jacoby, cluded him and escaped.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Returns received by the Dallas News up to 2 o'clock this (Sunday) morning, show a total of 208,062 votes for prohibition and 207,491 for prohibitionists in the election in the state yesterday.

The expected heavy prohibition vote in the cities and larger towns did not materialize and several towns counted in the wet column. The dry majority in San Antonio gave an antiprobibition majority of only 8,000 Harris county, of which Houston is the county seat, 6,000 Dallas, 1,600 and Tarrant county, of which Fort Worth is the county seat, but 800.

The prohibitionists, as was expected, received heavy majorities in Texas. The Panhandle and west Texas gave even larger majorities relatively proper and northeast Texas.

The antiprobibitionists got their majority almost exclusively in south Texas, and in some counties they were smaller than had been expected.

Colorado Springs, Denver and Pueblo Get Bulk of Illegal Shipments. Federal Authorities Busy.

Declaration by federal authorities in Denver that Colorado Springs, Denver and Pueblo are the only cities in the state in which a traffic in opium is carried on to any extent has caused an investigation and it is discovered that in these three towns the stuff is manufactured in great quantities. Into the entire state, they say, 2,500 pounds of the drug is smuggled annually. A can of opium sells for $15 and at this rate 2,000 pounds would be worth approximately $30,000. The government loses duty on this amount annually, owing to the smuggling into this state. A systematic effort will be made to rid the state of the opium traffic, in which case the "hot joints" and their agents will be effectually stopped from the unlawful practice.

In Colorado Springs recently, the police ran across a case in which Thomas McCleave and his wife were found to be peddling the drug as well as making it and buying it through unlawful sources. This, in part, has helped speed the investigation.

BOY STEALING RIDE KILLED

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo., July 22.—While attempting to alight from a moving freight train here today, a 18-year-old boy, whose companions said was Walter Diermont and whose parents they believed live in Rochester, N. Y., fell between the cars and was instantly killed. The boys' clothing and general appearance indicate that he came of a good family. In his pocket was found a letter signed W. M. Morgan and mailed from Palmyra, Pa.

On Friday, Heckler and his family took a train for Chicago. Heckler, who is a tourist from Milwaukee, was traveling with the family and was taken away by the heat during the recent tour. He was in the east. His physical condition was such that he was unable to make a trip to Colorado Springs, leaving a change of scene and climate would be beneficial.

Education Committee of London County Council Takes Steps to Combat Consumption.

LONDON, July 22.—The education committee of the London county council is embarking on an enterprise which constitutes a remarkable innovation in educational methods.

The committee has taken an old house out Paddington way—Kensal house it is called—and adapted its rooms and picturesque old garden to the purposes of a school for the special and exclusive education of children of tuberculous tendencies. It will be a garden school equipped with special apparatus suited to its unusual design. The little consumptives will be taught, as much as our fickle climate permits, in the open air. Desks will be little used and canvas chairs being provided, so that the pupils may lie down over their lessons. On all fine days the youngsters will be kept in recumbent positions imbining fresh air and learning in the same drought. The crusade against consumption is being carried on energetically in other parts of London.

Your Teeth

Should last as long as you last. By having those small cavities attended to and your teeth cleaned at the proper time, over 95 per cent of teeth can be made to last a lifetime. Better have them fixed now. We'll be glad to tell you what it will cost to have your mouth put in a healthy condition.

WIDELY KNOWN ATTORNEY AND EDUCATOR IS DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 22.—J. V. C. Karnes, a widely known attorney and educational worker, died at his home in this city early today, aged 70. Mr. Karnes was born in Boone county, Missouri. He had practiced law in this city since 1885. For years he was a member of the board of curators of Missouri university, from which institution he was graduated in the early days. He also had been for many years a member of the board of education of this city. In 1880 he was the Republican candidate for judge of the supreme court.

CAMORRIST TRIAL STOPPED BY WITHDRAWAL OF LAWYERS

VITERBO, Italy, July 22.—The lawyers for the defense have struck and as a consequence the Camorrist trial was adjourned today until next Wednesday to afford them time in which to decide on their future attitude.

Unless some agreement is reached with the court and the prosecution before the sessions are resumed, it is probable that the trial will be definitely stopped and later begun all over again.

TERRIFIC RAINSTORMS IN THE DEATH VALLEY SINK

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal. July 22.—Cloudbursts that filled canyons with debris and turned nine buildings into houseboats marked the climax of hot weather which sent the mercury up to 140 in the Death Valley sink during the week. The terrific heat drove miners and prospectors out of the desert just in time to avoid the heaviest precipitation experienced for 30 years.

News of the storms has been slow in reaching here but reports at hand indicate considerable change in the topography of the flood-swept regions. The roar of thunder in sections more than 100 miles from this city could be heard here. In the zone intersected by the Tonopah-Tidewater railroad many canyons were almost completely filled with debris and at the mines bank houses were carried away.

TELEGRAPH LINES IN ARIZONA ARE DAMAGED

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 22.—Electrical storms, general throughout the northern and central portions of the territory, have rendered telegraphic communication more uncertain than it has been for years. Lightning systems of this and other places have suffered.

JACKSON'S SECRETARY DIES

NASHVILLE, Tenn. July 22.—Edmund Cooper, secretary to President Andrew Jackson is dead at the age of 80 at his home in Shelbyville, Tenn. He was a half brother of Col. Duncan B. Cooper who with his son, Robin, figured in the sensational trial in which they were charged with the murder of United States Senator Carmack.

PLEASED WITH CANAL WORK

PANAMA, July 22.—Henry L. Stimson, the American secretary of war today denied a report that he had come here on a mission concerning Panama politics. He was greatly pleased and impressed, he said with the progress of the canal construction.

Charged With Seeking to Drive Aged Homesteader Away by Oppression

DENVER, July 22.—Charging oppression, intimidation, violence and want to drive a property owner from his land, Deputy United States Marshal E. G.
Jeffers for the arrest of nine citizens of Colorado, some rated as worth half a million dollars and others reckless ranch hands. The warrants were sworn to by M. D. McNulty, chief of the field division of the federal land office in behalf of J. H. Scott, an aged homesteader of Sterling, Colo., whose ranch was raided.

The men named in the warrants are Eugene Buchanan, Sterling, bank director and wealthy cattleman; Irving Minnett, Peetz, Colo., wealthy cattleman; Gilbert Schwartzlander, Peetz, ranch hand; August and John Sindt, brothers, Peetz, homesteaders; Ole Smonson, Peetz, homesteader; Buford Sales, Winston, cowboy; Frank Miller, Peetz, cowboy; J. H. Van Pelt, Winston, ranch hand.

The complaint charges that the sole object of the raiders was to drive Scott off his homestead near the Nebraska line by use of violence, a water hole used by the cattle of Buchanan, Minnett and others. It is alleged when Scott refused to sell or move a complaint was formed to work his place and drive him out of the country. Armed to resist the complaint continues the raiders appeared at the Scott homestead at daybreak, destroyed houses, barns, fences and growing crops and carried off cattle, spoils in large wagon. The damage is placed at $1000.

The homestead claim was made by Edward Scott, a man who was killed the older Scott more than 20 years old and a civil war veteran took advantage of the federal laws which enabled him to complete the entry and own the land. Accordingly he out Fox and Walter Blair on the land to improve and cultivate. Then the raiders appeared, drove the Blairs away and destroyed the property.

FORMER D. & R. G. EMPLOYE HELD UNDER HEAVY BOND

DENVER, July 22.—Cornelius Em-rich, former claim adjuster of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad who was arrested a few weeks ago on a charge of embezzlement preferred by the railroad company, was today charged with grand larceny and confidence games in four informations filed in the criminal court. In eight other informations he was charged with forgery and uttering forgery.
Bond was fixed at $2,500 on each of three counts, aggregating $22,500.

APPOINTED TO WEST POINT

DENVER, July 22.—Raymond G.
Moses, 19-year-old son of Assistant Fire
Chief James J. Moses of Denver, has received notification that he had been appointed to cadetship at West Point.
The appointment was made on recommendation of Senator Guggenheim, carrying out the wish of the late Senator Charles J. Hughes.

Moses is a graduate of West Denver
High school and in his third year at Colorado university, where he is studying electrical engineering. He will give up his studies there to go to West Point.

24,336 MINERS EMPLOYED IN MINES OF COLORADO

DENVER, July 22.—Statistics compiled by Edwin V. Blake, labor commissioner, show that 24,336 miners are employed in Colorado. Of these 14,768 are working in coal mines and the remainder in metal mines and mills.

IT LOOKED GOOD TO HIM

From Success.

The teacher was demonstrating the powerful corrosive effects of intoxicating beverages upon a stomach's lining.
The class looked on with horror when she poured some 55 per cent alcohol on an egg, thereby causing it to shrive and coagulate. The demonstrator was pleased to observe the interest displayed by the janitor who had come in for the waste baskets. It was well known that he had need of such warning.

"Ma'am," he asked timidly "would you mind telling me where you buy your commission who expected the decision."

Attorney General Says Money in "Legislative Pork Barrel" Can Be Used for Roads.

DENVER, July 22.—Attorney General Benjamin Griffith submitted an opinion to the state highway commission today in which he holds that all the money in the internal improvement income fund, better known as the "legislative pork barrel" is under jurisdiction of the commission and can be used for construction of state highways. These funds now amount to $233,678.53, and it is the opinion of the state treasurer that at least $175,000 more will be added before the close of the present administration.

The legislature has appropriated the entire amount of the two funds, but passed a law declaring that what was left should be turned over to the state highway commission. Shafer vetoed all the road and bridge bills thereby leaving the entire fund to be disposed of.

Under a provision of the law the attorney general declares, it is doubtful whether the commission can apportion the money before January 1, but he leaves that question open. State Treasurer Kenehan says he will not surrender any of the money until March 1, 1912. He asserts that the commission will be able to make contracts and commence operations immediately because its credit will be good.

The commission cannot expend any of the money of the improvement fund for salaries or equipment. All must be used in the construction of highways and bridges in the state.

Thomas Tullev, a member of the commission who expected the decision, to be favorable said a few days ago

"When we obtain this fund we will set about to construct a system of highways that will make Colorado a delight to tourists."

Every county in the state will benefit by the commission's work.

Chief James J. Moses of Denver, has received notification that he had been appointed to cadetship at West Point.
The appointment was made on recommendation of Senator Guggenheim,
carrying out the wish of the late Senator Charles J. Hughes.

Moses is a graduate of West Denver
High school and in his third year at Colorado university, where he is studying electrical engineering. He will give up his studies there to go to West Point.

Has Been Eighty-Eight Per Cent of Normal.

DENVER, July 22.—United States weather bureau records prove that there has not been much of a drought in Colorado this year.

A bulletin of the bureau just issued shows that the rainfall in Colorado since March 1, the crop growing season, has been 88 per cent of the normal, taking the state as a whole.

Colorado has also fared well in the matter of departure from the normal temperature since March 1. Unusual heat has prevailed over the greater part of the country. The average daily temperature has been above normal at more than four-fifths of the 163 stations reporting. At many of the eastern stations the average daily excess above normal since March 1 has been above 4 degrees with Chicago 5.6
—but in Colorado the excess has not been great. At Grand Junction it has been only 2 of 1 degree; at Pueblo 2.3 degrees; at Denver 2.8; and at Durango there has been an average daily deficiency of .3 of 1 degree.

Great Britain Wants to Preserve Peace but Not by Giving Up Prestige

LONDON, July 22.—Addressing a banquet given by the bankers of London last night, Lord Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, referred to Great Britain's continually growing prosperity which he said could only be arrested by a disturbance of the world's peace.

Therefore he was ready to make great sacrifices to preserve peace and would rejoice at the success of arbitration negotiations with the United States. But, he added, it was essential that Great Britain at all hazards should maintain her place and prestige among the great powers.

If a situation were forced upon Great Britain where peace could only be preserved by the surrender of the position she had won by centuries of heroism and achievement, by allowing herself to be treated where vital interests were concerned as though she were of no account in the cabinet of nations, then, he said, emphatically peace at that price would be a humiliation intolerable for a great country like England to endure.

"National honor," said the chancellor, "is no party question. The security of our international trade is not a party question. The peace of the world is more likely to be secured if all nations realize fairly what the conditions of peace must be."

The speech made a deep impression on his listeners.

Lloyd George's audience interpreted the speech to mean that the Moroccan situation is serious enough to have decided the cabinet to depose the chancellor to take this opportunity of affirming the British standpoint.

LONDON, July 22.—The Times editorial this morning says the whole country will endorse Chancellor Lloyd George's decisive and statesmanlike reference to the European situation created by the German demands which are "nothing less than a claim for absolute European predominance."

The Times continues: "David Lloyd George is under no suspicion of jingoism and he spoke not only for the British government but for his countrymen as a whole."

The Liberal morning papers, which refer to the fact that Chancellor Lloyd George in his address last night, read the important passages slowly and carefully from a prepared manuscript, regarded this utterance as the embodiment of the cabinet's views, and it is not doubted that it was a hint to Germany with regard to Morocco.

The papers express the hope that this word in season may prevent the situation from becoming critical.

Runs Amuck on Street Car, Killing Two People, Wounding Five Others

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., July 22.—Intoxicated at the command of the motorman to get back from the running board and remain in his seat until the car stopped, Babo Mallak, a Syrian, 21 years old, drew an automatic pistol and fired 10 shots into a crowded electric car on the Cheshire Street railway, instantly killing the motorman, George E. Hoyt, of Pittsfield, and Miss Martha Ealer, 21 years old, of Adams, wounding two women probably fatally and severely injuring three other women.

As he fired the last shot, Mallak was seized by J. J. Mooney of Pittsfield, who took away the pistol. Drawing a knife, the Syrian jumped from the running board down an embankment, where he was captured by other passengers.

There were about 60 persons on the car when Mallak, who sat directly behind the motorman, signaled the conductor to get off. He stood on the running board as the car slowed up, and Motorman Hoyt wished to caution him about getting off while the car was in motion, telling him to get back to his seat.

Just as the car stopped Mallak pulled out his pistol and began firing. He aimed the first bullet at the back of the motorman and then turned upon the women passengers in the seats behind him and fired pointblank till his revolver was empty.

Mallak refused to talk after his arrest. The police believe that he went suddenly insane.

RAINS HELP TO CONTROL ALASKAN FOREST FIRE

JUNEAU, Alaska, July 22.—Fire, which broke out Wednesday morning in the heavy spruce and hemlock forest near Haines, 35 miles northwest of Juneau, was brought under control today. Twenty acres of forest were destroyed, also 150,000 feet of logs, 50,000 feet of sawed timber and a saw-mill.

At one time the fire approached within half a mile of Haines. The entire garrison of Fort William H. See, under command of Col. Cornelius Gardener, sixteenth infantry, fought for two days, in co-operation with the citizens of Haines against the flames. Rain, which fell last night, gave material assistance in conquering the fire.

Commissioner Bennett of the general land office, authorized the expenditure of $500 in stamping out the embers. Special Agent W. J. Lewis of the general land office is directing the fight against the fire, which is not in the national forest.

Mexican Railway May Be Tied Up by Big Strike

JUAREZ, Mex., July 22.—According to railroad officials at Juarez, a big strike is planned to cover the entire National Railway lines of Mexico, and the present arrangement is that it will be inaugurated on August 5. The strike will be instituted by the brakemen and firemen, but will be quickly followed by an anti-American protest, as it is claimed that the foremen and conductors on the system, who are principally Americans, are being paid more than the standard for such service in the United States.

Strike conventions are to be held at various cities throughout the republic.

PRESIDENT TAKES A REST

WASHINGTON, July 22.—President Taft left Washington tonight to spend his second week-end at the Taft summer cottage at Beverly. Secretary Hilges and Major Butt went with the President and Secretary of the Treasury MacVane, whose summer home is at Dublin, N. H., accompanied him as far as Boston. Senator Penrose went as far as Philadelphia.

The President will spend two days motoring and playing golf and resting before he returns to Washington. He will reach Boston tomorrow morning and motor out to Beverly. He will stay again last Sunday night for Washington and will be back in the capital Tuesday morning.

SUCCUMBS TO GUM A-FIER DEFYING SHERIFF WEEK

GREELEY, Colo., July 22.—Mrs. Amanda Harris, who weighs less than 100 pounds, for a week prevented representatives of a gas-engine company of Denver from removing a 30-ton steam plow from her husband's ranch, 40 miles from here, and not until Sheriff McAfee warned her over with two packages of chewing gum was the piece of machinery gotten outside the Harris premises.

It was alleged Harris failed to make payments due on the machine, and when representatives of the company called to take possession, Mrs. Harris stood by the gate and told them if they drove the plow through it would be over her body. The sheriff went to the ranch, and after he gave the gum to Mrs. Harris she began dividing it among the children. Having gotten the spunky woman out of the way, McAfee convinced Harris it was best to turn over the machine.

PORTUGAL TO RETALIATE EX-KING'S ACTIVITIES

LISBON, Portugal, July 22.—(By way of Badajoz, Spanish frontier).—The government, because of Manuel's participation in the royalists' preparations in Galicia for an invasion of Portugal, intends to sell the deposed king's estates and real property, and make him by the state, instead of waiting to pay off the indebtedness in annual installments from the revenues of the property. The estates are expected to yield $5,000,000.

WEALTHY MAN TO BURY MOTHER, WHO WAS POOR

CHICAGO, July 22.—Selwyn C. Edgar, Jr., wealthy St. Louis clubman and son of Mrs. Catherine E. Porter, who was run down and killed by an automobile in Sheridan Road Thursday evening, telephoned from Tarrytown, N. Y., this afternoon that he would come to Chicago and take charge of his mother's body tomorrow.

W. W. Hobbs, for whom the woman worked as a domestic at the time of her death had arranged for funeral services this afternoon and to have the body interred at his own expense. He attempted to get in communication with the woman's former husband, Selwyn C. Edgar, a wealthy zinc miner of St. Louis, and her son, but was unsuccessful until an hour before the time set for the funeral when the son called on the long distance telephone from Tarrytown and asked to have the funeral postponed.

MISSILE PUTS S. M. IN NEERADIMENT

NEW YORK, July 22.—Theodore Roosevelt has an article on the development of Alaska in today's issue of The Outlook. He declares two factors to be responsible for retarding progress in this direction, "great capitalists who wish to develop Alaska by making enormous fortunes for themselves outside of and in defiance of the law," and the congressional "under pressure of hostile interests to the corporations declines to permit the passage of legislation which will enable them to do their work honestly and to develop the coal fields with a fair profit to themselves while doing justice to others."

Referring specifically to the Controller Bay case, Mr. Roosevelt says: "In this connection I wish to call attention to the essential fact as regards the Controller Bay situation, offers the only chance, or at any rate, very much the best chance, for a free outlet from the great Bering river fields. It was the imperative duty of the government service to keep this outlet free and not to dispose of it to any individual or individuals."

The government should have held this land in perpetuity, permitting its use by any individual or corporation only under conditions that would subserve the general public interest. Unfortunately the interior department last October eliminated from the government reserve not only the 320 acres, the elimination of which was mistakenly recommended by the agricultural department, but 15,800 acres. Whether there was or was not impropriety in the way in which the elimination was brought about, whether or not there was impropriety in the action which resulted in the instant filing of claims by Mr. Ryan and others, does not go to the root of the matter. The root of the matter is that no such elimination should have been made by the interior department. The public interest demanded that this land should be kept under public control and that to prevent monopoly its use should be permitted only under such conditions as the public need required. Remember always that such action would not have hindered development; it would have enabled any honest corporation to come in and do its part in developing the country without fear of being crowded out by some other corporation, which through unwise government action might obtain a monopolistic right. It is absolutely essential to the proper development of our waterways within the United States and it is essential to the proper development of the Alaska coal fields."

SMALLPOX ON STEAMER

VICTORIA, B. C., July 22.—The Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of India, from Yokohama, arrived at quarantine today and landed a white seaman suffering from smallpox. The Empress had previously landed at Nagasaki another sailor suffering from the disease. The 65 saloons and 408 Chinese steerage passengers will be detained at William Head 18 days. The through mails will be sent to Victoria tomorrow.

PECULIAR EYE DISEASE DUE TO OIL ON STREETS

MILLION DOLLAR GIFT TO FOREIGN MISSIONS

NEW YORK, July 22.—A $1,000,000 gift to the endowment fund of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions is announced here by the secretary of the New York branch. The source of the gift is not named. The gift is toward a $2,000,000 endowment which the missionary board had been trying to raise for several years.

STEAMER WRECKED IN FOG

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 22.—During a dense fog, the steamer Amythia, plying between Montreal and this port, with a general cargo went ashore near Cape Race today. Reports from the Cape state that the steamer is likely to be a total wreck. Her crew reached shore safely. The ship, formerly called the Santiago De Cuba, registers 472 tons net and is 240 feet long. Her home port is Halifax.

HINES AGAIN ON STAND

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The activities of Edward Hines, whose name has been linked with the election of Senator Lorimer, to influence the vote of the Senate last spring on amending the Illinois senator were inquired into today by the Senate Lorimer committee.

Hines was on the stand again and testified that he called on President W. C. Brown of the New York Central during the Lorimer fight in the Senate. Hines was asked if he was seeking to influence the vote of Senator DePue. He answered in the negative. Hines said that he spent a month in Washington just preceding the vote on the Lorimer case seeing senators, inducing others to see them and writing letters to some of his friends "to tell the facts to their senators."

Carl E. Nelson, private stenographer to Hines, testified that the latter was continuously in Washington during February, 1909, except for occasional trips to New York. The object of this was to show that Hines was not in Chicago during the latter part of February, when Clarence S. Funk said Hines called upon him about the famous Union League club conversation. Funk said Hines asked him to contribute to a Lorimer election fund but Hines said Funk offered to contribute.

Mr. Hines testified today about a proposal to him to purchase Wirt H. Cooke's stock in the Virginia and Rainy Lake company. Cooke testified that Hines, over the telephone, said he would go to Springfield on the day Lorimer was elected "with all the money necessary."

"It would have taken about $200,000 to purchase Cooke's stock and as I had previously received a letter from Hines which I figured was in the nature of blackmail I decided not to buy the stock," declared Hines.

"He claimed he would make some exposures unless I purchased his stock," Hines declared.

ments were defeated without the formality of roll calls.

John Norris, chairman of the committee on paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, in a statement tonight, said:

"The paper section of the bill becomes effective immediately on approval by the President and paper made from timber cut on privately owned lands will come in duty free without awaiting any 'Canadian action.' In that respect it differs from the general reciprocity section which will not go into effect until the President shall proclaim that Canada has reduced its duties in accordance with the agreement between the United States and Canada."

Setting forth what Mr. Norris believes will be the effect of the paper section of the bill, the statement says: "An important factor in the situation is the removal of uncertainty respecting the tariff on pulp and paper which has for at least four years, deterred investment in paper enterprises. Hitherto the existing American mills have been comparatively free from fear of competition because the timber areas tributary to available water power in the United States has been acquired for speculative holdings."

"The cheapening of timber values in the United States is also a factor in the situation. The opening of large pulp wood areas in the Canadian provinces should break the artificially inflated price of pulp wood stumpage in the United States."

The daily output of news print paper averages 4,000 tons. Within two years new installation should add approximately 1,500 tons per day to the supply. Such an addition ought to restore competitive conditions."

CA' AT AN' EN'S

LONG PATIENCE

Fear Obstructionist May Delay Passage of Reciprocity Until January.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 22.—The favorable action today by the United States Senate on the reciprocity agreement puts the government in a somewhat stronger position, but it is conceded it will not prove a factor in breaking the present deadlock on the question in the Canadian commons.

The leaders of the opposition profess to see no change in the situation and assert they will continue the filibuster against a measure, which they claim, is the entering wedge looking to dissolution of Canada's ties with the mother country.

Under parliamentary rules the majority cannot force closure on a resolution of this kind. The opposition can delay a vote indefinitely by providing speakers to continue debate and this line of attack will be continued when parliament reassembles next week, it is asserted.

A dissolution of parliament and an appeal to the country in a general election with reciprocity as the issue is the only course left the government and it is expected Premier Laurier, who conferred with members of the cabinet on the subject this afternoon, will take advantage of the first opportunity to bring up prerogative, perhaps within a fortnight.

Will Require Until January.

Thirty days will be required to get the election machinery in order and voting therefore cannot take place until October.

If the Liberals are returned with their present vote working majority the new parliament practically would be sure to enact the agreement before the first of the year. One of the cabinet ministers said today:

"The only thing that now stands between the Canadian farmer and free entry to the great American market is the conservative minority in the house. The harvest is approaching and Canadian crops never promised a more bountiful yield. The farmers soon will have greater quantities of produce than the home market can absorb."

"I am confident there will be a demand from all parts of the country for the passage of the reciprocity bill, which the opposition will find irresistible. If they persist in obstruction by abusing the parliamentary privilege of free speech, parliament will be dissolved and the people asked to pass on reciprocity at a general election."

The government is confident the country will demonstrate its approval of the measure by returning it with a handsome majority."

with but few exceptions voted against amendments by Senator Bailey, one of the day in behalf of any amendment, 23 senators voting for it.

President Gives Credit to Knox.

From the White House, President Taft followed the votes on the amendments and final passage of the bill with the keenest interest. "I am very much gratified and delighted that the bill is passed," he said. "It indicates the increase of mutually beneficial relations between Canada and this country."

The President received many congratulations before departing for Beverly to spend the week end. In reply to these he declared he was getting entirely too much credit out of the matter and that Secretary Knox really was entitled to the greatest praise.

The President will be back in Washington on Tuesday. Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, who led the reciprocity fight in the Senate, dined with the President on board his train tonight. In reply to congratulations, the senator said he made his way through the Union station to the President's car, exclaimed:

"It was easy."

Senator Penrose ventured the prediction that Congress would adjourn not later than August 8 or 10.

Wool Tariff Struggle Next.

A bitter struggle is expected in the Senate next week over the wool tariff. A wool revision bill already has passed the Democratic House. Several substitutes have been offered in the Senate and a vote will be taken Thursday next.

No sooner had the reciprocity bill passed than senators began to prepare for the attack on the tariff. The wool bill was made the unfinished business and will be taken up Monday morning. There were many exchanges of views on this bill today, especially among the Democrats, and a suggestion for a caucus was made. Nothing is settled, but the indications are there will be a Democratic conference before the vote on the bill Thursday. The indications also are that the House bill will be voted down without effort to amend it, and that subsequently the La Follette wool bill already introduced in the Senate may be adopted as an amendment to the free list bill and be defeated when the free list vote is taken.

Party Lines Various Drawn.

In the events that led up to the final passage of the reciprocity measure when amendment after amendment was overwhelmingly defeated, party lines were variously drawn. With one or two exceptions, only the Republican insurgents voted for the amendments with reinforcement from Senators Bailey of Texas, Clarke of Arkansas and Simmons of North Carolina, Democrats.

From the outset when Senator McCumber's resolutions reducing duties on certain necessities of life were defeated the insurgents could muster only about 16 votes, with 84 in opposition. There were one or two marked exceptions to this vote. Senator Nelson of Minnesota secured for his amendment, relieving part of the duty on the agricultural products with the largest vote of the day in behalf of any amendment, 23 senators voting for it.

Every threatened change in the bill was defeated by the consistent union of Democratic and "regular" Republican forces. Senators Pinchney of Washington and Works of California, 111-112, as insurgents, voted against every all amendments. The Democrats

Wyoming Crops Spotty

Dr. V. T. Cooke, the dry farming expert from Cheyenne, Wyo., spent an hour or two in the city yesterday afternoon. On the twenty-fifth he will represent the international board of the dry farming congress at a big gathering of agriculturists at Colorado Springs, Tex. This is the seat of the Texas Agricultural college. He will explain to them the coming congress and assist in organizing a branch for Central Texas.

Dr. Cooke says they have had plenty of late rains in Wyoming and it has saved the potatoes and late products, but that as a whole, crops are spotty. However, there is the usual result: where the right kind of farming was done they have better crops.

There will be a good attendance from Wyoming at the dry farming congress, especially from the northeastern and southeastern portions. Undoubtedly the state will have a creditable exhibit at the exposition.

Noted Worker to Speak
Here at International Congress Farm Women

The Rev. Warren H. Wilson has announced his intention of coming to Colorado Springs in October to have a place on the program of the International Congress of Farm Women. He will bring an exhibit of his work with him, and the managers are elated at the announcement.

Dr. Wilson is at the head of the department of church and country life, and although he is working for the Presbyterian board of missions, it is absolutely undenominational. He gave up an excellent position in a New York church to go into the country and work for the betterment of the rural people, and has become a national character by his accomplishments. This is in direct line with the work that the congress proposes.

Mrs. Mary Pierre VanZile, dean of women at Kansas Agricultural college, located at Manhattan, has agreed to take a place on the Women's Congress program, speaking on food values and the household.

INTEREST WILL BE CHARGED

ON TAXES NOT PAID JULY 31

In accordance with the State laws, County Treasurer F. M. McMahon will be obliged to charge interest on all taxes not paid on or before July 31, 1911.

Interest at the rate of 14 per cent per month, will be charged on the morning of August 1, on all taxes not paid before 4 p. m. July 31, 1911.

COOK IS LEFT FORTUNE

John McDonald, chef at the M. & L. cafe, has fallen heir, through the death of his father, a Baltimore, Md., merchant, to a fortune of $15,000. McDonald received word yesterday and immediately resigned his position at the cafe. He will go to San Francisco, he says to start in business with the money.

Your garments will receive particular attention at the Acadia Dyers and Cleaners. Phone 715. 328 N. Tejon.

GEO. NELSON INJURED

When George Nelson, 32, an employee of the New York Electric company, stopped to find a short circuit in the wiring of the garage on Nevada avenue Friday night, an unexpected flash of the crossed wires struck him squarely in the face. His eyeballs were burned and for a time it was feared he would lose his sight. Last night, however, physicians pronounced him out of danger saying that within four days he will be able to regain full use of the injured organs.

AS TO SPANISH ARROGANCE

From the Boston Transcript.

The recent earthquake in Mexico recalls one of the many little stories told there illustrative of the arrogance of the Spanish character. A Spaniard arrived at Vera Cruz and stepped ashore just as an earthquake occurred. Putting on a benign smile, he said: "Tremble not, Earth, I am not going to harm thee."

TEACHERS' NOTICE STARTS TOMORROW

A large opening attendance of the sixth Normal institute is expected tomorrow, when the first week's session begins. Tomorrow at 3 o'clock the enrollment books will open and regular work be conducted at the High School auditorium by a body of noted instructors. In addition to the corps of regular teachers' lectures will be delivered throughout the entire course by specially trained men. Prominent among these is Prof. M. V. O'Shea, B. L., profeesor of education at the University of Wisconsin. Prof. O'Shea is the author of the educational book, "Dynamic Factors in Education," and has achieved a reputation as a lecturer. During the first week Prof. O'Shea's lectures will occupy a great deal of the time. He will deliver two a day on the following subjects: "Hidden Forces in Life and Education," "Education for Efficiency," "What Is the Chief Worth in Education?" "The Active Nature and Needs of Childhood," "What the Development of the Child Means," "The Trend of the Times," "Problems of Good Order," "The Child as a Revealer of the Past," "Punishment," "The Discipline of the Mind," "The Social Nature and Needs of Childhood" and "Present Day Problems in Teaching."

PROF. M. V. O'SHEA.

Other Lectures.

In addition to Prof. O'Shea's lectures during the first week, Roger H. Motion, professor of literature at Colorado College, will speak on a course of interesting subjects. Principal among these are the talks on "The Teaching of Literature." Under this class are five separate addresses.

"The Problem and Difficulties," "Foundation," "Education vs. Examination," "Methods of Teaching" and "Inspiration and Interpretation." Prof. Motion will give five other talks. Their titles follow.

"The Colonial Period," "The Revolutionary Period," "Period of Natural Beginnings," "The Golden Age" and "The Period from 1870-1910."

A credit of 5 per cent on averages will be allowed teachers who try for certificates. This is considered liberal. The registration fee of $1 is required at the time of entrance.

For the second week exchanges have as yet been announced in the corps of lecturers scheduled to talk. They are as follows: Mrs. Helen W. Wilson, superintendent of public instruction, Dr. W. F. Slocum, Colorado College; Helen L. Grenfell, former superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Z. N.

5000 Moneyed Men and 30 /

Fifteen office buildings on Seventeenth street (Denver's "Wall Street") contain 2,500 offices.

In these offices are 5,000 well-to-do men, business and professional.

The ONLY residential car line on Seventeenth street is the one that runs from the Union Depot to BELMONT PLACE.

The natural residence section for these men is where this car line goes—especially so, in view of the fact that this line passes through a pleasing part of the city every foot of the way, and is in every respect conceded to be the highest class line in the whole tramway system.

You can see what this means to the future of Belmont Place.

It means a class of home builders who can afford to buy your Belmont Place lots at YOUR price.

It means 30 per cent on your investment if you make it NOW.

See our Mr. Gardner at 21 North Tejon street TODAY. He can furnish you a map folder describing this property—this 30 per cent property in detail.

PIONEER SUNDAY

MIDLAND BAND CONCERT

Today's concert at Stratton park will be featured by programs of more than usual attractiveness. Mme. Jenny Corea Bunn entertains crowds every Sunday afternoon by her singing with the Midland band, with pleasing selections of the kind suited to please all tastes. Mr. Rominger will be heard today, giving xylophone solo. Selections from "The Fortune Teller" are among the numbers. Following are the two programs:

Afternoon:
March, "The Right of Sword," Bendix.
Overture, "Semiramide," Rossini.
Grand Sacred Fantasia, "Providence," Tobani.
Airs from the Comic Opera, "Robin Hood," De Koven.
INTERMISSION.
"Reminiscences of Grieg," Godfrey.
Soprano Solo, "Carissima," Penn.
Mme. Jenny Corea Bunn.
"Tone Picture of the North and South," Bendix.
Finale, "La Paloma," Yradier.

Evening:
March, "Attack of the Cutthroats," Ellensberg.
Overture, "Zampa," (The Marble Bride), Herold.
Paraphrase, "Die Lorelei," Neavada.
Gems from the Comic Opera, "The Fortune Teller," Herbert.
(Incidental) Xylophone Solo, Mr. Rominger.
INTERMISSION.

Herman Bellstedt.
Selection, "Bright Eyes," Hoschina.
Finale, "The Merry Rooster," Kibler.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

SPRINGS THAT BEADLY SEEN IN POSTERS

At the time of the Denver industrial parade, the float entered by Colorado Springs attracted a great deal of attention. In a moving picture film prepared by the General Film company of New York city, the Colorado Springs float stands out distinctively, and is one of the clearest in the entire film. The general film company has control of all licensed picture houses in the United States, and on the release of the parade pictures today, people in all large cities will see them. After today, the films travel to the smaller towns, until in a few weeks they will cover the whole territory in which picture shows are common.

It was thought at first that the Colorado Springs float would not show up well in the pictures because of being painted in oil colors, but the result was surprisingly satisfactory, every stroke of the artist's brush in the making of the Garden of the Gods and Pikes Peak views being visible.

Death and Funerals

The body of F. W. Walters, who died suddenly in Salida, July 15, will be taken to Denver Tuesday for cremation. His daughter, Mrs. Daisy Bergermann, and her husband, of San Francisco, are stopping with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brenneke, 7 North Weber street, over Sunday.

The body of the unidentified negro who was killed while stealing a ride on a Rock Island train last Thursday, was buried in a coffin yesterday by the coroner. The authorities were unable to learn the man's identity.

NEW PIONEER PIN

The above is an illustration of the new pioneer pin made for the members of the El Paso County Pioneer association, and is considered one of the most beautiful and artistic of its kind in the country. The arrow-shaped pendant is commemorative of the days when the early settlers crossed the plains in prairie schooners and frequently fought with the redmen for their lives.

A ONE-DAY TRIP OF WONDERS

The wonderful ride to the still more wonderful gold camp of Cripple Creek is acknowledged by all travelers to be the grandest in the world.

On account of the great interest displayed in the free distribution of scenic postcards by the Chamber of Commerce, the 100,000 cards that were ordered for July proved to be insufficient. In the last four weeks the demand has been so great that on every occasion it was found necessary to break into the bundles of Monument Valley park cards reserved for next Saturday's distribution. Several thousand of these were used.

All members of the Chamber of Commerce are delighted at the way the card advertising plan has worked out. In appealing to the people there are few methods that have proved so satisfactory.

The last of the entire series will be given out next Saturday, and the successful scheme brought to a close.

Designs for the float that the Junior Order of United American Mechanics will enter in the civic and pioneer parade during carnival week were completed yesterday and a committee was appointed to proceed at once with the construction. The design of the float will be made to represent the teachings of the order. The committee consists of Ward McDowell, Burt Jones, Abe Risk and Will Spencer. When announced first was made of the parade and carnival, the Jr. O. U. A. M. made arrangements to enter a float.

Wrinkles Disappear As if By Magic

(From Denver Republican.)
"In the removal of wrinkles I have discovered cosmetics entirely," writes Mme. Coran, the celebrated Parisian beauty expert. "The results they produce are deceptive and never permanent. Massaging is only partially successful and it's too slow a method."

"I've never seen anything work such wonders as a simple, harmless solution any woman can prepare and use at home without the least trouble. A half pint of witch hazel and an ounce of good powdered sassafras are all you'll need. Mix the two and apply this refreshing solution to your face daily. The effect is marvelous instantaneous. The skin becomes finer, tighter, every wrinkle and sag is affected. You feel so refreshed after using the wash, you look refreshed, too, soon you will look ten years younger."

THE 1912-13 CHALMERS CARS DENVER 809 SEVENTEENTH STREET

Snyder, Dr. Edwin S. Parsons, Colorado College; Dr. E. A. Cross, Colorado Teachers' college. The executive committee which arranged the work consists of C. A. Bent, Douglas county, president; Mrs. Inez Lewis, El Paso county, secretary; Clara Kiern, Elbert county, treasurer; and Marie V. Donahue, Teller county.

CHALMERS CARS FOR 1912

The Chalmers "Thirty-six" is the newest thing in motor cars. The "Thirty-six" is the latest product of the Chalmers Motor company, and with self-starter, demountable rims, long stroke motor and four speed transmission, promises to be one of the sensations of the 1912 season.

The Chalmers "Thirty-six" is advertised as the maximum effort up to this time of a company which was a pioneer in the building of medium priced automobiles. In addition to the new "Thirty-six" the company will continue their well known "30" and "Forty" for 1912. Except for general refinements there are no striking changes in these two models. For 1912, however, both the "30" and the "Forty" will be sold at the same prices as heretofore, but with full equipment.

The Chalmers company, which did its biggest year's business during the 1911 season, is looking forward to a new record for 1912. The new line is certainly attractive in every respect. The "Thirty-six," the only model which is new to the public, has been tested by the company's engineers since the first of last November. Three cars of this model have been tried out in various parts of the country. The first three Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the cars of the "Thirty-six" type were driven more than 20,000 miles before even the Chalmers dealers were shown the finished cars. The Chalmers "30" and the Chalmers "Forty" are already too well known to the motoring public to require any introduction. The Beecher Motor Co., at 123 E. Bijou is the local agent for the Chalmers Co.

A PRIZE OFFERED TO BOY SCOUTS

Mrs. Frank Smith, the dancing teacher, who has charge of the Russian ballet dances which will be given at Stratton park on the evening of August 3 and the afternoon of August 4, has offered a prize of a $10 gold piece to the Boy Scout selling the most tickets of last November. Three cars of this model have been tried out in various parts of the country. The first three Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the cars of the "Thirty-six" type were driven more than 20,000 miles before

MANITOU DEPARTMENT

TINY TOT UNDER TEN WANTS BANK ACCOUNT

The postal savings bank here was officially opened yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, and a few minutes later the first account was taken out by Miss Sarah Irene Davis, aged 12 years. A younger sister also had the necessary amount to open an account, but was under the age limit of 10 years.

Officials were here from Denver instructing Postmaster Grafton in the banking system, and he feels confident that he will have a large business. Several accounts were opened yesterday, and quite a number of the stamps were sold.

OKLAHOMA TOURISTS ARE GETTING BUSY

Great numbers of Oklahoma tourists register at the Navajo kaiser pavilion daily and the picnic to be held in Stratton park next Thursday is expected to be a record breaker. Yesterday afternoon over 500 people registered in the book and word has just been received that about 15 more will arrive early this week in autos. The

LOSES HIS TROUSERS

Two men suspected of robbing George Johnson of his money and trousers while he was intoxicated recently, have been arrested by the authorities. Johnson was fined in police court a short time ago for being drunk, and when turned loose he found two companions and started to have the fun all over again. When he became too intoxicated to know what he was doing, his friends took his trousers, emptied the pockets and threw the garment away.

MANITOU NOTES

Mrs. Thomas G. Corlett of Chicago is at the Stringham.
S. J. Davis is now special officer at the Manitous hotel.

Visitors—For cleaning and pressing, see Stock's, opposite postoffice.
Miss Alfred Sanger of Denver is a guest of her brother, E. M. Lotz, and family on Waltham avenue.

Mrs. C. S. Prosser is entertaining her sister, Mrs. C. L. Burch and son, Perry, of Jefferson City, Mo.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. William Garson are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Middleton of Ashland, Neb.

Mrs. Thomas W. Trame and Mrs. P. P. Hunter of Davis, Okla., are visiting Mrs. Mattie Hamilton at the Montclair.

A great number of tourists from the different hotels here made the Royal George trip on the Denver and Rio Grande excursion yesterday.

General and Mrs. H. C. Clark and son of Nevada, Mo., are at the Sunnyside for several days. General Clark is head of the Missouri National Guard.

James Connell has bought out the interests of George McDowell in the Auto Transfer company, which operates between here and Colorado Springs. He is now sole owner.

Several pictures, one a view of the Short Line and another a scenic view painted in the mountains near here, the work of the Leach Art school, have been hung at the Navajo kaiser pavilion.

Today is Texas day at the Congregational Sunday school, and a large attendance is expected. Last Sunday was Kansas day, and almost half of those present were from the Sunnyside state.

Two watches, a lady's handbag containing money and several other trinkets are among a collection of articles which Detective Wolfe is keeping in a safe called for by the owners. All were found in Manitou.

Beginning today and extending over three Sundays the Rev. E. M. Southgate, pastor of the First Congregational church at Princeton, Ill., will have charge of the services at the Congregational church here.

A meeting of all Missourians, conducted by Will Van Dorn will be held in Soda Springs park next Friday for the purpose of organizing a "Show Me" club. All Missourians in this region are requested to be present.

Lieutenant C. C. Culver of the Seventh United States cavalry, a guest at the Sunnyside, recently walked to the Summit house on the Peak. He is stopping over on his way to join his regiment in the Philippines.

The first of the great number of papers ordered by the public library for the summer months have arrived, and tourists are taking advantage of them. The board ordered papers from all principal cities in this and adjoining states.

A party of 12 young people from the Sunnyside recently took a horseback trip to Crystal park, going by way of the trail through Bear Creek canon and returning over a new trail just opened through Wildwood park and ending near the Becker place east of Manitou.

George Evans, who has just returned with Mrs. Evans from Denver, where they have been spending their honeymoon, has been called to New York by the serious illness of his father. Mrs. Evans remained with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant, of Deer Path avenue.

Over 400 Texans were at the picnic at Stratton park recently, and were so pleased with the idea that another one will be held early in August. The committee will meet in the near future to plan for it. This outing probably will be held near Manitou in the mountains.

On a trip over the High Drive, a jolly tallish party left the Stringham yesterday morning. Those present were Mrs. Charles Stevens, Mrs. M. Hillier, and Mrs. G. Fisher and daughter, Gertrude Fisher, of St. Louis. Theo. Brock, Jefferson City, Mrs. F.

MOVING PICTURES TAKEN IN GARDEN OF GODS TO AD- VERTISE SCENERY.

In a short time people all over the world will be looking at pictures of Colorado Springs and the scenic parts of the Pike's Peak region. Whether the moving picture show is popular, the films made recently in Denver, at the time of the convention of realty men, will be shown by special arrangement made by the Denver chamber of commerce with 16 picture exchange houses. Colorado Springs and this region plays an important part in these films, several hundred feet being devoted to the pictures taken while the realty men visited this city.

Pictures in Garden of the Gods. Yesterday while the automobile ride given the visitors on their arrival here from Denver, was in progress, Operator Smith of the Rex Motion Picture company, Carl Balcomb, the Colorado Springs lecturer, and Chairman W. H. Emmons of the Denver chamber of commerce's committee on fairs and parades, went in an automobile, furnished by the local chamber of commerce, to convenient places in the garden of the gods, where they photographed the rising and setting of the sun with the mountain scenery in the background. From the Cathedral Spire and the Balanced Rock hundreds of feet of film were used in photographing the automobiles as they passed bearing the parties of visitors. At Soda Springs in Manitou and near the Cliff Dwellings ruins the machine was again put in operation and moving pictures of the party made.

Yesterday photographs were also made of the scenery on the Cripple Creek Short Line, and tomorrow the operator and the Denver committee-men will go to Glenwood Springs and Canon City to make more pictures of the Rocky mountain scenery. Within a few weeks the pictures will be on exhibition throughout the country.

Martin, Springfield, Mo.; Mrs. W. Swords, son and daughter, Ralph and Lillian of New York city; the Misses Hopkins, Pittsburg, Pa.; Mrs. George Anderson, Kansas City, Mo.; and Mrs. R. Sterling, Pittsburg, Kan.

The efforts of Marshal Woodman and Detective Wolfe entirely filled the clubhouse with drinks Friday night. Early yesterday morning a number of them were taken to the east limits of the town and told not to "light" in Manitou again. Two others were released and two living their names as J. E. Perkins and D. Williams were fined $5 and costs each in police court by Magistrate Saxon. Williams' fine was suspended on condition that he leave town.

Recent arrivals at the Navajo hotel are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Middleton, Harry Middleton, Ashland, Neb.; Dr. E. Lee Allen, H. B. Goldberg and wife, Fremont, Goldberg, Los Angeles, A. W. Roberts, Julia Roberts, Carlyle, Ill.; A. Stamer, St. Louis; Mrs. J. E. Wilkerson, Miss C. Gunter, L. M. Morrison, H. E. Jackson, Denver; W. Wagner, Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. P. Wolf, Miss Florence Wolf, Miss Mae Rose, Wash. Alexandria, La.; C. S. Mitchell, Lolla, Tex.; P. J. Hennes, Park River, N. D.; Lee D. Kelly, St. Louis.

Among recent arrivals at the Sunnyside hotel are S. Graham and wife, Denver; Misses Belle and Helen Ingles, Pleasant Hill, Neb.; Mrs. E. R. McCall and children, Elmwood, Ill.; Mrs. Alice Fane and Paul Fane, Kirkwood, Ill.; Mrs. A. E. Ludolph, Miss Frances Dippel, Kansas City; Mrs. G. W. Womack, Miss Mabelle Warren, Hot Springs, Ark.; Dr. Annette Richard, Chicago; Miss Effie Boyd, Sandwich, Illinois.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES IN NEW YORK CITY

Monroe Royce: The Passing of the American. I returned to America a year and a half ago after an absence of 12 years in Europe. I stopped in New York at a hotel opposite Grace church, and after securing quarters I walked up Broadway to Fourteenth street. It was the midday meal hour, and the streets were thronged with all sorts and conditions of men, and yet not one word of English did I hear spoken from Tenth to Fourteenth streets. The first impression stunned me, and I found myself in a dazed condition, unable to adjust myself to my surroundings, and actually doubting the reality of the scene about me. I walked on to Union Square. The benches were full of men and women, and as I passed by them I listened, but no word of our national tongue did I hear, and I returned to my hotel wondering what it all meant. The next day was Sunday and I spent the afternoon in Bronx park. I arrived at the Third Avenue elevated, entered at the Third Avenue elevated, and walked through the park to the Botanical gardens. The park was full of people, young and

ESTATE TIED UP BECAUSE OF ABSENCE OF EXECUTOR

BOSTON, May 4.—A petition by Frances Weeks, of Paris, wife of Edwin Lord Weeks, the artist, has been filed in the probate court here, asking for the removal of Rufus Nason as executor of a will in which Mrs. Weeks is the chief beneficiary. Rufus W. Nason was formerly a lawyer of this city, but disappeared 12 years ago following the death of his wife, Martha H. Nason. The petition says that attempts have been made to find him without success. Ever since his disappearance, the estate of which he was executor has been tied up and Mrs. Weeks has been unable to receive the income due her.

This speaks for itself as an argument in favor of appointing a responsible Trust Company executor of a will instead of an individual.

Why Actresses Never Grow Old

(Theatrical World)
Nothing concerning the profession seems more puzzling to the dear old public than the perpetual youth of our feminine members. How often we hear remarks like, "Why, I saw her as a child 40 years ago and she doesn't look a year older now!" Of course allowance is made for makeup, but when they see us off the stage at close range, they need another explanation. How strange women generally haven't learned the secret of keeping the face young! How simple a matter to get an ounce of mercerized wax at the drug store, apply it like cold cream, and in the morning wash it off! We know how this gradually, imperceptibly absorbs old cuticle, keeping the complexion new and fresh, free from fine lines, sallowness or over-redness. We know, too, that this mercerized wax is the reason actresses don't wear moth patches, liver-spots, pimples and the like. Why don't our sisters on the other side of the footlights learn the reason, and profit by it?

Mrs. D. W. Colbert has returned from a visit in Pueblo.

A. J. Massingill of Rexford, Kan., is here for the season.

Leo Schilling, Lynn Holton and Charles Schilling recently left on a short fishing trip near Basalt.

The pulpit at the Baptist church will be occupied this morning by the Rev. W. C. King, general missionary for that church.

Edward Hamel is back from a trip to New Mexico, where he has been looking over fruit lands in which he is interested.

Miss Lucie Hobous has returned to her home in Longmont after a week's visit with her uncle, D. V. Prewett, 223 Lincoln avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hopper, 115 North Eighth street, are entertaining Henry Hansen and daughter and Mrs. Edith Bjork of Chicago.

Sam Wah, whose laundry between Sixth and Seventh streets on Colorado avenue was recently raided, is out on bond to appear in police court Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, to answer a charge of selling opium. Lucile Hall is also banded to appear. She was seen to enter the house on the night of the raid, and when arrested had a quantity of cocaine and morphine on her person.

George Harris and Preston York, colored, were each sent to the county jail for 30 days yesterday by Justice Gowdy on charges of vagrancy.

Special "Real Estate

Men's Edition" Daily
Doings for Visitors

The special "Real Estate Men's Edition" of Daily Doings the weekly issued by the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, of which 5,000 were distributed yesterday among the visiting realty men and tourists who throng the city, contains many new features and it is a great improvement over the copies of the book published in the past. A new page devoted to state clubs makes it convenient for visitors to look up friends and find the location of the club headquarters. The program containing an authentic schedule of the happenings of every day in the week form a guide that is appreciated.

In Daily Doings special attention is given to street car schedules in the various points of scenic interest in the Pikes Peak region. The cover of the special edition was printed in royal purple. It is the intention of the publishers to make the book attractive, through paying careful attention to the way it is covered. Weekly the colors of the print will be changed, and the departments carefully edited.

SOME OF THE WONDERS OF SCIENCE

This world's largest flower is said to be the Rafflesia, a native of Sumatra, so called after Sir Stamford Raffles. This immense plant is composed of five round petals of a brickish color, each measuring a foot across. These are covered with numerous irregular yellowish-white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens. The cup of the Rafflesia is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is covered with projections like miniature cow's horns. The cup, when free from its contents, will hold about twelve pounds. The flower weighs about fifteen points and is very thick. The petals three-quarters of an inch.

A Curious Truth.
In an address to the Paris Academy of Sciences, Prof. Balthazard contends that when a leaden bullet traverses cloth characteristic marks are left upon it, which are not obliterated by the subsequent passage of the bullet through flesh, provided that it does not strike a bone. It is even possible, he claims, to identify the nature of the garment through which the bullet has passed by a careful examination of the marks on the lead.

Men sometimes dream of enormous wealth stored deep in the earth, below the reach of miners, but experts aver that there is little or no ground to believe that valuable metallic deposits lie very deep in the earth's crust. Such deposits, it is said, are made by underground waters, and owing to the pressure on the rocks at great depths the waters are confined to a shell near the surface. With few exceptions, ore deposits become too lean to repay working below 3,000 feet. Nine mines in ten, taking the world as a whole, are poorer in the second thousand feet than in the first, and poorer yet in the third thousand.

THEORY AS TO DRY WEATHER

From the New York Tribune.

There is a reason for the present widespread shortage of water that I think is not at all understood, but to which I believe I have a clue in the theory and experiments made by Henry Draper several years ago, and which I have been studying for a long time. Draper's theory was this: The earth is a great dynamo, creating a current of electricity by its own motion, and all thunderstorms are caused by moisture rising from the earth, enough to reach this current. Water being a conductor of electricity, as soon as enough of it reaches this current it causes a disturbance that we call lightning. This disturbs the water or moisture in the atmosphere and gives us a shower.

Draper was so sure that his theory was correct that he took a party of men and went to the Rocky mountains to prove it. When near the top of a high peak he found electricity strong enough to telegraph from one peak to another without the aid of wires. I believe this was the first trial of wireless telegraphy. Soon after making these experiments and publishing them he died, and so far as I know, no one has ever called the experiments further.

In recent years thunderstorms have become less frequent and less severe in this part of the United States. Moreover, after nearly every storm now we have two or three days of foggy, damp weather. The atmosphere does not clear up as it used to do at once after a thunderstorm. Why? As we have increased the use of electricity these storms have grown less

THE CONDUCTOR'S LAST REFUGE

From the Technical World.
Heretofore, the wisdom of Solomon was required of all street car conductors many times a day when the question of a child's age arose. This delicate problem has just been solved by the Cincinnati car company in a manner that would make the author of the book of Proverbs look to his laurels as a shrewd judge. By careful computation it was

CHANGE IN TIME

The early train for the Cripple Creek trip now leaves Colorado Springs at 3 a. m. instead of 8:30 a. m.

EVERY DAY

Two trains for the wonderful Cripple Creek trip leave Santa Fe, S. station 8:50 a. m. and 10:40 a. m., $2.50 going and returning Short Line, or $3.00 going Short Line and return Midland Route.

APPOINTMENTS FOR KANSAS
WASHINGTON, July 22.—Among the nominations sent to the Senate today by President Taft were: United States Marshall, district of Kansas, John R. Harris; Postmaster at Lawrence, Kan., Charles S. Finch.

Societies and Clubs

All Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, whether members of local lodges or visitors, are earnestly requested to meet at Odd Fellows temple, corner of Nevada and Bijou, at 7:30 this evening, for the purpose of attending special services at St. Paul's Methodist church. Service begins at 8 o'clock.

At a recent meeting of the Pikes Peak chapter of the American Women's league, Mrs. Marie Forbush was elected to fill the vacant office of first vice president, and Mrs. M. L. Moore was elected to the office of second vice president, just vacated by Mrs. Forbush. At the close of the meeting Miss Pearl McMillan, the treasurer showed a beautiful silk quilt that is to be disposed of by the local order to raise money for the "lot" fund. The quilt was made by Montana convicts. The next meeting is to be held Thursday at 5 o'clock in Robbins hall.

A special communication of Tejon lodge No. 104, A. F. and A. M., will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock for work on the entered apprentice degree. All visiting brothers cordially invited.

Pikes Peak lodge No. 35, I. O. O. F., offers the use of its club rooms at 125 North Nevada avenue to all visiting Odd Fellows.

The committee from Cheyenne tribe No. 4, Improved Order of Redmen, appointed to design a float and arrange other details for the Springs capital parade, urge all members of this tribe to attend the meeting tomorrow night in Robbins hall. L. G. Hunter, Sam Bell, C. J. Haase, J. K. Radley and H. J. Nathan compose the committee, and all members desiring information can get it from any one of them.

A lawn social will be given on the Loretto Academy lawn next Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Ladies of St. Mary's altar society. A program will be given and refreshments will be served.

The first Saturday in August being the last day of the Carnival, the annual picnic of the Indiana society of Colorado Springs has been postponed.

Jumps From Maddened Horse and Stops It as It Was About to Leap Fence.

LONDON, July 22.—Superb horsemanship by the Maharajah Sindia of Gwalior averted a serious accident recently at a zirkhaba at Hurlingham. He was tent-pecking when owing to his turban slipping he lost control of his horse.

It dashed for a fence 40 yards away as if to leap the barrier behind which men and women were sitting, eight feet high. Realizing the peril to those in the Maharajah, nimbly dismounted, though the horse was at full gallop, and threw all his weight on to the bridge brought the animal up on its haunches within a yard and a half of the danger.

Great cheering and clapping of hands followed. Later Lord Huddington in presenting to his highness a gold cup as captain of the Indian team, complimented the Maharajah on his superb horsemanship.

The Maharajah, who is 55 years of age, is an extra A. D. C. to the king. He served as major general at the relief of Peking in 1901, when he provided a hospital ship at his own cost.

PARIS, July 22.—The Duc de Guiche, who has been identified with scientific pursuits all his life, has now become a doctor of science, thanks to his thesis on aerodynamics. When the duke began his scientific experiments he found that there was no laboratory for physical mechanics. He created one, making special journeys to Zurich and Darmstadt in order to study the model installations of the Germans. His laboratory is situated at Levallois-Perret, and contains the most up-to-date machines and instruments. Being interested in aeronautics, research, the duke set to work to study the resistance of air, and conducted his experiments in the forest of Comte Greffulhe at Bois-Boudran and on the property of the Duc de Gramont at Vallières.

His laboratory has now become a center of scientific activity and he intends to place it at the disposal of all

UNENVIABLE REPUTATION FOR RUSSIAN GUARDSHIP

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—Unenviable notoriety is being achieved by the Russian guardship Balkan, on the Archangel coast. One of her midshipmen went ashore the other day at Yokong with a couple of sailors on a shooting expedition and behaved like a mad man. After being hospitably entertained by a local boat owner, he had the village elder summoned before him and knocked him down with the butt-end of his revolver when the older indignantly rejected certain dishonorable suggestions that he had made to him. When the elder came to his senses and endeavored to escape, the midshipman fired at him with his revolver, and shot dead a Laplander and his 5-year-old daughter.

When the Balkan arrived at Archangel, quantities of furs and technical implements were stolen from her and disposed of in the town. It is believed the goods were removed in broad daylight, with the connivance of some of the Balkan's complement.

LOUIS PERSINGER, Violinist.

A recent distinguished visitor in this city was Mr. M. H. Hanson, the well-known concert manager of New York. Hanson, the eminent pianist, and Dr. Wallner, a singer of international fame, both of whom appeared in Colorado Springs two seasons ago in the Musical club series of great artist concerts, were under Mr. Hanson's management.

Mr. Hanson came to this city expressly for the purpose of concluding negotiations for the management of Louis Persinger, our gifted young townsman, in his forthcoming tour of the United States. Mr. Persinger has made himself known in Europe during the last two seasons as a violinist of the highest ability, and a phenomenal career is predicted for him. He is already ranked with Mischa Elman, Albert Spalding, Zimbalist and other of the foremost young artists, and Mr. Hanson is being congratulated on obtaining the management of a star of such magnitude.

Mr. Persinger's American tour will begin in October, 1912, and will comprise concerts in all the principal cities, as well as engagements with the leading orchestras of the country.

THE WRITER

With cynic scorn, he wrote for men to read,
Words that assailed with headless rudely;
And quivered not the heart-throb,
Nor the tear.

Wantoning idly, with weak platitudes
He rudely touched the quivering
Chords of Life,
Nor beauty gave, nor tender sympathy.

Love came to him, and dwell a fleeting While,
And sorrow clasped his hand, and Softly wept.

And life unstinted measure gave, of Pain,
And then, again he wrote for men to read.

With understanding deep, and tender
Love, Heart answered heart, in rhythm of word and song.

And soul met soul, upon the road of Life.

Club News

THE Pike's Peak chapter of the American Woman's league met Thursday evening in the studio of Mrs. Marie Forbush, 23 East Bluff street. Several important items of business were transacted. Owing to a vacancy in the office of first vice president, Mrs. Marie Forbush was elected to fill that office and Mrs. M. L. Moore was elected to the second vice presidency.

A telegram dated July 20, received by the president, Mrs. C. A. Eldredge, read as follows: "Two splendid victories today. Judgment secured against 'The Rural New Yorker' for thirty thousand dollars. Two attorneys appointed to assist the reorganization committee. This is about the end of our fight." Signed "E. C. Lewis." Notwithstanding the adverse reports concerning Mr. Lewis, founder of the league, the members are enthusiastic and steadfastly loyal.

After the business session, the treasurer, Miss Pearl B. McMillan, exhibited a beautiful silk bed quilt that the local chapter will dispose of for the benefit of the "lot fund." The

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly,

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, burn or callous, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your flat if you wish—no more pain after TIZ than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. Today there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend.—Sam A. Hoover, Progress, N. C."

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all drug stores, 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

unique quilt is the handwork of men confined in the Montana prison and is handsomely embroidered in flowers and other artistic designs. It is planned to exhibit the quilt in one of the stores.

The next meeting of the league will be held Thursday afternoon, July 27, at 3 o'clock in Robbins hall.

Young Women's Christian Association.

The Rev. Samuel Garvin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be the speaker at the vesper service of the Y. W. C. A. held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in 320 DeGraft building. Subject, "The Reward of an Upright Life." Psalm 24. Miss Eleanor Thomas will sing. All women strangers, especially, are cordially invited. The association will have a picnic supper in North Cheyenne canon next Tuesday, July 25. Parties will start from the rooms at 5 and 6 o'clock. Those desiring to go may carry their own lunches or pay 25 cents at the office and it will be furnished. Friends of the association as well as the members are cordially invited. North End W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Carrie Gledhill conducted the program of last Saturday's meeting of the North End W. C. T. U. held with Mrs. E. L. McKinnis at her home on North Weber street. Mrs. Gledhill is state and local superintendent of the department of the relation of temperance to labor and is accomplishing excellent work.

The Rev. T. S. Tabor, pastor of the M. E. church, South, delivered a fine address on the subject, "The Industrial Problem as It Affects Women and Children." Miss Viola Thompson played piano solo and the Simpson trio contributed numbers in the program. Representatives of the W. C. T. U. from Texas, California, Nebraska and Kansas were in attendance and extended cordial greetings. Ices and cake were served from a table attractively decorated with sweet peas and ferns. Mrs. A. L. Mowry and Mrs. J. H. Rohrer presided and assisting were the members of the ten of Mrs. William T. Ewing.

The next meeting of the union will be combined with that of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First M. E. church, Tuesday, August 1, and the hostess will be Mrs. N. C. Crowder, 1314 North Tejon street. The program is in charge of the union.

Working 'together

By ELBERT HUBBARD.

Once when bread and honey were up for discussion, a little girl from the city asked her country cousin this question: "Does your papa keep a bee?" And that is all there is of the story.

But let me state here a great undisputed fact—a bee alone can make no honey. In fact, a bee alone lives absolutely, its intelligence vanishes; it even forgets how to sting. Separated a distance of from three to five miles from its hive, it soon droops and dies. Bees succeed only as they work with other bees, and for other bees.

A man alone accomplishes nothing. All his thoughts and acts have a direct relationship with others. Men succeed only as they work together. Without companionship, ambition droops, courage flags, animation vanishes, reason totters, and the man dies.

Nature puts a quick limit on the horrors of solitary confinement; she unchains the reason of the prisoner, and he addresses comrades who have no existence save in his own fevered imagination.

The man who does useful work is in communication with other people, he works for others, and the thought that he is doing something for somebody sustains him.

Soldiers, who are cowards when by themselves, often fight bravely when placed on the firing line with a hero.

We succeed only as we band ourselves with others. Each man is a molecule that is needed to make up the All.

Successful employers of labor recognize this truth full well, for they always allow their helpers to work in gangs where possible.

A division superintendent in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad tells me that in painting station houses he has found that four men working together will do at least five times as much work as one man working alone, and they will also do the work better.

Mutual aid is the first factor in the evolution of humanity. A family living in the country depending upon agriculture for support is a little community. There is a father, mother, half a dozen children and the grandparents. If they lived a purely individual life each adult when he got up in the morning would start a fire for himself and prepare his own breakfast. But not so. One starts a fire, another brings in the fuel, another goes for a bucket of water, still others go out and take care of the stock. When the meal is ready all partake of it.

After breakfast each goes to work and does the thing he can best do. The girls help their mother put the house in order, they sew, wash, work in the garden or among the flowers, and keep the home presentable and sanitary. The men and boys will care for stock, plow, or cut down trees for lumber or fuel. The boy too small to work, but who can ride horseback, goes to town on errands or for the milk. The old man rocks the cradle or churns. The grandmother darna, mends and knits. Each slips naturally into the place where he belongs, taking up the task he can do best, and working for the good of all.

The one who can bestow most benefits receives most honors. In the case of the old they are honored for what they have done, and the young are honored and loved for the hope of what they will become.

It is not necessary to see the man to know what sort of a person he is. You know the storekeeper by his store, the farmer by his farm—his character is written all over it. His cattle, horses, hogs and sheep all proclaim him.

A farmer is known by his team, not by the company he keeps. As a boy I could not look at the horses tied in front of a country store and make a close guess as to the moral, mental and financial status of the owners, and I was not so awfully smart either. The bridle and saddle of a drunkard always gives him away. We knew Ragged Haggard by his clothes.

So the point is, the family whose members work together succeeds. And the success of this family is in exact ratio to the love that cements them into a whole. Of course, the more intellect you can mix with this mutual love the better; but intellect alone is too cold to fuse the dumb indifference of inanimate things and common success.

Love is the fulfillings of the law.

HEDGEHOGS AS HUNTERS

They Kill Rabbits and Hob the Nests of Ground Birds.

From the Scotsman.

When the rabbits in a burrow in my locality have come out to feed in the evening lately they have shown a nervousness and an uneasiness quite unusual among that peaceful colony, and a continuance of this unrest raised my curiosity. The rabbits' attitude did not suggest that their alarm was caused by a weasel in their vicinity, and falling all else, I suspected the presence of some poacher's lying up ferret.

Ultimately I discovered that a hedgehog was the cause of the trouble. I first observed it as a small speck in the dim light moving a good distance away, and as it approached I saw that it was crawling in a straight line for the burrow. Without hesitation it entered one of the holes, and then several rabbits emerged, looking frightened and bewildered, while not long after I heard a muffled rabbit scream, which told me that "prickles" had drawn blood. The sound came from what was apparently a shallow cut on the side of the burrow, and I took a stick next day and dug into the hole. I found the remains of a muffed self-grown rabbit, and, continuing digging, I came across what had evidently been a nest of young ones.

One has only to keep hedgehogs in captivity to know how fond they are of fresh food and eggs, and there is no doubt that they take a fairly heavy toll from the nests of ground building birds. I have had tame chickens killed by hedgehogs, and one evening last summer a hedgehog caught a frog on my garden path and killed it. The faith in hedgehogs hitherto entertained by a friend who was with me went out like a snuffed candle.

Frogs, I am inclined to think, are rather a bonne bouche in hedgehog menu, as when a friend of mine introduced some into a marshy pond on his place he has numbers of them killed by hedgehogs, and immediately the hedgehogs were destroyed the frog murders ceased. Lovers, too, seem to be as great a dainty to the hedgehog palate as the hare is to the fox.

Should One Put an End to the Other? Question Raised in Shanghai, Where Band Had Resumed Its Playing Half Hour After Vallon Was Killed; Subscribers Wrote to North China Herald Protesting About It

From the New York Evening Post.

The question of the proper course for the stewards of an aviation meet in the event of a fatality has never been adequately settled. Indeed, there seems to be no established code of ethics on that head. As a result of this lack of an accepted precedent, the death of Rene Vallon, the French aviator who fell at the Shanghai race course last May, was accompanied by scenes which many of those present termed inexcusable.

Although the wife of the aviator was in the stand, terribly prostrated, the utmost efforts of the police were not sufficient to secure her any privacy. Most culpable of all, however, it was contended by a number of citizens, who drew public attention to the chaste and business displayed at the race course yesterday afternoon.

"Sir: I am impelled by motives which I cannot restrain, but which will scarcely find expression in words, to draw public attention to the chaste and business displayed at the race course yesterday afternoon."

"M. Vallon's body having been removed, the band struck up and the racing continued."

"To those who already, with or without justification, regard the change which Shanghai is undergoing as one for the worse, the race club must have presented a spectacle of soulless, conscienceless hedonism."

Once more, to distance those responsible for the control of the race meeting as guilty of an incredible breach of the canons of civilized life."

Now, was this heartlessness? Was it thoughtlessness? Or was it simply recognition of the fact that a race course is a business enterprise, and, as such, does not need to hold itself liable to suffer by the misfortunes of others for which it cannot properly be held responsible? There would seem to be something in this last point of view, for, when all is said and done, it must be remembered that Vallon had made the flight on his own responsibility.

The Jockey club stewards had made no contract with him for a flight. They had no connection with him, and they had some hundreds of excited bettors to reckon with, men and women who had placed their money on horses scheduled to race, and who would have been indignant had the races been called off simply because a man happened to be killed on the grounds, through no fault of theirs.

Comments of Those Who Saw.

Undenially, there is something in this viewpoint. It may seem heartless, but the Paris-Madrid race was not halted by the death of a minister of France, and upon the few occasions when jockeys have been killed in horse racing, the following events have never been postponed. One might cite other instances of aviators killed at regular aviation meetings, without their deaths being permitted to militate against the continuance of the meets. For instance, when the Hon. Charles Rolls was killed at Bournemouth, despite the universal grief at the loss of a man who had done so much for the new science, the remaining events were carried out according to schedule. To come down to the most recent air race of all, that which is now in progress from London to Paris and return, although several deaths marked the opening stages, there was no attempt to have the event declared off.

No detailed description of Vallon's death has been given in this country, and as it was particularly dramatic, the account given by the North China Herald is worth quoting from. Vallon, it may be remarked, was the pioneer of aviation in China, and his death was the first to the credit of the aeroplane on Asiatic soil. The story of the disaster is printed between translations of resounding decrees from the imperial and heavenly throne, and the account of a raid of Cantonese pirates upon the market town of Kachek in the province of Hainan.

The pioneer of aviation in China, M. Rene Vallon, met his death on the race course on Saturday, in circumstances which have cast a deep gloom over the entire community," says the Herald.

"The tragedy, unhappily only one in a long list of fatalities occurring in the struggle for the mastery of the air, came in the most dramatic manner, and none of the thousands witnessing it will ever forget the cruel shock which it gave. No more painful tragedy could be found in the annals of Shanghai, for at a moment when practically the whole community were applauding his feat of aviation he was hurled to the ground from a frightful height, meeting his end while as yet the cheers had scarce had time to die away from the lips of the assembled onlookers. And what is still more distressing, it was before the eyes of his wife that the terrible accident occurred. Mme. Vallon having come to the race course to greet him after his flight, M. Vallon's death closes what promised to be a bright chapter in the present history of China, namely, the introduction of aviation, and the pioneer flights at Kiangwan, from which so much was hoped to follow, will be remembered with feelings of sorrow. Once already the gallant aviator had flown over Shanghai, and so successful had he been in his flights that people were forgetful of the dangers of the air, but when all seemed to be going well, these were brought home with redoubled force. The story of the fatality is as simple as it is sad, though of course the exact cause is difficult of explanation."

Throughout the race meeting a visit from the aeroplane had been daily anticipated, but the weather was against flying. There was an improvement on Saturday and it was announced that following upon the races there would be one of these aviation meetings which had been so popular at Kiangwan. At five o'clock all preparations had been completed at Kiangwan for the flight, and rising into the air M. Vallon set off for Shanghai.

The afternoon was dull, with occasional glimpses of sunshine, and there was little wind stirring. Higher, probably, than he had ever flown before, in this district, M. Vallon rose, until when above the railway station he is estimated to have been at least 1,000 feet up. From here he steered his course in a circle, taking a wide sweep, and approaching the race course from the northwest. By this time he had been observed in the settlement, and from every quarter eyes were focused upon him.

"The seventh race of the afternoon had just finished when those in the enclosure caught sight of the biplane approaching, and in a moment all interest in the winner had disappeared. Far above the heads of the throng Vallon came, certainly between 500 and 600 feet in the air, and traveling at a tremendous pace. The biplane has a speed of between seventy and eighty kilometres an hour, and it was a grand sight to see the machine speeding through space. Soon the whirr of the motor could be heard, and in a few moments he was sailing high over the race club."

"At this moment a great cheer rose from the crowd, every eye being fixed on the aeroplane with the gallant aviator sitting there quite cool and unmoved. In a line above the home straight he passed then circled away to the south and round the track. Soon he was again over the race club, and in the meantime he had descended somewhat, but was still about 500 feet from earth. The picture was fascinating, and the crowd was thoroughly enjoying the spectacle, cheering ever and again, when suddenly there came a shattering sensation."

Aeroplane Wavered and Fell.

"For a second time the aeroplane had flown along the home straight, but when within fifty or a hundred yards of the turn, it was observed to quiver. It seemed to descend a short distance rapidly as if the aviator were planning down, then there was a slight cant to the right, followed by a heavy lurch to the left. For a moment it looked as if the aeroplane were to recover itself, but this was not to be. The machine hung for a second or two; then, the left plane swinging down and pointing to the ground, the great structure crashed down. With increasing impetus as it neared the ground, the machine struck with a hoarse thud, the planes doubling up as if crushed by a sledge hammer. It was all over."

"For a second or two the crowd stood motionless, horror-stricken at the spectacle, and then there was a wild rush for the ruined aeroplane. The police, followed by men and women, leaped the barricades and tore along the track as fast as their feet could carry them, all anxious to render assistance if that were still of any avail. There was, however, little hope that M. Vallon had survived the awful fall, and a glance showed that death had been instantaneous. The crowd surged around the wrecked plane, urged on by a morbid curiosity, and the few police on the scene had their work cut out to cope with them. There was only a sufficient number of police on the ground to look after the gates in the ordinary course, and they were much too few in number to keep the crowd back. Assistance was, however, obtained from a number of bluejackets who were present, and who, on being requested by the authorities, readily backed up the police in their efforts to maintain order."

"The cause of the accident can, of course, not be stated with certainty, but it is more than probable that the currents of the air, treacherous in the extreme and more dangerous to the aviator than the currents of the sea to the navigator, were responsible for the tragedy. It is pointed out that the wind on Saturday was of a most uncertain quality. One theory of the accident is that in rounding the bend M. Vallon was caught in an unexpected current, and descended somewhat to try to avoid it. It, however, swept the aeroplane off its balance and then the awful fall took place. The theory is also advanced that the current of air sweeping past it made that has been termed a hole in the air. This would immediately cause the nose of the plane to tip, the propeller would then be driven the machine full speed to the earth. Whatever was the cause, this seems certain: The aeroplane went over on its side, and M. Vallon was flung over. He alighted on his feet, was flung over on his left side, and the shock to his heart caused instantaneous death. When picked up it was seen that the watch he wore at his wrist, now covered with earth and with the face broken, had stopped at 13 minutes past 5—the moment of his death.

"Kinks" in the Wires.

"The suggestion that the sudden collapse of the biplane may possibly have been due to defects in its fittings has been put forward by Mr. Aveyard, chief engineer to Messrs. Telge & Schroeder. Mr. Aveyard had occasion thoroughly to examine the biplane at Kiangwan on Friday afternoon, and, having formerly been engaged in the British army balloon factory at Aldershot, is able to speak with some expert knowledge. He points out that the frame of the biplane was rather badly damaged in transit from France, and new parts had to be obtained. When examining the machine Mr. Aveyard particularly noticed the wires. When the biplane is in motion the tension upon all its parts is no great, but only high-grade plane wire will bear the strain. Ordinarily steel wire, however, purchased in Shanghai, had been used. There were 'kinks' plainly to be seen. It seemed to him, also, that the wooden framework was in places rather badly fitted together. The sockets into which the rods, holding together the planes, are fixed did not appear sufficiently deep, thus weakening the joints in a part of the machine where strength is essential. Three possible explanations thus suggested themselves. One, that M. Vallon may have lost control of the descending plane. Secondly, collapse of the pieces which had had to be fixed temporarily to the ends of each plane. Thirdly, the failure of the material used in refitting the machine to stand the pressure. The strain on the whole frame is at its highest when the machine is being turned."

In the earlier part of the afternoon Mme. Vallon had arrived at the race course with the object of greeting her husband after his flight. She had taken a seat on the roof of the Cricket Club, and when the aeroplane fell was watching it. On seeing what had happened the poor woman fainted, and was brought into the race club in a fainting condition by Dr. Presson. At this stage the behavior of the crowd, which had not been too good before, became absolutely disgraceful. Men and women crowded round the unhappy lady, witnessing her grief, nor would they keep back until forced by the police. Mme. Vallon was hurried into the club house, and shortly after was driven away in a carriage, prostrated with grief. On Sunday she was reported to be ill, suffering no doubt from the effects of the awful tragedy she had witnessed.

He Had Pleased the Chinese.

The late M. Vallon was a slightly built man—a Parisian—and was 31 years of age. He had taken up aviation only about 18 months ago, and in the meetings in which he took part at home had achieved no little success. He had flown at the Bordeaux meeting in the beginning of 1910, and also at Lyons and Issy-les-Moulineaux near Paris, where he had his schooling in aviation. He arrived in China on January 19 last, and after much disconcerting work, caused by the damage which was done to the machines on the way out, he succeeded in making several successful flights. The Chinese swarmed down to Kiangwan to see him, and he won admiration from all. The French municipal council offered him a prize to fly over the exposition, and he made a flight on the evening of April 24. This was his second flight over Shanghai, and how disastrously it ended is too well known.

From the outset the Shanghai community displayed the keenest interest in his flights, and, although the meteorological conditions several times precluded it, M. Vallon at last achieved a flight from Kiangwan to Shanghai and back again. This was only as recently as today's flight, and it was a wonderful performance, in that darkness had set in before the aviator returned to his hangar. For that performance the French municipality presented M. Vallon with a prize.

"The Chinese authorities, military and civil, were charmed with the performance that the late aviator had accomplished. At some of his flights various members of the consular body of China were present, and they all expressed themselves as exceedingly satisfied. On Sunday, March 26, Gen. Hsu, commanding the Nanking division of the modern army, was specially deputed by the Chinese government to witness M. Vallon's flights. The late aviator made five ascents, and at the last, the general observed that it was hardly possible to estimate the usefulness of the machine in time of war. And if the Chinese government accepted the flying machine for military purposes, the makers of M. Vallon's machine would be invited to China to build a number."

"M. Vallon considered his machine perfect as far as known ingenuity could suggest. It was a Sommer biplane, and although it only weighed 750 pounds, it was capable of carrying a weight of 2,000 pounds."

Some Indignant Replies.

The various letters received by the editor of the North-China Herald showed that a number of the people of Shanghai were disgusted by the way the death of Vallon was received. They also show that "Victor Vacuus," "Old Subscriber," and the rest of the tribe flourish as heartily in the eastern tropics as in the midst of the journalistic-ridden west. Two additional letters follow:

"Sir:—Sorrow for the dead and respect for misfortune are not sentiments that need be suggested or enforced. They are the outcome of a charitable disposition, a charitable nature, or gentle education, and never fail to assert themselves spontaneously. The lamentable want of feeling displayed at the race course, after the tragic death that occurred last Satur-

THIS CANNING SEASON

From the Pittsburg Post.

"The kitchenette is a small but valuable piece of household furniture a woman can carry in her hat. At least some of the hats still worn look like enough not only for a kitchenette, but for an entire house," said the Green Goods. Man as he made motions like a lazy man using the cleaner on a rag carpet.

"Now is the season of the year to can, but feminine folk should be careful about what they can. Be careful in canning nappies not to permit it to burn. Burning develops a gas which prevents digestion. It is always safe to can suds at any time of the year. It is likely, more suds are canned than any other fruit."

"To secure the best results from the scrubbing brush, apply a little old-fashioned elbow grease. Never permit a scrubbing brush to remain too long on the top shelf in the pantry."

"Sponges should be washed often. The best method is to boil them in a pot with macaroni or homemade German noodles. The macaroni or the noodles will absorb the germs. Most sponges, especially those found in barber shops, should be destroyed before using."

"Some careless people boil potatoes in hot water. In boiling suds their eyes should be removed. If they do not see themselves being dumped into a pot of boiling water, they will complain. I know one lady chef that boils suds in butter milk. She says it is soothing to the potatoes and they really enjoy such a boiling. If the potatoes give up willingly to be boiled they possess a much finer flavor when served."

Under these circumstances I think it is fair to ask the stewards to state the reasons which induced them to

LEAVES HIS MONEY TO A WIDOW IN IRELAND

EL PASO, Tex., July 22.—James Kinella of Durango, Colo., who died suddenly in the police station Friday afternoon left a will in his last will which said:

"Send my bank money, with Walshe Pillew county, Kilkenny, Ireland."

Officers are looking into the affair. Kinella came here to El Paso, after selling his ranch for $3000, and indulged in a protracted round of dissipation, which culminated in his death from heart failure.

RANCHER KILLED BY TRAIN

PUEBLO, July 22.—While returning to his ranch near Eden, early this morning, a train struck and killed a rancher, and a woman and child were injured.

The train was a Denver and Grand Central train. The woman and child were found by a neighbor of the road.

KANSAS CITYANS DROWN

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 22.—Dixie of Kansas City, 15, and a daughter, aged 14, were drowned in the upsetting of a boat in Lake Michigan at Muskegon park today. One son, aged 11, was rescued.

AY-AN RESCUE AT PRINCE IN CAT

PORT AU PRINCE, July 22.—With President Simon on a sickbed, the government troops disrupted all towns in the north of Haiti in the hands of the revolutionaries and the advance guard of the revolutionaries pressing upon the capital. Additions bid for to see a new administration in control of the country at an early date.

The advance columns of the revolutionaries occupied Miravalles and Las Cañas important places about 30 miles to the north of Port au Prince. It is said that several days ago to the insurgents, while temporarily successful, offered no resistance when the main force of the rebels attacked the towns.

The chief of the capital, also in arms. A serious rising occurred in the capital. The revolutionaries were not questioned in the capital. The capital is in a state of disorder. The town is in a state of confusion. The town is in a state of confusion. The town is in a state of confusion.

GIDEON HEAD RE-ELECTED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 22.—In the National convention of the Order of Gideons a unanimous order among commercial travelers today. National President A. H. Moore of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was re-elected.

Atlanta was selected for the 1912 convention.

MOVE ALLEGED WIFE MURDERER FOR SAFETY

RICHMOND, Va., July 22.—Accused by the coroner's jury today of murdering his young wife, Henry Clay Beattie Jr., is tonight in the Henry county jail, apparently under guard. He is still smoking cigarettes. He calmly insists upon the truth of the story he told last Tuesday night when he drove his auto into Richmond holding the body of his wife in his arms.

Seventeen-year-old Beulah Binford, the girl whose relations with Beattie are believed to have led to the tragedy, and Paul D. Beattie, cousin of the accused, who testified at the coroner's inquest that he bought for Henry Clay Beattie Jr. the shotgun with which the killing was done, are held in jail as witnesses.

Public feeling has been so aroused by the developments in the tragedy that the authorities were afraid to keep Beattie in the Chesterfield county jail after the coroner's jury returned its verdict placing the crime upon him this afternoon. Rearranging him on the charge of murder, the police hurried him through the great crowd which had gathered during the inquest and took him into Richmond before Magistrate Jacob he had waived the preliminary examination and he was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury which meets August 20.

BANK STATEMENT

NEW YORK, July 22.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks had $16,859,450 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $7,111,500 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week.

NEW YORK WOMAN'S AWFUL DAMAGE DONE THEORETICALLY IN "WAR"

NEWPORT R.I., July 22.—The battle of Block Island, the principal engagement during the intimate war off this port by ships of the Atlantic fleet has brought to naval officers a keen realization of the preflight efficiency of submarine forces.

While the flagship Connecticut of the invaders was creeping in upon the defenders with her big guns in readiness theoretically to blow the enemy out of the water one of the defender's submarines, the Grayling, bobbed up alongside.

The Grayling unperceived had stolen under water to the battleship's side and had theoretically pierced the net and blown the flagship to atoms.

Let's Value of Mir.

From Health
Man has been aptly described as an animal that laughs. This faculty places him on a higher plane than the rest of the animal kingdom—differentiates him from them.

Now nature is not in the habit of making mistakes and when she endowed man with this faculty it was because the exercise of it was essential to his well-being.

Mirth is absolutely necessary to a well rounded existence. It has a hygienic value that cannot be overestimated. But in the rush and battle of modern life it bids fair to be crowded out of our scheme of existence.

The monotonous grind of business life occupies the mind, but does not satisfy it. The wearying round of social functions may temporarily distract the mind but engender ennui. Hence the popularity of the comedy and the fit upon the stage today.

It is the natural recoil of human nature from the deadly dullness of monotony, the inevitable rebound after the pursuit of the commonplace. It is the cry of the human heart for its inalienable right—the right to mirth.

It is a well established fact in agriculture that a succession of uniform crops will in time exhaust the very best soil and it is just as certain that the daily repetition of a monotonous occupation will wear out the best man or woman that ever lived.

Occasional change of employment for either body or mind will effect much more pleasurable recreation is the panacea for physical or mental weariness.

We are apt to regard the Puritans as objects for censure on account of the austerity of their lives, the rigor of their religious observances, and the manner in which they frowned upon amusement in any form, but it behooves us to look to ourselves and seriously consider whether the restless pursuit of business and fashion as manifested today is not destined to bring about a similar condition of existence by banishing mirth from our lives.

Even as the soil needs the application of fertilizing material to counteract the destructive effects of crop succession so does the human being need the refreshing effect of recreation to counteract the monotonous grind of average daily life.

But it is not alone the votaries of business or pleasure that are in danger of succumbing to a mindless existence. It is the countless thousands who seem condemned to lives of ceaseless toil unrelieved by amusement.

An existence of joyless drudgery saps the very springs of health, even at an age when they can draw upon their inner resources for hope too often thwarted finally withdraws its aid. The tongue may praise of consolation but the heart cannot be deceived, and gradually the strength of life ebbs away.

It is no exaggeration to say that fully one-half of our city children are starving for recreation—not for the means of existence, but for its object, which civilization has defrauded them of—the right to be amused.

They feel a want of which they know not the nature and which breed only a morbid restlessness. The only thing that helps them to forget their ennui. They would be healthier if they were happier.

Little Oddie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Beefor Pa took us hunting he was all the time talking about how he used to be a guide in the pine woods and up in the grate North west. That was in the days when I was just a big rough man, sed Pa. What are you now? sed Ma a polished diamond.

Pa just looked at Ma and sighed. "A I was saying, Pa sed in the old days when I was a big, rough man, I used to be a trapper & guide in places where now even Indians had never been before. How did you know that Indians had never been there?" asked Ma. Backus thus told me an afterward, sed Pa, but that is neither here nor there. Back in them days I knew everything there is to know about woodcraft. I knew the way the wind was going to blow the next day. I knew the sounds & sights of the grate wilderness as few if any men ever knew them before or since. I knew the call of the wild partridge & the drumming of its mate. I knew where the red fox & the black bear had their lairs & many other things which I have never forgotten. I guess the only part you ever really remembered, sed Ma, was the part about drinking places. I suppose sed Ma, that when we got up in the woods you would astonish all the natives. You bet I will sed Pa. I will show them things about there own native woods that this never even dreamed were there.

As soon as we got to the place where Pa wanted to hunt he met a very smart old man named William Keener. Mister Keener had been a hunter & fisher all his life & he told Pa he would be glad to take us out & show us where the partridge were. Vary well my man, sed Pa, my son & I will walk slow so you can keep up with us, becaus we are yunker than you.

The first two miles we all walked all right, then Mister Keener started up a steep hill. Ha, sed Pa to me this is the life, Bobbie, out here in the howling wilderness where there is nothing of the city to contaminate this is the way I used to go up the hills. Just like a mountain goat. I hoap the poor old man will be able to keep up with us. After we had gone up the hill a little ways Pa began to puff & he got awful red in the face. Mister Keener & I got was ached & he sed to me I guess you & me will have to stop & wait for sure father. Doant you do it, I sed to him, he is always bragging that he is a grate woodsman & we will just go on & keep him puffing. Myabe we can lose him, I sed. So we just kep going & we cud hear Pa puffing & puffing, louder & louder. Helloo, hollerer, Pa cum back here, you folks, & see this beautifol mountain scenery. Shat we go back? sed Mister Keener. Not a chance, I sed, not a chance. We will forge ahead thru the wilderness, the way father used to do when he was wate no Indians had ever been before. So we kep walking & after we had got to the top of the hill we found a spring. We had a nice drink of water & sat down to wait for Pa. After we waited half a hour, poor Pa (aim along) Where is pure gun? sed Mister Keener. I lost it sed Pa. It fell down in a ravine. It was only a cheap gun, anyway, sed Pa. Pa cud hardly walk.

Then we went back to the ravine & the poor old man with Pa had felt so sorry for ran down the ravine & got the gun & ran all the way up again, & he never puffed onst.

I told Ma all about it & she galy me a quarter. Pa galy me a quarter jest becaus that not to tell so I have half a dollar.

DEATH IN A HANDSHAKE

From the London Globe

To speak of poison rings at once conjures up thoughts of Luccresia Borgia and her gentle methods of eliminating those of her entourage whom she considered undesirable, but these rings were used by several far greater, though less notorious than she.

Hannibal killed himself by means of a poison ring. Demosthenes possessed one, and it is recorded by Pliny that when Crassus had stolen the treasure from beneath the throne of Capitolus Jupiter "the guardian of the shrine" broke the gem of his ring in his mouth and forthwith died. Thus who have seen a poison ring will have noticed what a formidable and facile weapon it made, for it was so arranged that the fatal poison could be inflicted while shaking hands.

A Few Paraphrases
By WEX JONES

Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered, weak and weary, over a copy of African Game Trails, while I nodded, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping at the door. "This some collector," I murmured; "let him wait." Ah, distinctly I remember it was in December, and you know how nervous a fellow is after too much Christmas cheer. Why the rustling of a curtain thrilled me with fantastic terror, so that to stop the beating of my heart I kept repeating "If I recover from this one I'll stick to water the rest of my life. As for spirits, nevermore."

Finally I opened the door, and there was nobody there. Then, feeling very jumpy, I turned back into the room, and blessed if I didn't hear the tapping again. I took two bromo seltzers, but they didn't seem to do any good, for I heard the same tapping on the window. Finally I threw the window open and in came a raven. Then I knew I "had them." But the bird seemed to hop upon a bust of Pallas, and I asked him what his name was. Quoth the raven, "Never again!"

Much I marvelled to hear the fowl talk so plainly, and the name came in so aptly that I marvelled still more. But the raven, sitting lonely on the placid bust, spoke only that one word, as if his soul in that one word he had outpoured. Nothing further then he uttered, not a feather then he fluttered, till I scarcely more than muttered, "Have another highball!" Quoth the bird said, "Never again!"

Startled at the stillness broken, by reply so aptly spoken, "Doubtless," said I, "what it utters is its only stock and store, caught from some unhappy master whom unmerciful disaster followed fast and followed faster still. If bird or devil, can't I have a couple more? Tell me truly, I implore. Tell me is a cocktail harmful? Tell me, tell me, I implore." Quoth the raven, "Never again!"

"So that word our sign of parting, bird or fiend!" I shrieked, upstarting, "Beat it from the bust of Pallas!" Then I wildly tried to bat it, then I slung the lamp shade at it, and I smashed the furniture, when the raven came with a wagon, and I left my home, and I'm being melancholic in the chamber alcoholic of the place they call Bellevue of the Hospital Bellevue. But I often deeply ponder of the Jim-Jam raven, yonder, and my brain goes winder-wander while I mutter "Never again!"

EVENTS

At the Colorado Springs Golf club have engaged a large portion of the time of many prominent in the social life of the city, lately. The tennis tournament the past week attracted a crowd of enthusiasts who were regaled at tea each afternoon from 4 until 5:30 in the club rooms.

Tuesday, Mrs. W. Kennon Jewett was the hostess assisted by Mrs. Horace Gray Lunt, Mrs. Percy Hagerman, Mrs. Spencer Penrose and Mrs. Clarence Carpenter. Wednesday's show-ers waived the pleasant event, but on Thursday, Mrs. James McK. Ferriday was the hostess assisted by Mrs. Eugene P. Shove, Mrs. Sidford F. Hamp, Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter, Mrs. Horace Fletcher Lunt and Miss Palmer.

Mrs. Rebecca J. Lowe was the hostess Friday, assisted by Mrs. Robert W. Chisholm, Mrs. Harold C. Harmon, Mrs. P. F. Gildea, the Misses Dillon, Miss Harriett Scholander, Miss Ethel Gordon, Miss Gladys McConnell, and Miss May Kyle. Yesterday, Mrs. Jewett was again the hostess assisted by Mrs. Lunt, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Penrose, Mrs. Hagerman and others.

Fete at Claremont.

At "Claremont," the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Baldwin, at Broadmoor, last Wednesday, an elaborate lawn-fete was given in celebration of the fourteenth birthday anniversary of Charles A. Baldwin, Jr. Although the rain interfered with the elaborate plan for tents and booths upon the lawn, still the guests were delighted in the rough house and partook of the ice and cakes served as refreshments. About 100 grown people and 60 children received invitations, and the Masters Nathaniel and Crawford Hill came from Denver to participate in the delightful event.

Elegant Dinner Dance.

One of the most exclusive and fashionable society events of the season was brilliantly given last night by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Penrose at their handsome residence on West Dale street. In welcoming their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Penrose were assisted by their daughter, Miss Gladys McMillan, who has just returned from Europe.

The guests numbering about 50 sat down to dinner at 8 o'clock in the semi-out-of-doors pavilion over the gymnasium and afterwards danced in the gymnasium. Barnes orchestra furnishing the enjoyable concert and dance program.

Eastern Visitors Honored.

In honor of Mrs. Charles F. Wood and Mrs. Augustus Wood of Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. W. Kennon Jewett beautifully entertained at luncheon Friday. Exquisite flowers, selected from the Jewett gardens, were used in decorating the rooms.

Those invited to meet the eastern visitors were Mrs. Franklin Bartlett, Mrs. James McK. Ferriday, Mrs. Alfred H. Hunt, Mrs. Thomas S. Curtin, Mrs. Henry Russell Wray, Mrs. S. J. Solly, Mrs. H. E. Waterman, Mrs. Charles N. Foulke, Mrs. Irving Howbert, the Misses Dillon of Los Angeles, Miss Howbert and Miss May Kyle.

Luncheon for Cousin.

For her cousin, Mrs. George Cargill of Chicago, Ill., Mrs. William O'Brien, 1210 Wood avenue, entertained a few ladies at luncheon last Wednesday. Mrs. Sargent will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien for about a fortnight.

Mrs. Magruder's "At Home."

Mrs. A. C. Magruder held a largely attended "at home" last Wednesday afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock at her residence on North Nevada avenue, to meet her sister-in-law, Mrs. Magruder, wife of the Rev. ## From Canon and Crag

IN THE heart of a mountain canon, almost concealed within a dense growth of pine and fir and silver aspen, stands a deserted cabin, built of pine logs and slabs fast going to decay. The cabin door is fallen in, and vines and weeds strive to hide it away from sight where it lies on the floor. Woodbine and mountain clematis full of creamy blossoms, cling to the brown, worn eastern slabs and creep in at the open window and between the crumbling logs. Through the doorway the sunlight slants in golden bars, through silvery spider webs and dust, and shines on brown pine needles heaped upon the floor, fallen from many summers, through the broken roof. Birds build beneath the sagging eaves and in the old tumbled-down chimney, and sit undisturbed through the dusky gloom of the little cabin in the silent woods. Tin, bright-eyed chipmunks scurry and flash over the worn doorstep, chattering noisily; blue jays call loudly from the pines; wild roses grow in a sweet wilderness of bloom, close to the brown walls, and the pink petals drift over the decaying logs. Ferns, rank and tall, blow in at the window, branches of spruce and fir cling close to the broken roof, and through all the still summer days the warm glowing sunlight bathes in golden glory the deserted little cabin in the far-off lonely hills.

excellent send off and she is now preparing for a concert tour through the principal cities of Europe. Emily is a genius; to hear her interpret the Brahms concerto is never to forget it. The critics especially praise her rendition of Wienawski's polonaise "The most difficult number of musical literature."

A Distinguished Visitor.

Miss Kate Stevens of London, England, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Williamson of Ivywild for a couple of days last week. Miss Stevens is head mistress of the Montem street Central Council school and she was selected to convey the fraternal greetings to the National Educational Association at its recent meeting in California on behalf of the London Teachers' association, expressing the earnest desire that there may be permanent peace between the peoples of the two countries. Miss Stevens also gave greetings on behalf of the National Union of Teachers. It will be recalled by many in Colorado Springs that Miss Stevens visited here for a few days in 1906, while in this country on a similar mission. She is under engagement to speak in Denver and several other cities before returning home.

Pueblans Enjoy Outing.

Last Sunday, quite a party of Pueblo people were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Boggess of Pueblo at a picnic dinner out in Stratton park and afterwards participated in a burro ride up the rapids.

Some of those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wessel, Mr. and Mrs. George Hill, Mrs. Bell Beardon, Mrs. Mary Bingham, Mrs. Rose Stockdale, Mrs. John Rogers and son of Oklahoma City, Miss Kate Brown, Miss Hazel Ross, Miss Alma Rickard, Miss Helen Musgrove, Miss Harriet Ferrill, Miss Helen Wagon, Miss Wood, Miss White, Mr. O. ## Entertained at Ivywild.

In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Butler, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Williamson of Ivywild gave a dinner of handsome appointments last Friday evening. Covers were laid for 10. A mound of pink and white sweet peas and gypsophylla beautified the table. Saturday, Mrs. Williamson delightfully entertained at luncheon in honor of Mrs. Robert W. Stevens of Lincoln, Neb., her house guest. There were eight ladies encircling the table, which was gay with red snapdragons and ferns.

The birthday anniversaries of Mr. John T. Burns and Mr. Charles B. Lauterman were duly celebrated by 15 to 20 guests of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Williamson last Monday evening. Music and conversation made the time fly swiftly until a course luncheon at about 10 o'clock. The hostess prepared two delicious birthday cakes and decorated each one with 15 candles, and the gussing as to the real ages of the guests of honor created great amusement.

Picnic at Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hudson and Mrs. Frank M. Weather gave an enjoyable picnic supper last Thursday night in the lower pavilion at Stratton park in compliment to the Misses Lula, Ella and Grey Laughter of Memphis, Tenn., sisters of Mrs. Hudson. The guests numbering about 35 were seated around a long table decorated with mounds of fruit and bouquets of bridal wreath, clematis and baby's breath. The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. A. J. Deat and Mrs. M. O. Shivers.

Among those present were: Miss Curd, Miss Rosenbloom, Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Marjorie Cook, Clarkdale, Miss; Miss Augusta Stacy, Greenville, Miss.; Miss Curd, Missouri; Miss Ethel Weathers, Miss Essie May Cox, Miss Mary Laine, Miss Marguerite Robertson, Miss Helen Shafer, Miss Frances Dvuz, Dr. M. O. Shivers, Messrs. Paul and William Cook, Clarkdale, Miss; Walter Deal, Igals, George Johnson, McDowell, Thomas McGuire, Skinner, Robert Schird and others.

Fairy Operetta.

"The Rescue of the Princess Winsome," the clever fairy operetta presented last Thursday evening in the High School auditorium for the benefit of the Colorado Springs day nursery was a success in all particulars. There was a large and appreciative audience and about 140 was realized. Among those taking part were: Janet McGowan, a three-course luncheon was Rae, Frank Buffington, Stewart Arms, Freda Schmitt, Frank Cotten, George Griffith, Eleanor Chamberlain, Helen Harmon, Smith Yates, Hermine Schmitt, Esther Hartley, Dorothy Marks, Elizabeth Ashburner,

TO BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Every woman who experiences the pleasure of a perfect complexion by using a good skin cream, will find that the skin can be made smooth and clear by using an anarol retting lotion made by dissolving two ounces of anarol in a pint of hot water. Use this lotion after cleansing and drying the skin, rubbing lightly until it is absorbed. A few times applying this lotion will remove all impurities and give to the skin a fine, healthy, and rosy glow. Once you give your skin this lotion a fair trial you will not resort to powder or rouge. This is especially fine to protect the skin from tan or sunburn.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

A B C. Exercise will develop muscles but not tissues hence the impossibility of rounding out the form by this method. The Vaucara treatment is about the only way in which scrawny lines and hollows can be banished and as you can prepare this at little cost it is worth trying. Here is how to make it: Dissolve one and a half cups of sugar in a pint of water, to which add one ounce of glycerine. Take a tablespoonful before meals. This energizes the delicate tissues to healthy activity and once these respond it is only a matter of a short time before your figure is plump and symmetrical as nature intended it to be. Any drugstore will supply glycerine but if you wish it upon receipt of stamped envelope give you the address of a chemist making the pure glycerine and who will mail it in a plain wrapper.

ZOO AND LAKES TODAY; DENVER BEATS WYOMING

FOUR LIGHTWEIGHTS AFTER WOLGAST'S CROWN

THE W. S. LEAPNE FOR BAY AND CA

With Pitchers Van Stone and Hastings in fine shape, a promising new southpaw box artist from the Wisconsin league, ready to go in an emergency, and the strongest team lined up since the Zoo organized, three years ago, Alderman, Coughlin's swat artists are ready today for the big game of the season, which comes off tomorrow afternoon, when the Zoo lock horns with the Denver Grizzlies, the leaders in the Western league.

This afternoon they will tangle with the fast Lakeside team of Denver, and though the recent aggregation is one of the fastest teams in the capital city, the Zoo, with their strengthened lineup, expect to take them down the line in continuing fashion, and at the same time get in some good practice for the struggle with the leaguers tomorrow. The Lakeside team recently played the Cottrells 2 to 1, and will put in their crack box artist, the Zoo, as a victory over the local team would be a big advertisement for them.

Hastings will start the game for the Zoo, and as he has been at work for the last two weeks getting his spitball under good control, the visitors will have trouble getting to the first sack. Hastings will probably be worked only a few innings, however, as Manager Galt wants to have him in reserve for Monday, in case Van Stone should weaken, and the fans will have a chance to see Walsh, the new southpaw, in action.

The team will line up today about as last Sunday, Riddons going to left and Peters working behind the bat. Lefty, an Oklahoma league player, will probably be given a chance in the infield.

Interest, of course, centers in Monday's game, and from all indications, everybody in the Pike's Peak region who is at all interested in baseball will be on hand when Empire Rathgeb starts the game at 3:15. The Grizzlies are not only the leaders in the Western league race, but are the greatest hitting team the Western league has had in years, while the pitching staff is one of the big league caliber. Manager Hendricks has half a dozen crack twirlers, and no matter whom he puts in, the Zoo will have a hard nut to crack. However, there are several players on the local team who would easily hold their own in the Western in the hitting line, and if only they get started on one of their famous batting bees, the leaguers will have a hard time stopping them.

Wunkle, one of the crack catchers in this part of the country, has been secured for the backstop work on account of Riddons' arm being not fully recovered from an injury sustained several weeks ago, and the latter, on account of his heavy work with the willow, will be used in the outfield.

With Van Stone in the box, the leaguers will face a twirler who is a puzzle to any of them, and unless the local crack has an off day, he is sure to keep the hits well scattered and to hold them down in a fashion that will make it anybody's game from start to finish. Van Stone's experience in the Pacific Coast league was valuable, and he has learned some of the inside of twirling in league company which will be of use tomorrow. Many local fans figure that with Van Stone in the box, and the slugging team that will be behind him, the Zoo have a good chance to slip one over on the Grizzlies, but, anyhow, the strength of the local team assures that the game will be a hot one.

The lineups for the two games will be along this line:
Today's batting order:
Lakeside—McKnight, rf, Sullivan, ss, Baker, lf, Peterson, cf, Maloney, lb, McKee, 2b, Greenleaf, 3b, Steibel, c, Dixon, p, Gross, p.

Zoo—Galt, cf, Warbritton, rf, Hastings, p, Counts, 3b, Riddons, lf, Kelly, 1b, Friel, 2b, Ady, Basen, ss, Peters, c.

Monday's batting order:
Zoo—Galt, cf, Riddons, rf, Hastings, lf, Counts, 3b, Wunkle, c, Kelly, 1b, Friel, 2b, Ady, Basen, ss, Van Stone, p.

Lakeside—Lloyd, 2b, Gilmore, lf, Cassidy, rf, Beall, cf, Quillin, 3b, Lindsay, 1b, Coffey, ss, Frambes, c, O'Brien, p, Schreiber, p.

On the left is Freddie Welsh, the Englishman who says he is ready to wager a side bet of $10,000 that he is the champion's master, and who is to meet him, according to present plans, next Thanksgiving day. In the center is Matty Baldwin, another Britisher, who holds a decision over Welsh. Above at the right is knockout Brown, who claims precedence because of his two newspaper decisions over Wolgast in short distance bouts. Below is Mackie McFarland, the Chicago mauler, considered by many to be the greatest little man in the ring today. The trouble with McFarland in the past has been his refusal to make the weight demanded by Wolgast, who insists that his opponents come within the lightweight limit. All four of these boys have stacked up as first-class fighters, but the question is: Can any one of them knock the chip from the champion's shoulder and get away with it?

Pirates pay $22,500 for Marty O'Toole, St. Paul pitcher.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 22.—Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club of the National league, today purchased Marty O'Toole, St. Paul's spitball pitcher, for $22,500, the highest price ever paid for a ball player in the history of organized ball.

All of the bidders dropped out of the running with the exception of Dreyfuss and Mike Cantillon, who was acting in the role of agent for Charles Comiskey of the Chicago Americans.

Breenahan of St. Louis started the bidding by offering $15,000 for O'Toole and Kelly, his catcher. Cantillon offered $20,000 as a final bid, the limit set by the Chicago magnate. After some haggling, Dreyfuss "split the difference" and proffered Lennon a check for $22,500. After some parley this was accepted.

O'Toole was summoned and announced himself as satisfied to go to Pittsburgh, but said he would like to have Kelly go with him. Dreyfuss is said to have offered $5,000 for Kelly, but Lennon is desirous of realizing at least $7,500 for him.

The contract calls for delivery at the end of the American association season.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Previous to the purchase of Marty O'Toole from the St. Paul club of the American association today for $22,500, the highest price ever paid for a baseball player was $12,500, which the Philadelphia club of the American league gave for Pitcher "Lefty" Russell. He was purchased from Baltimore last year.

Among other players for whom large prices were paid is Pitcher "Rube" Marquard of the New York club of the National league. The Indianapolis club of the American association was given $11,000 for his release.

The Chicago American league club paid Providence a reported price of $10,000 for Russell Blackburne, a shortstop.

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The pen is mightier than the sword.

This is a gem of wisdom that crops up every now and again and fades away unchallenged.

Now we have Freddie Welsh, British Queensbury exponent, who is eager to prove that the squash is mightier than the stick.

Freddie is to be Ad Wolgast's next opponent in a championship fight to be held Thanksgiving Day at Los Angeles. Freddie is a vegetarian. At a banquet given by Wolgast the day after the fight with Moran, all the guests with one exception, regaled themselves on milk-fed chicken, terrapin and Virginia ham. The exception was Freddie Welsh, and as some one remarked, he appeared to be pecking at the table decorations. His peck de resistance was a sheet of water-proof.

Freddie intends to train for Wolgast on strict vegetarian principles. He says he has been a "vegetarian" ever since he began fighting and that if he ever strayed from the path he had marked out for himself, it was because he could not obtain the food he desired. In training camp the different Freddie always has a purchasing agent who explores the nearest market for Brazilian nuts, raisin checked apples and succulent lettuce.

He resents the imputation that, because of his notions of diet, he will be unable to manage with a vegetable cook instead of a high salaried chef. Freddie says he thrives better and fights better on bloodless viands.

Welsh points out that while he is a vegetarian, he is not a pacifist. He speaks of as an English or Welsh boxer, he learned the trade of the ring in the United States. Here is the way Freddie tells the story of his pugilistic life.

"I was taught boxing at school in the country, but I gained all my experience on this side of the water. Any thing I know of professional pugilism was learned in America. I had my first professional engagement in Philadelphia on December 11, 1893. I had modeled myself after the best of the men that I have met. At first I was imbued with the notion that the only way to box was in the old English way, the straight from the shoulder style.

"They don't fight that way over here as I have discovered. I have not changed my ideas as to the benefits of boxing as taught in my own country, but when in Rome it is advisable to do as the Romans do. I have learned to blend the English or orthodox style and the unorthodox style of the American ring and as a consequence, I am quite at home with almost any kind of a boxer I may be sent against."

Freddie thinks Ad Wolgast a wonderful little ringman, but at the same time believes that Freddie Welsh carries as many guns as the Wisconsin wildcat. "They say that Wolgast can force any kind of an opponent to loosen up and start fighting," said Welsh. "Judging from what has happened in his fights there is good reason for looking at it that way, but it seems to me that Ad's opponents feel themselves in a dilemma when he covers up and think that it is up to them to begin leading. I do not know, of course, that it is that way. Wolgast, as the champion, shouldn't lay back and wait for his adversary. I know that I won't be embarrassed if he takes to stone-walling and covering up. He has as much right to make the pace as I have, and if he is thin-skinned and can put up with being called by the operators on account of his inclination to start on the ball rolling, there is no reason why I should become sensitive and begin leading just because Mr. Wolgast wants me to.

"Once blows are exchanged, Wolgast is in his element. He is all there in inside work. I have made a study of LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 22.—Good progress was made in playing off the early rounds in the men's singles and doubles of the western tennis tournament today at the Onwentsia club here.

The first round matches being completed, twelve matches were played in the men's singles events, while five more went by default. In the doubles four were played and two forfeited.

Roland Hoerr of St. Louis, was the only out-of-town man who was on hand for his first round match, and he had little trouble defeating Harold Smith of the home club, in straight sets 6-3 and 6-2. George Wightman, a member of the Harvard university tennis team, also won his match defeating Walter Bowers, also of Onwentsia, 6-2, 6-3.

Hoerr and Drummond Jones, another St. Louis entry, played an exhibition match in the doubles against Walter Hayes and John C. Neely, Jr., of Chicago, and displayed good form.

Out-of-town players are expected to arrive in Chicago today, coming from the Longwood tournament, and play in the second round which will begin on that day. Word was received today from Thomas C. Bundy, holder of the western title, that he would be on hand to defend his title, coming to Chicago Monday.

DOUGLAS AND STEARNS
TIE AT COUNTRY CLUB

W. F. Douglas and Frederick Stearns tied in yesterday's sweepstakes golf ball tournament at the Cheyenne Mountain Country club, each with a handicap score of 35. Douglas scored 43 with a handicap of 5, while Stearns had a 44 score, with a handicap of 8. Two players entered the tournament.

this kind of fighting and I am by no means convinced that Ad is better at it than I am. I think I am as successful as he is, and I possess as many changes of style. If I find that he is my master at close fighting I'll soon change off to some other method. I know Ad Wolgast and have known him during all his fighting career. We started in at the business about the same time and I have seen him fight quite often.

Of course you can't always tell how things are going to turn out, but I do know that it was the ambition of my life to box Rattling Nelson when the time was champion. I could not bring Nelson to terms and in the meantime Ad Wolgast got the chance and proved himself to be a better man than the Rattler. When Wolgast gained the title I made up my mind to challenge him at the first opportunity. I kept around a month with him, I feel as though I had been at something I had been working for and hoping for.

When I lost that war about it, it is the best evidence that I am not haunted with a suspicion I am going to lose. It may sound like boasting, but I do not think there is a man living who can beat me at my own fight. The only mistake I made was when I allowed my opponents to come in several pounds above my net weight.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN ANY STATE, Mr. Theodore Lorich, well known actor, will present his latest success, "Won in the Tenth" at Zoo park Tuesday afternoon, August 1. A ball game between the male members of the Lerch rock company now playing here, and the Wansatch Athletics, will be a feature on the sports program that day.

The proceeds will be donated to the Associated Charities.

The Lerch team will be made up entirely of members of the company with Lerch wearing the mak-up of a first baseman. Emmett O'Reilly has been selected to do the batting, with William Dawes as the receiving end. Six other players will be distributed in the arena at the discretion of the stage manager, James Hawley.

Manager Walter Gruning, of the Wansatch Athletics, has called for a week of strenuous rehearsal on the part of his troupe, and both teams will be prepared for a keen game. The curtain goes up at 8 o'clock with a ball yard stage setting and the case arranged as follows:

THE LERCH TIGERS. THEATLETICS.
Theodore Lorich, 1b, Walter Gruning, George Graving, 3b, Jim Woods, Howard Chase, 2b, Homer Stokes, Fred Doty, ss, Harry Cromwell, Emmett O'Reilly, p, Robert Dupes, William Dawes, c, Dan Hartnett, Lou Sears, rf, Frank Collins, James Hawley, lf, Fred Holmes, Ed Robinson, cf, Wm Wilkinson.

WESTERN GOLF TEAM
WNS CHAMPIONSHIP

DETROIT, July 22.—The Western Golf association team—Mason Phelps, Albert Seckel, Robert Gardner and Paul Hunter—retained its title to the Olympic cup today by easily outclassing a field of 14 teams. The first event of the thirteenth annual amateur championship of the Western Golf association was captured with a team score of 606 for the 36 holes.

When John Sweeney of the Michigan State team turned in a card of 51 for the afternoon's 18 holes play, a triple tie for second place resulted between his team and the Detroit City and West Pennsylvania quartets, each totaling 607.

Hunter proved the star of the champions, finishing the 36 holes in 147, low score of the day. Seckel and Phelps each had 151 and Gardner 157.

Following are the total cards of the leading teams:
Western Golf association, 606
Detroit City, 607
Michigan, 607
West Pennsylvania, 607
Ohio, 620
Canada, 628
Indiana, 667
Transmissippi, 673
The total score for the 36 holes was 6066.

The Trail of the Argonauts

Independence Was the Starting Point for Many of the Gold Seekers Who Faced the Perils of Plain and Mountain in the Days of '49—The Pathetic End of Sutter and Marshall, Who First Discovered California's Yellow Treasure.

Charles M. Harvey in the Atlantic Monthly for July. For a large part of the distance to the gold diggings the overland travelers had two thoroughfares to guide them. These were the Santa Fe and the Oregon trails, both of which were well marked by 1849, each having still its starting point near Independence, Mo. The conveyances ranged from the heavy stagecoach, which had for many years been a familiar vehicle in the trade between the Missouri and the capital of New Mexico, to the light wagon, the cart and the pack animal. In these migrations were many entire families, with household furniture and utensils.

Those who went by way of Santa Fe distributed themselves along several routes westward from that town—on that traversed by the army of Gen. Stephen W. Kearny on its march to the conquest of California in 1846, on that followed by the Mormon battalion under Col. Philip St. George Cooke on the same errand and in the same year, and on the more northerly course called the Old Spanish Trail. By all those routes the travelers reached the coast not far from Los Angeles, and thence proceeded northward to the Sacramento valley.

The main current, however, of overland immigration to California in 1849 and subsequent years surged along the Oregon trail. Starting from either Independence or St. Joseph, Mo., the caravans reached the Platte, 150 miles west of Omaha, at a point now on the Union Pacific railway; followed the river for many miles, passing Chimney Rock, Scott's Bluffs, Fort Laramie and Independence Rock; crossed the continental divide at South Pass and pressed onward to Fort Bridger and Fort Hall, the former in southwestern Wyoming, on Black's Fork of the Green river, 1,070 miles from Independence, and the latter more than two hundred miles beyond, near where the Potomac flows into the Snake river in Idaho. At Fort Bridger most of the gold-seekers diverged southwestward from the Oregon trail and followed the course taken by Brigham Young, Orson Pratt, Heber C. Kimball and the rest of the Mormons in the exodus from Nauvoo in 1847, which led them to Salt Lake. Those who went by way of Fort Hall traversed the valleys of the Snake and Humboldt rivers and each track crossed the Sierras at one or another of the passes discovered by the fur traders or, later, by Fremont and Kit Carson.

And they were in numbers such as were never seen in any gold-hogra before or since, not even in the wild rush for the Klondike in 1897. As soon as the grass began to peep out of the ground in the latter part of April the advance parties started from the mouth of the Klamath, and as early as the middle of June there was an almost continuous procession from that point to South Pass. By the fourth of July some of the earlier voyagers had reached Fort Bridger.

Except when small parties drifted away from the main course their numbers protected them from molestation by the Indians, but a far more formidable foe was on their trail. Asiatic cholera, which ravaged many cities in the east and along the Mississippi from St. Louis to New Orleans, in the summer of 1849, overtook the later immigrants before they left the Missouri, and spread through the caravans before they reached high ground at South Pass, and scored several thousand victims. When midsummer came, the heat, fatigue, lack of verdure and of water, and diminution of the food supply, brought other thousands to the verge of death, and scores died from these causes, from July till November, when the snow closed the mountain passes and the stream of 40,000 poured into the valley of the Sacramento.

If we had made a survey of the gold diggings by the end of that year we should have found the settlements of Bidwell's Bar, Coloma, Spanish Flat, Tuolumne, Table Mountain, Horsehoeget nothing Bar Dry Diggins, Diamond Springs and many other camps with whose strange denizens of a few years later Bret Harte has made the world familiar.

With so great an influx, the necessity for establishing stable and effective government among the heterogeneous elements of its population was so imperative that California was seeking for admission as a state before the authorities at Washington had time to organize it as a territory. Its admission was one of the features of the Clay Compromise of 1850. It had Burnett as its first governor, and Fremont as one of its first senators.

And what reward did fate extend to the original gold discoverers? Justice, in the mad scramble of a hundred treasure seekers, Sutter and Marshall were thrust aside. My guest will never be finished, said Sutter, in his personal reminiscences. Every thing was stolen even the mill stone. My men all deserted me. I could not shut the gates of my fort and keep out the rabble. There was no law. Saved from actual want in his latter days by a pension granted to him by the state of California he died in Washington D. C. in 1880, aged 71 years.

Prince Helie de Sagan, whose son Jason Howard, will become the duke of Talleyrand-Perigord. July 16 is the second anniversary of the son's birth. De Sagan, who married the former Countess de Castellane, daughter of the late Jay Gould, has finally consented to renounce the title to which he succeeded on the death of his father, the Duke Boson de Talleyrand-Perigord in 1910. In due course Jason Howard will take the oath of fealty to the Kaiser. In the meantime the revenues of the duchy will be applied to the liquidation of the debts left by the Duke Boson. The creditors of Helie de Sagan will Let health my nerves and finer fibers trace. And I their toys to the great children leave. Of fancy reason, virtue naught can be bereft.

Marshall's end was still more pathetic. With hanging by casual adventures when he failed to repeat for them his original discoveries, having his claim appropriated by others when he chanced to make a strike, unable to seize any of the opportunities which were creating millions, Halston, Crocker, Flood, Fair, Huntington, Mackay, Sharon, Stewart and dozens of others—in many parts of California and in many fields of activity, Marshall passed the latter part of his life in poverty, dying in 1887 at the age of 73 within sight of the spot where he had made the first of that series of "finds" by which California, by that time had added more than a billion dollars to the gold stock of the world. Counting from Marshall's discovery to the end of 1910 it has produced gold to the amount of 137,000,000,000 dollars.

American Millionaire's Wife and Daughter in Paris Are Unable to Pay Rent Because Red Tape Delays Remittance

Mrs. Theodore Perry Shonts, wife of the New York traction magnate, and her daughter, Miss Marguerite Shonts, who are suffering from blood poisoning in Paris. Both mother and daughter were infected by insignificantly scratches by a needle. Mrs. Shonts is also in an embarrassed position financially, being unable to leave Paris, although her multimillionaire husband has sent her the money, which to pay the rent on the luxurious apartment leased by the Shontses. The routine red tape of French law has delayed the giving of the money to Mrs. Shonts, enforcing a postponement of her return to this country.

Connoisseur Robs Londoner of Many Valuable Antiques

LONDON, July 22.—Burglars of the genus connoisseur have been working in Epsom and antiques, valued at several thousands of pounds, are missing. This victim is Mr. A. Meyers, a wealthy gentleman residing at Forest Lodge, Ashted. For years, Mr. Meyers has been a collector of rare French curios, especially of the Louis XIII, XIV, and XV periods. These were kept in a cabinet in one of the drawing rooms. A day or two ago one of the servants entering the room found the place in confusion. An entry had been effected by way of the window, and much property was missing.

That the thieves were connoisseurs was evident from the discriminating way in which they had selected the more precious antiques, leaving behind less rare, but at the same time valuable articles. The stolen property includes:

- Louis XIV. agate tray with gold mounts and handles.
- Louis XIV. silver agate snuff-box with gold mounts and handles.
- Louis XV. large Etui, gold mounted, with a diamond stud as a press button.
- A smaller Louis XV. agate Etui, similarly mounted with diamonds.
- A similar one of Louis XVI. period.
- An old Brazilian flat stone diamond ring set with small emeralds.
- Gold ring set with a miniature of a female head surrounded with tiny rose diamonds.
- Louis XVI. basket-shaped casket with a matrix of amethyst, the handles and mounts being of gold and valuable stones.
- Louis XVI. circular mounted pressed paste box, with "A. E." on lid.
- Louis XIV. shaped crystal pompadour, with enamelled gold mounts.
- Flat lapis lazuli box with hinged lid and enamelled gold mounts.
- Louis XV. agate pompadour with gold case-work mounts.
- Louis XVI. agate box with gold mounts, chased in low relief with hunting scenes.
- An old French frame containing the miniature of a lady.
- Gold locket containing a miniature of a man.
- Louis XIII. gold vase with perforated base.
- Antique gold watch, enamelled and painted on back in classical style.
- Small urn-shaped silver vase and cover.
- Pair of Louis XVI. folding reading glasses in silver mounts.
- Louis XV. agate bottle, gold mounted with enamelled figure at side.
- Circular ivory and glass box with a Tudor miniature on the lid.
- Eighteenth century English ivory counter box, gold mounted, with enamelled female head on lid.
- Louis XIV. flat ivory patch box with gold figure ornamentation on the hinged lid.

Acts of Sabotage Becoming so Serious Official Inquiry Is to Be Started.

By GEORGE DUFRESNE.
PARIS, July 22.—There is no question of the attempt being made to undermine all established authority. All over the country soldiers are receiving circulars invoking them to acts of sabotage. So serious is the information which M. Jean Chagny, the minister of justice has received, that the government has at last decided to open an inquiry on this subject as well as on the acts of sabotage committed almost daily.

It is a singular thing that of all the acts of sabotage committed on the railroads during the last few weeks the authorities have not been able to arrest any of the criminals. This system of wrecking has reached such a stage that unless serious steps are taken many people will cease to use the railroads. The recent attempt made to derail the Havre express shows to what length these wreckers will go.

The saboteurs are apparently ubiquitous. For the fourth time within the last three months 77 telegraph wires have been cut near Brest. Obviously the criminals are men familiar with the business. They are perfectly organized, and receive their instructions from some central body. In their regard on the railroad companies they do not hesitate to sacrifice the lives of people with whom they have no quarrel.

In the attempt made to wreck the express train, the railroad authorities are following up a clue which, it is hoped, will result in the arrest of the would be wreckers. If they are caught they will be smartly dealt with.

Meanwhile the antimilitarist chief—M. Gustave Hervé—is the object of another charge. This man with a curious mental twist is spending his time in prison by writing for his paper, Guerra Sociale, violent articles against the army. Two of his last articles have brought him within the law. It looks as if this martyr in the cause of anarchy is in for a further term of imprisonment. But what is the use of putting him in jail? Clearly imprisonment does not prevent him from carrying on his mischievous propaganda.

Beauty Specialist Loses Suit Against an American Woman

LONDON, July 22.—Mrs. Louise Winterfeldt of New York, once called by Mme. Paquin "the best gowned lady in London," recently won in one of the most unique law suits in the history of the British metropolis. She was sued by a Bond street complexion specialist, who said that she spent $100,000 a year in maintaining her beauty, and that she had five assistants, each of whom brought her in an income of $2,500 a week for smoothing out wrinkles and restoring to faded cheeks the bloom of youth.

Mrs. Winterfeldt, the specialist alleged, took away from her by unfair means one of her assistants—the kind that brought in $2,500 a week. She explained that Mrs. Winterfeldt had paid her $500 for treatment while in London and that an assistant had been allowed to accompany her to America, and Mrs. Winterfeldt had persuaded her to stay there as her secretary. The plaintiff went all the way to America to look the assistant up.

Mrs. Winterfeldt and her husband, when in New York, make their home in apartments at Sherry's.

Xmas Pantomimes on Huge Scale for London Town

LONDON, July 22.—An antique show of a magnitude the world has never seen since the days of the Roman emperors, will continue all the old fashioned pantomimes at Christmas time in London, when Professor Max Rheinhardt, the idol of Berlin and friend of the Kaiser, comes here to show that he is able to surpass his old-time master in stargazer, Sir Robert Bechstein Tree. It is the idea of Professor Rheinhardt to present at Olympia an original wordless play—a drama of intense and most serious interest, with music by one of the foremost German composers of the modern school.

The period of the work is the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Over 2,000 people will be employed, gathered from all parts of the world. The chief characters will be sustained by a group of most talented "miners" in Europe. There will be an orchestra of 120 performers, reinforced by a huge organ.

Olympia will be set as a Roman theater, with the stage in the center and the public all round—the seating being arranged as at the Horse Show and Military Tournament. The setting will be devised by a stage designer of world-wide renown, who will carry out the ideas of Herr Rheinhardt. The lighting of the stage will be one of the most startling adjuncts to the spectacle—beams from all round the great building will be concentrated on the impressionistic scenery and vast mass of performers. There will be two performances daily during the Christmas holidays.

PLAYS PIANO 30 HOURS

PARIS, July 22.—The Paris newspapers record a feat of endurance on the part of one Thorpe, described as a native of Bohemia, who played the piano for 30 hours and 15 minutes without stopping.

It seems that this is not the first such performance on a piano, for Mr. Waterbury is credited with having strummed the keys for 24½ hours without a break. The report states that Thorpe was fed and given stimulants during the entertainment. It is not mentioned, however, whether or not the audience brought their beds with them or simply took their enjoyment by installments.

MATTERHORN ASCENDED FOR FIRST TIME THIS SEASON

ZEMART, Switzerland, July 22.—The first ascent of the Matterhorn (14,793 ft.) this season was made by Mr. F. Thorman, of Tadcaster, Yorks, accompanied by his guide, Alois Singer.

School of Sixty Entrapped Mount Bay, Cornwall, Cut Up by Boys.

LONDON, July 22.—For the first time on record a school of whales visited Mount's Bay, Cornwall. Sixty in number, the bottle-nosed variety, the whales entrapped themselves by coming in too far on the high tide, and getting on the stretch of sands adjoining Penzance harbor. They became stranded when the tide went out.

The school was primarily made up of cows and calves, and finding their way to the open sea barred, they lashed the water with great fury, churning it into foam. Their lengths varied from about 25 feet down to a few feet. Several of the whales were shot by men in a boat, but the majority of them were stranded high and dry all day.

A regrettable scene then occurred. An unrestrained, wicked butchery of the whale by boys began. They used their pocket-knives so freely that the area covered by the mammals became a shambles. In some cases the ends of the pectoral fins were cut off. This unrestricted stabbing and cutting, which caused great bloodshed, was eventually checked by intervention of the authorities. Those whales which had been brutally cut were put out of their misery with service revolvers under the direction of the officer commanding the coast guard division, Lieutenant Chambers. With the high water, most of the whales got off to sea. The casualty list totalled about 25.

A few of the living whales apparently lost all sense of direction and remained about the water on the shore sands so languidly that they were again left high and dry.

Recovery of Emperor Joseph Great Relief to European Powers

BERLIN, July 22.—The opening of the Austrian council of empire by Emperor Francis Joseph in person shows that this most indispensable of all European monarchs, whose personality alone holds together a most heterogeneous empire, is once more enjoying perfect health. In consequence thereof, every European state has drawn a sigh of relief, for no one dares to conjecture what may happen when the emperor dies. It seems, however, that this calamity is still far off. The emperor was examined on more by his private physician, councillor of court, Neussard, and the facts revealed by the examination were so favorable that the physician declared Francis Joseph to possess the heart and constitution of a man of 40. The emperor now intends to spend the remainder of the summer at Ischl, where the president of the council of empire will hand him a loyal address in response to the speech from the throne. The heir presumptive, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, seeing his prospects of succession apparently as far off as ever has considered it better to put himself in cold storage, and will spend a long time in northern Norway and Spitzbergen near the arctic circle. No one in Austria will miss him for he is as unpopular as ever.

FIRE DESTROYS LIQUOR

LONDON, July 22.—Four thousand barrels of whisky, equal to a quarter of a million gallons, have been destroyed in a fire at the Dalrymple distillery at Aikens, Ross-shire, one of the most important distilleries in the north of Scotland. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

Mrs. Louise Winterfeldt of New York, who recently won a suit brought against her by a London complexion specialist to recover damages for the loss of a beauty assistant, who accepted a position with the American woman.

England Contemplates Return to Lighter and Faster Fighting Crafts.

LONDON, July 22.—Sir Philip Watts, director of naval construction, and those working with him have in contemplation the abandonment of the "dreadnought" design for our battleships, and the adoption of a totally new type. This will consist of, of course, affect the battleships and battleship-cruisers now under construction.

Though no details of the new type of vessel now under consideration have been allowed to leak out, it is possible to state that in point of displacement they will approximate to the "Lord Nelson" type rather than to the super-dreadnoughts now on the stocks at Devonport, Portsmouth, and elsewhere. That is to say, their displacement will probably be somewhere in the neighborhood of 17,000 or 18,000 tons, as against the 22,000 tons of the "Queen Mary," now building in the Palmer Yard at Harlow.

Two Smaller Boats Can Be Constructed for Cost of Larger One.

Big Guns to Remain. It is not proposed that the "all big gun" principle shall be abandoned in this new type of ship. On the other hand, if apparently well authenticated reports may be credited, the primary armament of these vessels will consist of six of the new 15-inch guns which is under discussion at the moment, while they would also carry a comparatively heavy anti-torpedo armament. One great point that is urged in favor of these new ships is that they would be relatively cheap to build; indeed, it is contended that two of them could be built for less than one super-dreadnought costs, and, of course, in much quicker time.

It is a matter of common discussion among naval men at the present moment, as to what the effect would be if the whole of the 10 13.5 inch guns that are to be mounted upon the King George V. and its sister ships, now building, were fired simultaneously with full charges, as might easily be necessary in the case of a fleetly-fought action.

Concussion Too Great.

Gunnery officers of the fleet experience have been heard to declare that no ship that has yet been constructed could possibly withstand the consequent concussion, and that the decks would inevitably buckle badly. In this connection it is perhaps significant to recall that never yet has one of the British "dreadnoughts" or super-dreadnoughts been permitted to fire all of her big guns together with full war charges.

The new battleships will be designed to develop a speed of 24 knots. On paper, the battleships now on the stocks are to have a speed of 30 knots an hour—a thing that would have been deemed impossible a generation ago for a battleship of 25,000 tons displacement—but these who are concerned with the design for the new vessels are confident that 31 or even 36 knots can easily be attained.

GET $28,000 NECKLACE BY CONFIDENCE TRICK

PARIS, July 22.—A Paris dealer in precious stones, M. Lagnel, is the victim of an audacious theft perpetrated by means of the time-honored confidence trick. A few weeks ago, M. Lagnel made the acquaintance of a young man who called himself Sognier. He was anxious to meet an agent for M. Lagnel, and declared that he would be able to introduce wealthy clients.

A few days ago Sognier introduced to M. Lagnel a "wealthy friend" of his, whom he called M. Chevalier, of Clermont-Ferrand, who desired to buy a pearl necklace for his wife.

Yesterday the two men called at M. Lagnel's office in the Rue du Temple, and M. Chevalier selected a necklace valued at $28,000. When about to pay he discovered that he had left his purse at his hotel. In order to be sure that the necklace would not be exchanged for another while he was absent, he asked if it could be placed in a sealed envelope. This was done, and Chevalier and his friend disappeared.

As they failed to return, the dealer made inquiries, but could find no trace of them. He then opened the sealed envelope, and found it contained imitation pearls worth but a few francs. The thieves had cleverly substituted a second package for the one containing the necklace.

NO FEAR OF PLAGUE

KARACHI, July 22.—There is not the least need for anxiety on account of plague in connection with the durbar arrangements for December next. The outbreak of the disease in India is usually reached an acute stage about August or September, after which it subsides.

Common Jack Tars Dissatisfied With Conditions Ask for Unionization.

PARIS, July 22.—The International Congress on Juvenile Criminality, just held in Paris, had under consideration a report showing how young delinquents may be dealt with by a tribunal ad hoc. Each case will be tried by a single magistrate, the presence of a public prosecutor not being indispensable. The ordinary advocate may be replaced by the member of a benevolent society. The judge of instruction will prepare the case by a careful inquiry into the delinquent's family life, surroundings, and antecedents. A medical examination will be made by a specialist in children's character, psychology and ailments. If normal, the case goes before the tribunal; if abnormal, the delinquent is placed in a special establishment.

In court, the child is placed near the magistrate, so that the latter may address him without being overheard. The newspapers are forbidden to report the proceedings or give illustrations under penalty of heavy fines. The magistrate in passing "sentence" gives his decision as a father of a family or a doctor would. The child may be restored to his family or sent to a special correctional establishment. Appeals may be made before special higher jurisdiction. The magistrate retains the right to modify his decision subsequently according to the conduct of the delinquent. He may inflict fine and imprisonment on parents who by negligence or otherwise are responsible for the bad conduct of their children. This scheme met with the full approval of the congress and was voted unanimously.

Starving Sea Captain Ate Tar to Alleviate Hunger, Inquest Shows

LONDON, July 22.—At an inquest on an old sea captain, whose body was found in a barge in the Regent's canal docks, it was stated that the man had died of starvation, and had been alleviating the pangs of hunger by eating tar.

The dead man was Benjamin Powell Wilkins, aged 57. A son said that his father had been very unfortunate of late. He had lost his wife, and had been shipwrecked twice. He saw his father last on May 18, when he borrowed some money in order to go and seek for work.

A verdict in accordance with the medical evidence was returned.

HIGHEST GARDEN IN WORLD

VIENNA, July 22.—Credited as being the highest gardens in the world, the Alpine Gardens of Botany, which was laid out by the late Count von Salm-Reifferscheidt, is situated at an elevation of 2,200 metres, or 7,150 feet. Here are to be seen blooming almost all species of mountain flowers, not only those common in the Alps, Pyrenees, Carpathians, the Caucasus and the Balkans, but even from afar-off Himalaya. The Count conceived the idea in 1858, but it was not until 1902 that his project became effective. In the latter year the commune of Thulle gave him the land.

Until the year 1800 the English kings were called kings of France, although the last continental possession was lost during the reign of Mary II.

Until the French revolution of 1789 the French kings styled themselves, among other things, kings of Jerusalem.

Probably nothing is fitting the hearts of the upper classes with greater anxiety than the fact that the general fermentation has spread to the British army. In a Portsmouth paper the other day I read an astounding letter which shows the direction of the rising breeze. The writer, who is serving in the navy, demands for the men more liberty, less class distinction, that all important offenses be tried by jury in the court that small offenses be punished only by stoppage of wages temporarily, a wholesale reduction of the powers of officers and numerous other reforms that are long overdue.

Compares Their Lot With Americans. The writer, who spent considerable time together with American blue-jackets, says he was surprised to hear how well these were fed and treated on board Uncle Sam's men of war, and he does not see why Britannia should not treat her sailors, "who form the sole guarantee of her national existence," with equal consideration, and asserts that if this were the case the admiralty would find no difficulty in manning all the vessels of the navy.

Openly advocating the formation of a "Royal Naval Industrial Union" for "fighting purposes," he concludes as follows:

"Let us try to recognize that there is war between the fore part of the ship and the after part. Under the present arrangements we are helpless and hopeless. The board of admiralty intend to keep their sons and relatives, who occupy the after part of the ship, invested with all the privileges and power it is possible to give them, in fact, at Dartmouth college the cadets are actually taught to despise the men on the lower deck, and have it ingrafted in their minds from birth that they are a special brand of humanity, and are born to rule."

"It is about time we had a change, as it is obvious there can be no reform on the lower deck without in some way restricting the power of officers. This the admiralty will not do, and therefore it is only by organizing every man in the service, irrespective of rating, that we can hope to force their hand."

PARIS, July 22.—In the Vatican the political advisers of the Pope are uncertain whether the participation of the Spanish king and government in the recent Eucharistic congress is to be considered a sign that Alfonso has returned to the bosom of the church or is merely a clever political maneuver on the part of Canalejas.

There is, nevertheless, great joy that Cardinal Merry del Val's policy of hesitation seems to have produced at least one great result—that of impressing the youthful ruler of Spain, and the chief of his government with the still enormous power of the Catholic church. Whether Alfonso is playing a part or not, he is apparently happy at being able to return to the Vatican.

PARIS, July 22.—The camp bed of Napoleon I, which General Bertrand brought to France from St. Helena, after having passed through many hands has been sold at auction in Paris. It was purchased by Edward Luck, who has presented it to the Museum at Malmaison, where are to be found many relics of the Emperor.

The bed bears the Imperial crown, together with the name of the maker. Although the bed has seen many changes since 1821, there seems to be no doubt as to its authenticity.

How the Hoop Skirt Sleeve

By Lady-Duff Gordon ("Lucile")

I AM going to give you this week a few of the very latest fashion notes from Paris.

The new skirt is to be straight and narrow, not the hobble.

The new coats will be three-quarter length. Fringe is to be widely worn. All of the tailor suits and any other gowns which will permit it will be thus trimmed.

All the waists are still high, quite as high in fact, as they ever were.

Among the new materials, of which there are many, are fancy velvets that look like corduroys.

The harem skirt is now admitted to be a complete failure. Even Poiret, who invented them, no longer attempts to make them up.

One of the newest features is the crinoline or "hoop skirt" sleeve. This sleeve is distended at the elbow with a little hoop of wire or whalebone.

Nothing could be in greater contrast to the small sleeves of the past season or so than this new conception. The sleeve is built out at the elbow to give a pronounced balloon effect.

The hooped part is made of gathered white net, and is really an undersleeve, the bell-shaped sleeve of the dress material falling over it.

Those who can remember as far back as the sixties will recall just such sleeves.

One of the illustrations on this page exemplifies some of these latest fancies. It shows an afternoon costume developed in a silky mohair, and wool fabric, in a lovely blue lavender shade, like the color of Wedgewood china, an effect which is intensified by the broad white collar.

A Newest Hairdressing That Also Goes Back to Crinoline Days.

Decolets of our French Mothers

Reappear in the Newest Crinoline or Hoop Skirt Sleeve and even for Ladies have Fringe

A Possible Evolution of the Hoop Skirt Sleeve.

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

Lady Duff-Gordon's new Paris establishment brings her into close touch with that centre of fashion.

This is the New Crinoline or Hoop Skirt Sleeve—a Little Wire Hoop Distends the Fabric.

The coat is in a draped style, bordered with fringe, which gives it a quaint, old-fashioned suggestion, and finished with a broad, flat velvet collar of white velour de laine. In addition to the fringe border, there is a hemstitched facing of white cloth surrounding the basque, back and front.

The new crinoline sleeve seems to be quite popular essential to the design. There is no doubt that the fringe trimming is going to be a very popular feature, if not a furor. Everything for Autumn is to be loaded with it. Even silk trimmings are to be revelled out at the edges, and plaited another method of the sixties, by the way.

Before I conclude the list of novelties, I must make mention of some most convenient little gimpes made of the finest linen lawn and cut in kimono style, their rounded curve about the neck being outlined with a more or less elaborate design of hand embroidery. The sleeves are quite short and the career of the little garment itself is in fact very brief, as it is just held in beneath the bust by an encircling draw string.

Its object in life is to make more universally becoming than they could otherwise be the many gowns and "jumpers" whose corsage cut in an almost décolleté fashion would bring a hard line of dark serge or sitting next to the skin. And when said fabrics are thus treated, and worn, too, in the day time, the contrast of an exquisitely white and youthful throat is absolutely essential to their success, so that where this is not possible the wearing of one of these new gimpes is to be recommended as it will bring a relieving band of white into the scheme, with much resulting benefit to the wearer.

So much for generalities; and now for some gowns which I have been making during the past week for two of our society leaders; one, which I have named "The Hidden Garden," is of marquisette in the soft green of leaves massed together in the cool depths of a wood, and having this filmy fabric in silk in that gray blue which one sees in Summer mist at evening, the latter and lovely coloring being brought into outward prominence just between the tunic and the undersleeve. The silken embroideries on corsage and tunic step blend the most subtle shadings of green and gray and blue, and floating at one side is a scarf of gray chiffon. The mist deepened and materialized, you see!

On the corsage the semi-transparency of the green marquisette merges eventually into a still more elusive softness of gray and then of flesh-pink chiffon, just faintly visible through this filmy veiling are leaves and dainty details of cobwebby lace, threaded through with natter blue satin ribbon and other lace trims to the gray blue coloring. And it is on this that the "hidden garden" blooms out—clusters of little flowers—blue and pink and mauve, with foliage of tenderest green, all caught together with loops of silken ribbon, which introduces the first and only touches of definitely bright colorings—emerald green, mauve and rose.

Quite a contrast is the other afternoon gown of Chinese yellow satin charmeuse, whose little turn-over collar of embroidered lawn and lace falls into a chemise of flesh pink chiffon, over which the charmeuse is caught together by a fine cord of gold with figures of purple and blue. Another ornament which reveals prominently and I think prettily, too, on the corsage is a tassel of silver and blue and pearls, both, remember, having that gorgeous golden yellow for background.

For the rest the satin is bordered with birds and blossoms in gold colored and faintly green silk, and on the waist there is folded a sash of queer blue and gold tissue, with borderings of mauve and pink shot with gold, all these tissues being brought together too; in the series of little elchous which fasten the sash at one side, the other being drawn into a flatly looped bow, from which fall long ends of cloudy gray chiffon fringed with gray silk, through whose soft strands there comes the occasional shimmer of an inner fringe of gold.

The tunic of this gown is cut quite short above the knees in front, but at the back falls to the edge of the slightly trained skirt, and on it the self-colored embroidery again puts in an appearance, all the contrast of color being reserved, you will note, for the corsage.

Miss Kitty Gordon is to go starring next season in "The Enchantress," a musical piece by Victor Herbert. Harry B. Smith and Mme. Fred de Gresac.

The Stage

Gilbert's Last Effort?

Several weeks before Sir William S. Gilbert met his untimely and sudden death he had a long talk in London with Mr. F. C. Whitney over the subject of writing a libretto for a comic opera along his well-known satirical lines, the music to be composed by Oscar Straus of "Chocolate Soldier" fame. It did not take much persuasion to induce England's greatest lyricist and satirist to make a definite promise to Mr. Whitney that a scenario which he had in mind for some time would be ready when Mr. Whitney returned from the continent whither he was about to start to engage artists for his forthcoming production of "Der Rosenkavalier" and to confer with Herr Straus about several new operas.

Mr. Whitney was naturally much elated over his success with Sir William and during his trip Straus was acquainted with the facts, and was also enthusiastic over the forthcoming work. Mr. Whitney returned to England only to learn that Sir William had been drowned but the day before, and such was the librettist's reputation for promptness that he had made a promise that Mr. Whitney and many others believe that the scenario is among Sir William's papers which have not yet been opened for by his literary executor.

A promise has been made to Mr. Whitney that an extended and definite search will be made for this valuable manuscript, the last work, if it is in existence, that Sir William ever did, and it may be it is a libretto and lyrics can be found who can take up the work where Sir William laid it down that this work of the famous author will not be produced.

Guide to Strauss' Comic Opera

A guide to Richard Strauss' latest opera, "Der Rosenkavalier," has been issued in English by G. Schirmer of this city, being a translation by Alfred Kallberg, a German translator by Alfred Schottmann. The author adopts the usual method of detailed examination of the action and the score page by page, quoting the themes, the "leading motives," as they occur, and explaining their significance, development and employment in combinations. Mr. Schottmann distinguishes and reproduces no fewer than 115 of these motives. Those who wish to make a detailed study of "Der Rosenkavalier" from the vocal score will find in this little volume all the assistance they will require.

The second novel of George H. Brennan, the theatrical manager, is entitled "Anna Malleen" and has just been published by Mitchell Kennerley. Brennan's first book, "Bill Truettell," was issued two years ago and has since maintained a position well forward in the ranks of the "best sellers." "Anna Malleen" is the love story of a Texas girl who comes to New York to achieve success on the stage and is confronted by conditions and temptations which put her natural courage to a severe test.

Another story concerns a recent dress rehearsal at His Majesty's theater, which was prolonged until the small hours of the morning. The company grew very weary, particularly the actors.

New Stories of Sir Herbert

Here are some new stories about Sir Herbert. A few evenings ago, Sir Herbert was present at a supper where Signor Grassano was a guest. When the banquet was over, and everyone was departing, Grassano was so confused by the attentions which had been showered upon him that he directed his taxi driver to drive him to the stage door of the theater at which he was playing.

"What on earth does he want to go back to the theater for at this time of the night?" asked one of those who were waving him adieu.

"Ah," said Sir Herbert, "I expect he has forgotten to kiss the fireman."

larly a gentleman who had been with Sir Herbert in a good many productions, but who had never attained to more than a very small part. When the time came to rehearse his few lines, he was so tired that his voice was anything but distinct.

"What's the matter, Mr. Z?" asked Sir Herbert, in his modest sarcastic tones. "Are you saving your voice for the rehearsal?"

"No, Sir Herbert," was the retort, "I've never been able to save anything under your management."

New York Theatrical Letter By EMORY CALVERT

NEW YORK, July 22.—The crack of Simon Legree's blacksnake whip, and an echo of the pistol shots that punctured an elderly millionaire's legs, are the only sounds to disturb the theatrical season's summer stela. Neither would have awakened even passing comment in the winter, but, with Broadway a seething mass of ebullient asphalt and "Nothing Doing" signs on nearly all the playhouses, they echo and re-echo in an empty theatrical world till their reverberations knock insistently at the door of editorial comment.

Harriet Beecher Stowe's great novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has through decades of popular production, degenerated into quasi-farce. Two "Uncle Toms" have been starred in the bill. Lawyer Marks has been wont to make his appearance in triplicate, and punctuate his lines with neat little double shuffles synchronized by booms on the base drum. All this has been changed, however, by the purists of that Fourteenth street temple of art, the Academy of Music, and let for the first time in many years, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" appears before the public expurgated, idealized and refined.

So all this week that brand of New Yorker who likes his drama cheap but wholesome has been saturating himself with the new novelty that has arisen from the ashes of time's desecration. He has seen Simon Legree snapping his big blacksnake whip, little Eva floating in Elysian fields on a ray of property light, and the bloodthirsty pack of property swamp hounds howl on the trail of a heated Eliza. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has come to town devoid of the vaudeville turns with which it has been "sundered" by the

It was welcomed royally.

"Every woman's own press agent" is the maxim of the times. Its efficacy is easily established. All you have to do is to corral an ancient millionaire, pump a few bullets into his tottering limbs, get arrested and giggle. At once you are the sought of all performers. Booking agents flock to your abode, and the public in general has been the success of this latest of publicity ventures that boiler-makers are putting Harveyized steel trousers in the market for use among the socially sensitive. "Those Two Girls," is the way Ethel Conrad and Lillian Graham, marksmen extraordinary, are billed at the Victoria Roof. They are announced as singers and dancers—perhaps they are, and then again, perhaps they ain't. At any rate the S. R. O. sign has been dusted off and now makes its nightly appearance, which proves something, even if not talent.

Those two girls were members of the chorus of a near Broadway production before they made the alleged threat to "blow the head off" Mr. Stokes and mistook that part of his anatomy for his feet and after the present shooting affray sink into the limbo of forgotten history they will return to that rank straightaway.

Miss Graham, in her daily appearance, is attired in a pink gown and Miss Conrad in one of blue. Both are armed with parrots. They canter on the stage, bow, circle, and retire in good order to the shrieking battlements of a grand piano. Miss Conrad essays to "sing," while Miss Graham hits the ivories. They inflict pain three times and the house is still. Then, with seeming inhuman perspicacity, they mention a policeman and the audience goes wild.

Had the management built their act about a comedy instead of a piano, the bleachers could have been erected in Central park and the S. R. O. displaced in 10 good electric. A great mistake has been made.

In these decadent dramatic days good actors turn their hands to bread winning with an alacrity that hints of a revolution in the theatrical world—toward, a never before apparent desire to work during the heated summer months. This spirit of commercialism is not without its benefits, both to public and actor, for the first profits aesthetically, and the second materially.

Just now the bright and shining medium of aesthetic and material profit is Clark Silvernail, who has stepped from the "Legit" to vaudeville and is daily entertaining New Yorkers with Robert Sogor's playlet, "The Decision." The new piece combines the virtues—force, action and dramatic effect, and comes to the front, principally through the art of Silvernail, in a way that shows what a "regular" actor can do toward strengthening a piece.

Silvernail has signed a two years' contract with Spitz and Nathanson and will play on their fall circuit in a revival of Charles Frohman's success, "The Thief," returning to the Great Hot Way later on to star in a new production now in the course of construction.

Four of our theaters rode through the hot wave without any apparent trouble and are getting large audiences at every performance. At the New York or the Garden, Paris, if you will, the Ziegfeld Follies is making a record as a successful summer show. Valeska Suratt is the open roof Globe, attracting large audiences to see "The Red Robe" in which the "Student's Guide" is one of the chief features of interest.

Rumor has it that the throne wren, Miss Desha, has accepted an offer of $4,000 per week to appear in the Winter Garden casts. The bright-eyed press agent also plays his hand on a round matins and intimates that her admirer, the ex-king, will follow her over. No mention is made, however, of the royal salary and the rumor is inclined to think that the P. A. is looking for a raise in salary.

REPERTOIRE OF THE CHICAGO THEATER SOCIETY

Comment on "Unappreciated Masterpieces," by James O'Donnell Bennett.

We do not think pretentious or fanatical plays, whoever their author, become worthy plays or neglected masterpieces by failing in the commercial theater. Professor Moody's "The Kane Healer" and Mr. MacKave's "Mater" and "The Sorcerer" are prominent specimens of the pretentious and the high fantastical that by their failure in the commercial theater are presumed to take on a kind of glory. The fact is that those works bored the people most of the time and failed to convince them the rest of the time. They bore, and they failed to convince the reader who takes them up in book form too. Their production in the commercial theater did not make them any worse and their production in a subsidized theater would not make them any better.

It was to those plays, and to them specifically, that the Record-Herald referred when it implored the society not to load up its repertory, which is to comprise only 10 plays at most, with dead men.

The society, in view of the brief season it proposes, cannot cut its cloth to waste. If Mr. MacKave's two plays and Professor Moody's swan song were not appreciated masterpieces we should quarrel with the society for including them in its repertory. But they were not. Two of the three were staged in two cities, the third had a single test and that was in the metropolitan. Audiences drawn from persons intensely interested in the development of native poetic drama rejected them. Mr. Harris' production of "The Sorcerer" was careful and the cast included the good actors, Frank Reicher and Edmund Brees. "Mater" was footlighted with exceptional thoroughness by Mr. Miller, who also brought enthusiasm and conscience to bear on his presentation of "The Kane Healer."

In addition to these three plays the society's list also contained "The Earth," another failure in the commercial theaters because it was a world of talk and not essentially dramatic good talk.

Now this makes four plays of which the society is planning to do play by itself. We maintain that to load a repertoire of 10 plays with three dead men of supreme artistic and spiritual value and which the public has never proved it did not reject is a bad policy on grounds other than artistic. It is trying to put the public patience, and allying the public.

Offerings at the Theaters

"Under Two Flags" This Week

Ouida's famous old story in play form, "Under Two Flags," will have its first presentation in this city in many years at the Opera House tomorrow night, when the Theodore Lorch Stock company will revive it for four nights and a Wednesday matinee. Cecil Fay will play the role of Cigarette, the role which Blanche Bates made famous. The story of the drama, which was made from it, as it is as a novel. The story of Cigarette, her life among the soldiers, her heroism, her love and her death are in themselves dramatic, and it is not surprising that "Under Two Flags" is even a greater success as a play than as a novel. In fact, the strange thing about it all is that "Under Two Flags" was not either originally written as a play or else utilized as a drama long before Belasco took it up.

The story of "Under Two Flags" does not need to be retold here. Every one has read it, children and grown folk alike. In reviving this play, Mr. Lorch is making a special feature of the stage settings. A beautiful, elaborate production has been built especially for this presentation of the drama under the direction of the scenic artist. The production is made under the stage direction of George L. Graves, whose work with the Lorch company last summer is pleasantly remembered, and whose return this month has been made evident by splendid performances the company has given in the past few weeks.

"Under Two Flags" will be presented four days only, with a Wednesday matinee. Commencing Friday night, and continuing Saturday matinee and night, the Lorch company will present the popular farce, "Our Mother-in-Law." This is a fast and furious piece, a roar from the beginning to the whirlwind finish. Preceding "Our Mother-in-Law" will be a one-act playlet, acted by Theodore Lorch and Howard Chase.

LATEST TIDINGS OF HAPPENINGS IN THE THEATERS

Gossip From Here and There Told in Paragraphs.

An article in the Vienna Neue Freie Presse on the sixteenth anniversary of the appearance of Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" recalls to a reader of that paper, the fact that when the book became a drama it made its greatest hit in German translation at the Josefstadt theater in that city.

"In the original cast," it is said, "there appeared a young girl who had never before been assigned to a real part. She became famous later, and in order that she might appear younger she used to say that the Indian girl (C) was played by her elder sister. But she herself was the elder sister, and as La Belle Helena and the grand duchess won no little fame.

"She was Marie Geistinger."

Just how the drama-starved are going to worry through next season is a problem at which reason totters. Only two more theaters are to be erected before Christmas. Unless something be done to relieve the shortage some of us may have to put in as many as an evening a week reading some boring book—(Franklin P. Adams in the New York Mail.

Elizabeth Firth has been engaged to support Donald Brian in "The Siren." Although a native of Philadelphia, N. J., Miss Firth has never before appeared on the American stage. She was the original Merry Widow in the London production at the Gaiety theater, under the management of George Edwardes.

Fuller Mellich has been re-engaged for the role of the priest next season in support of Miss Gertrude Elliott in "Rebellion." Joseph Medill Patterson's latest play.

In Lyman Howe's moving pictures of the royal procession to the Guildhall on June 23 the queen is observed bowing cordially from the carriage to a notable. Simultaneously she nudges the king, who perks up and bows, too. "You men are all alike," said a critic's wife who was watching the pictures at the first view at the Gerrick on Wednesday. "How often have I had to do that to you when people were trying to be civil to you at the theater!"

Frank H. Norcross, who last season won the International Grand Opera company and "The Lion and the Mouse" on the road, has commissioned Max M. Atteridge and Melville Odell, the latter one of the composers of "The Heart Breakers," to write a new musical comedy, which is scheduled for production next season.

Kubelik Tours America

In spite of the strangeness of the proposition, that Kubelik should make his first appearance of the season in England on Sunday, Albert Hall was packed to welcome the virtuoso, nearly 8,000 people being in the hall. Kubelik's farewell tour of America this season, also begins on Sunday. He will open at the Hippodrome on October 15, and will also play there on the following Sunday, October 22. Then come two Sundays in Chicago, at the Auditorium, October 29 and November 5.

Kubelik received a tremendous ovation in London, and there is every reason to believe, from the demands for his concerts that have come to the Whitney office, that his tour under the direction of Mr. Whitney will be a triumphal procession across the country, particularly as Kubelik says this will be his last American tour. Of his performance in London, the critic of the London Telegraph said:

"Kubelik always charms one by the faultless ease and elegance of his technique and the perfection of his tone, and he does not share that failing of so many great violinists—an occasional faulty intonation. His playing is always dead in tune."

H. S. Sheldon, author of "The Haven," gained his first knowledge of the stage in Philadelphia. Sheldon, with the idea of preparing himself for the work of writing plays, applied for and received a position as "super" in the old Forepaugh stock company of that city. He worked himself into "speaking parts" and, from that position, was graduated to a role of some little importance in the Ben Hur company. He afterwards played Prince Phalt in "The Shepherd King," and seemed on the road to success in legitimate drama when he came to the conclusion that his knowledge of the stage was sufficient for his purposes and resigned his position to begin writing "The Haven."

Stage Talk: Is 30 Times "The Red Rose"?

"The Commuters" was produced in New York last season with much success. It is by the author of "The Chorus Lady" and "The Traveling Salesman." The story of "The Commuters" tells of the troubles of suburbanites and is said to be highly amusing. "The Commuters" is one of the early attractions at the Opera House this season.

DENVER INVESTMENT

This is your opportunity to purchase the most complete apartment house in Denver at a great sacrifice. Located on Capitol Hill, in east building distance of downtown district, built less than four years ago, has large porches and no outside steps; vacuum cleaner system installed; also complete refrigerating plant, capacity of steam boiler enough for double the demand. The apartments vary in size from two rooms and bath to five rooms and bath and are very elegantly finished. Two good brick houses on part of the lots, which can be removed and apartment enlarged, which then would show an investment of some 22 per cent. Plans for this addition have been drawn at a cost of $1,800.00 and will be included in the purchase price. The property consists of 4 1/2 lots, 115 feet deep. For further information call or write, as we will be glad to furnish a more complete description to anyone meaning business.

How the Here-and-There Tree Did It

ONE day as the Be-Better Goblins were hurrying across Cuckoo Common with an empty pail in his hand, he looked over the wall into the Beggar-Boys garden and he saw there a mound with periwinkles all round it. Then the Be-Better Goblins thought how much he would like a mound in his garden with periwinkles growing all round it, and he remembered how the soil by the Wiry-Wriggler's hole was quite the best soil on Cuckoo Common, and would make a very nice mound indeed. So he rushed along till he nearly reached the Wiry-Wriggler's hole. Then he dug, and dug, and filled his pail and when the pail was quite full there came a most dreadful noise and that was the roof of the Wiry-Wriggler's hole falling in because of the digging and it covered the mouth of his hole quite up, so that he could not get out.

Goodness gracious me! Who would have expected this to happen? thought the Be-Better Goblins in a great way. He wished, and wished, and wished that he had not dug so near the hole of the Wiry-Wriggler. Then he wished, and wished, and wished that the Wiry-Wriggler were not at home, but he knew that he was, for he could see a bit of his hard tail sticking out, and then he seized his pail and flew away as fast as he could fly.

The Wiry-Wriggler had been lying half asleep with one eye open and one eye shut and his long hard tail sticking out that folks might know that he was at home. When he heard the Be-Better Goblins dig-dig-digging, he thought nothing of that, he was so sleepy. But when the roof of his hole fell in, he was wide awake at once. Then he tried to get out, but he could not. Then he tried to turn round, and he could not. Then he tried to wiggle his tail, and, my word, how it pinched him! Then he began to yell, and yell, and yell.

The Be-Better Goblins did not hear him, for he was already ever so far on his way to his turret-house, which was at the other side of Cuckoo Common, but the Berry-Man, who was carrying home a pie for his dinner, passed as he passed by.

"Dear me that sounds just like the voice of the Wiry-Wriggler!" he thought. Then he looked about, but he could not see the Wiry-Wriggler's hole anywhere. "This is very strange indeed!" said he.

So he set his pie down under a hawthorn bush, and peered, and under the roof of his hole, all his head and his body, and almost all his tail.

Then the Berry-Man was as frightened as anything and he wanted to seize his pie at once and hurry home to his little house under That-Tree. But just as he was about to move off the Wiry-Wriggler called out, "Hi, hi, hi! Wait a minute! You'd better not suppose that I did not see you digging at my roof till it fell down! Just you wait till I get out, and you'll see how I will treat you!"

"Well, I do declare!" cried the Berry-Man in a great rage, "as if I had touched the roof of your hole! Why, I was just setting off home."

"I heard you digging, and digging, and digging!" cried the Wiry-Wriggler. "You are carrying your spade at this very minute! I can hear you carrying it!"

"That is only my pie, which I am carrying home for dinner!" said the Berry-Man.

"Come, come, now," said the Wiry-Wriggler, "that is simply nonsense! You had better help me to get out, my little Berry-Man, otherwise you will be as sorry as can be when I do get out of my hole!"

Then the Berry-Man wept like anything, for he was afraid of the Wiry-Wriggler; and he cried, "Oh, dear Wiry-Wriggler, I don't know how to get you out—I don't indeed!"

"Now I know," said the Wiry-Wriggler, "that it was you who made the roof of my hole fall down, for otherwise you would not be so much afraid of letting me out again!" Then he wriggled with rage, and his tail pinched him again, and he began to yell, and yell.

And at that moment there came along So-So the gnome, who was the unluckiest gnome on the whole of Cuckoo Common and would not trouble to lace his shoes. So-So was carrying in your hole just because I am trying to help you! Now I will not help you any more, not if you beg me to."

"Ah, just you wait till I get out!" cried the Wiry-Wriggler. But at that moment his tail pinched him with a worse pinch than ever and he began to yell, and yell, and yell.

Then there came along the Cinder-Witch, just to see what So-So was doing with the broom he had borrowed from her. The Cinder-Witch lived in a little house under The-Other-Tree, and her chimney was almost always smoking. When she heard the Wiry-Wriggler yell and yell, she did not say anything to him, but she asked the Berry-Man and So-So the gnome what was the matter.

Then the Berry-Man gave a great sigh and said, "It is true that the roof of the Wiry-Wriggler's hole has fallen in upon him—as you can see. And because I have not helped to get him out, he says that it is I who shut him in."

And So-So the gnome gave a greater sigh and said, "The roof of the Wiry-Wriggler's hole has fallen in upon him, and nobody knows—because I tried to get him out, he says it is I who shut him in."

"Well, well, it is a sad story," said the Cinder-Witch. But at that moment the Wiry-Wriggler heard her voice and cried out—and so was as angry as could be. "Ah, Cinder-Witch, it is a good thing that you have come by! For let me tell you, I heard you digging beside my hole so that the roof fell in, and when I get out again you will see how I will treat you!"

Then the Cinder-Witch was in a great way, for she saw that if she helped the Wiry-Wriggler to get out he would think she had made his hole fall in, and if she did not help him to get out he would still think that she had made his hole fall in, so she did not know what to do.

So she said nothing but slipped away—softly, softly—and went back to her little house under The-Other-Tree. And So-So the gnome said nothing, but slipped away—softly, softly—and went home to his little house under That-Tree. And the Berry-Man said nothing, but slipped away—softly, softly—and went home to his little house under That-Tree. And the Wiry-Wriggler was left alone.

Then the Wiry-Wriggler yelled, and yelled, and yelled, and nobody answered. Then he wriggled, and his tail pinched and pinched. Then he talked so angrily to the Berry-Man and So-So the gnome, and the Cinder-Witch. For they might have helped him out of his hole, and now they had all gone away.

The Wiry-Wriggler wept like anything and nobody heard him—nobody fast.

At last there came along the Here-and-There Tree which does not grow on Cuckoo Common, as other trees do but rushes about on wheels, going wherever it pleases.

The Wiry-Wriggler heard him, and stopped weeping. Then he cried out, "Hi, neighbor, stop a minute! I have a most sorrowful tale to tell!"

"Goodness gracious me," cried the Here-and-There Tree, "that sounds like a voice of the Wiry-Wriggler!" and he stopped and looked about, but he could not see anybody.

"Of course you cannot see me," said the Wiry-Wriggler in a tone of great grief, "but that is because the roof of my hole has fallen in and has buried me. And here I must remain till somebody gets me out!"

"That is indeed a sorrowful tale," said the Here-and-There Tree, and he considered, and considered, and considered, wondering what he could do. At last he said, "Alas Wiry-Wriggler, I cannot think of any way of helping you out of your hole."

Then the Wiry-Wriggler wept again. Oh dear Here-and-There Tree, he cried, do try and think of some way of getting me out for you cannot think how unpleasant it is to lie here all covered up and with one's tail pinching and pinching."

Then the Here-and-There Tree considered and considered again, for he was sorry for the Wiry-Wriggler's plight.

At last he said, "There is just one way in which I can help you and it is this—I can stand just above your hole, with my wheels resting on the earth on either side, and send a few roots into the earth above where you are. Then I will rush away bearing my roots with me, and when I tear them out of the earth you will be able to get out of your hole quite easily."

Now the Wiry-Wriggler thought for a long time, and he did not like the Here-and-There Tree's plan, but he could not think of a better way of getting out of his hole. So at last he said, "Very well, neighbor, let us try your plan. But play do not allow your wheels to roll on me, for if you do I shall certainly be crushed as flat as a leaf."

"Pray, have no fear about that," said the Here-and-There Tree. "I shall be most careful."

Then the Here-and-There Tree stood above the spot where the Wiry-Wriggler lay buried, resting his wheels most carefully on the earth on either side, so that the Wiry-Wriggler should not feel his weight. Then he sent roots into the earth above the Wiry-Wriggler's head, and the Wiry-Wriggler could hear them running about, in and out here and there as fast as try once more to break away!"

"Heigh-ho! Now I am going to rush away!" cried the Here-and-There Tree and he gave a great tug so that the earth trembled above the Wiry-Wriggler's head, but nothing else happened, and the Here-and-There Tree did not move an inch.

"This is terrible terrible!" cried the

"It is quite impossible," said the Here-and-There Tree with a long sigh and he tried again, as hard as hard, but with no better success than before.

THE TALE OF THE TWO CURIOUS GOLLIES AND HOW THEY PAID FOR THEIR CURIOUSITY

AFTER all the little gollies had eaten as much as ever they could, and filled their pockets with what was left, Mrs. Franny, the lady golly, said, "Now, children, you may start your jolly riddle, and Wibbly-wobbly, Maddy-muddle, and Tip-up-tup all over the house, but you must not go down the long, dark passage with the bright red cupboard at the end."

Of course, all the wee gollies wondered why, ever so hard; in fact, they couldn't think of anything else. So they stood round Mrs. Franny, looking at her with big, round eyes, longing and longing to know.

Seeing how curious they were, she thought it would be better to tell them. "Well, darlings," she said, "I'll just tell you the secret. In that bright red cupboard there's a Noah's Ark, and as all the animals are having a sleep they mustn't be disturbed. If anyone wakes them they'll be very angry, so, dear little darlings, you will keep away from that long, lonesome passage now, won't you?"

All the little gollies promised they would, and then they scampered off to play. Scoony-wunny, Dib-dib-deb, and whole heaps of other jolly games.

But Jonty Biff and his chum Franny Chukle didn't believe a bit about the Noah's Ark being inside the bright red cupboard, so they hid away in a corner, and whispered and whispered to each other about it.

"I'm not such a silly as to take that in," declared Jonty.

"And I'm not either," said Franny; "but I do wonder what is really and truly inside."

"I'd give anything to know," sighed Jonty, as he pressed his forehead with both hands, trying to think it out. Then he sat up again.

"I have it!" he said. "Let's have just one little peep; that wouldn't matter."

"I wonder," said Franny.

"Come along," urged Jonty, "we'll have only a teeny bit of a look—that won't wake up Noah and the animals, but, of course, they are not there at "All right," whispered Franny, and they both jumped up and went very quietly along, till they reached the long, dark passage.

Then they came to a standstill, for it did look dark, and so long, and they didn't feel quite comfortable, for they had promised not to go.

They held each other's hands tightly, and peered down. But all was still.

Franny wanted to go back, but Jonty pulled her along. So they slipped down the long, dark passage on tiptoe.

When they reached the bright red cupboard, they looked and looked at it, and tried to find a little hole where they could see inside, but there wasn't one.

Then Franny turned the key, and Jonty peered forward, and opened the door ever so little.

Both of them flattened their fat little faces against the opening, but they couldn't see anything!

"It must be empty," they said, and pushed it open a little more, and a little more; but still, not a thing could they see. And they went on, opening it a weeny bit more, and then teeny weeny bit more, until, with a loud whirr-r-r, it flew wide open!

Down they flopped on the floor in surprise, when—bang!—it swung to again, pushing Jonty and Franny right inside at the same time.

Oh, it was a Noah's Ark after all! And the snoring, and growling, and grunting that greeted them!

The two little gollies shivered and shook, and shook and shivered with fright, and clung to each other, and screamed and screamed at the top of their voices.

The lions and tigers and bears were gathering round them, making a dreadful noise, and coming nearer and nearer!

Suddenly, a fierce tiger sprang towards them. At this Jonty and Franny flung themselves on the floor at the elephant's feet and begged him to save them.

Being very kindhearted, he took pity on them, and quickly picked them up with his trunk and swung them across his back.

Here they were safe for a time, but it was hard work holding on, especially as there was nothing to hold on to and the elephant was dashing about, hitting the animals right and left with his trunk.

Then he gave a sudden lurch, trying to reach a fat pigling who was making rude faces at him, and off rolled Franny into the midst of the wild, raging animals!

They all made for her at once, and the lion bit off both her arms! She shrieked so loudly that it awakened Mrs. Noah, who had been peacefully sleeping under the shade of a wooden Ark tree.

They came running up to see what the uproar was about, and all the animals became quiet at once; but there lay Franny without her two beautiful arms.

"Oh, you poor, poor child!" exclaimed Mrs. Noah, as she propped up Franny against a chair, and taking a needle and thread out of her pocket sewed on the arms again.

After this Franny cheered up, and dried her eyes on her little white pinafore.

"Ha, Curiosity! Come down this minute!" called Mrs. Noah, shaking his fist at Jonty, who was still clinging to the elephant and quivering with fright.

All at once Jonty saw the cupboard door open. Quick as lightning he slid to the ground, and seizing a tiny's hand, shouted, "Now, let's run for it!"

And they did—making a wild dash, right through rows and rows of angry animals, on and on, running faster and faster, and faster still, until, as the cupboard door was rapidly swinging to again, closing, closing, they took a flying leap into the long, dark passage, just before the door banged tight-shut with a loud, clanging clang!

THE TWO LITTLE GOLLIES CLUNG TO EACH OTHER AND SCREAMED.

The Lion Tamer's Little Boy

By R. F. BUNNOR

—The Lion Tamer's Little Boy—
He knows no fear at all,
Chasing the King of Beasts with joy,
As kittens chase a ball.

He knows the tricks of all the beasts,
He scares the tiger leop.
Or makes the elephant afraid
(And that is rather new!)

And often when the show is done,
When animals should rest,
The Lion Tamer's Little Boy
Will act as if he were not.

He takes them out with silly stunts
Until it seems a sin,
But while the timid beasts he leads In, Daddy happens in—

And says: "Now I'll give you a chance
To do the self-same thing
That you have asked of them. Now dance

And leap, and twist and swing!
"Five minutes, now, I'll cage you fast,
Your teasing tricks must cease
These beasts of mine shall have at last
A little rest and peace."

And when he's locked in by papa,
The animals grow gay,
And could they speak would say, "Hail Hi!"

CONSERVATION FIVE YEARS AFTER

TODAY the great generators of power are using the gas engine unknown five years ago, and in one ton of coal is doing the work that two and a half tons formerly did. Today the gases from the great blast furnaces in the iron industry, gases which formerly accomplished nothing more than the pollution of the air, are being burned and used to do the work of hundreds of thousands of horsepower. Today the refuse coal that has cluttered up the landscape of Pennsylvania in mounds that have mounted even higher, is being burned at the mine's mouth and the power that it generates is being sent recurring over electric wires to towns a hundred miles away. Today the ammonia, which formerly escaped from the coke ovens of the nation is being captured and promised to furnish the fertilizer that will make the worn-out lands of the nation fertile. Today the right burning of coal is removing the pall of smoke that formerly hung over the cities of the nation and damaged each man to an amount that exceeded his property tax. Today the theories of yesterday are being coined into golden dollars and a nation is, making conservation a reality.

All this is the measure of but a narrow span of the broad plan of conservation, for these things are realized in taking thought as to the right method of doing one thing, burning coal.

For, when a few years back, man began to take thought of getting all possible out of the resource in hand, coal, being the basis of much of the industry of the nation, was early given consideration. It was found that of the power locked up in a given ton of coal, but 5 per cent actually did work, when burned in the ordinary steam engine. Most of the power escaped through the smokestack. There was the theoretical 95 per cent of power yet to be harnessed. Great advance has been made toward capturing additional percentage of this energy.

Tripling the Coal Supply.

At the St. Louis exposition in 1904 the highest type of power producer was a monster 8,000-horsepower steam engine. It was the mechanical triumph of the time. Yet throughout the country today the junk piles are laden down with these engines. In their stead are the gas-producing machines. These engines burn the coal in such a way as to convert it into gas. Then the gas is burned and produces the power. Each ton of coal so used gives up as much energy as did two and a half tons under the great engine of a few years back. The coal of the nation would do the same amount of work and last two and a half times as long if burned in this way. So is the first great step made toward the conservation of the coal supply of the nation.

But the matter does not end here. The gas engine need not burn coal at all. It may burn gas from any source. That gas may be captured as a by-product of some industry in which it has formerly been escaping. A most striking example of this sort of conservation is to be found in the great iron works at Gary, Ind. There are the great blast furnaces where iron ore is turned into pig iron. The smoking, roaring, cauldrons of industry that flare so fitfully across the evening sky and pour their noxious fumes in seas over city and hamlet have at last been conquered. The waste gases, that a few years ago polluted the atmosphere and stifled the city dwellers, are now being captured and compelled to do their share of work. These gases are today used as fuel to operate gas engines with a total of more than a quarter of a million horsepower, the gas engines furnishing the power at steel and cement plants. This one triumph in conservation represents the displacing or saving of approximately 1,000,000 tons of coal each year, for it takes that much coal to run engines of that aggregate capacity.

Taming the Blast Furnaces.

But this is not the only saving at the blast furnaces. The molten slag that poured from the furnaces and was carted away to dump piles, or used as ballast for railroads, is now being turned into cement plants now in operation or under construction will use 1,300,000 tons of slag each year, with limestone, to produce 12,000,000 barrels of Portland cement. And each plant will derive its power from gas engines whose fuel will come from the waste gases of the blast furnace. It will take 6,000 horsepower to operate these plants. Thus, one waste product that formerly poisoned the air we breathe is now converting another waste product into a valuable and useful commodity.

But the conservation at the blast furnaces does not stop here. The ore dust from these furnaces, which aggregates more than 1,200,000 tons each year, and which was thrown away or used for filling, is now being made into a valuable iron. The dust, containing 40 per cent metallic iron, is spread through kilns, where the coke is burned off, leaving nuggets of iron, which are once more sent through the blast furnaces and comes out a valuable product. The saving through all these processes amounts to millions of dollars a year.

The work of the United Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., is but typical of the direction that conservation is taking among the big industries of the country over. They are finding out the long emphasized fact that conservation is the highest power that is conceivable. They are taking serious note of the often repeated statement that there is no use spending money for fuel when fuel in plenty is being given off by the very blast furnaces that form the center of their plants. Those gases are taking the place of many carloads of coal every day at this plant. They are doing the same thing at scores of other plants, and the time is short until they will be so utilized in all the plants of the country. Competitive economy will allow no other course.

Burning Waste Coal.

Half the state of Pennsylvania, to say nothing of other coal fields, is laboring under a burden of waste coal. This coal is the refuse from the many mines, the coal that does not grade high enough to pay to ship it to market. There are mountains of it near all the old mines. There are other mountains of it just under the surface that has never been mined because of its low grade. But the conservationists have found a way to use all this coal on the spot, convert it into power and carry that power away on electric wires to nearby cities. This is now being done on a monster scale with promises of still further growth. A gigantic central power plant has already been built in Pennsylvania for the express purpose of burning the waste coal, converting it into electricity and utilizing it in the industries of the region or carrying it even to Philadelphia and New York. The problem of determining whether it is cheaper to haul coal, burn it and produce power or to burn the coal at the time and transmit the power in the form of electricity is here to be worked out. There seems little doubt as to the answer when low-grade coals are considered.

DR. J. A. MOLMES,

The power plant, which cost $3,000,000, according to present plans, and which will ultimately cost $10,000,000, is located at the mines of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company in Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, and uses as fuel the mountains of waste anthracite coal (culm) that disfigure the entire landscape of the anthracite region. It is estimated there are 10,000,000 tons of this waste product directly at the mines of this company, none of it valuable enough to pay the cost of transportation.

Waste Becomes Electricity.

The plan is to turn the power into electricity and, transmit it over wires to the various cities. For the present the company will endeavor to supply power to a limited area in Pennsylvania having a population of 2,500,000 persons. If this is a success, and it gives every promise, no one can prophesy to what extent the plan may be carried. The mountain of waste fuel, of course, cannot last all time, but when it is gone the company will have the vast lignite beds which exist in some of the northwestern states. With such great power plants located in different parts of the country furnishing power for hundreds of miles around some idea may be gained of the enormous saving of fuel over the present wasteful methods of consumption. The fact that most of these power plants will use coal of such low grade that it cannot stand the cost of transportation indicates the great practical conservation of the movement. With the operators and owners of anthracite mines in the vicinity of Scranton predicting the end of mining in their district through exhaustion of the supply in 20 years and operators in the Connellsville district declaring that at the present increasing rate of consumption the finest coke-making coal in the United States will be exhausted in 27 years, the full import of such a plan becomes apparent. It may not be long before the great transcontinental railroads are obtaining their power from these central stations and sending their trains across the country, without smoke or dirt to fill the eyes and nostrils of the passengers. American men of science are slowly but surely solving the problems of the ages before it becomes too late.

Conserving the Coke Oven.

The Connellsville district, nearly the center of the coke industry of the nation. Here for fifty years has the coal of the region been placed in the old-fashioned beehive ovens and roasted. For a ton of coal two-thirds of a ton of coke was returned. The rest of the power that had been in the coal passed off in vapor. Much of this vapor was in the form of the identical gas manufactured at points which supply illumination to cities. Gas plants make their product in much the same way.

The Connellsville district, as well as many other districts, has, in the last few years, begun to conserve the by-products of its coke. The gas is captured and made to do the work of which gas is fitted. Coal tar without end is obtained. But finally, and most important, is the capture of monster quantities of ammonia, for ammonia is the chief constituent in many of the most valuable fertilizers, and the nation is crying loudly for fertilizer. The Connellsville district alone is capable of furnishing the ammonia to make $50,000,000 worth of fertilizer a year, and fertilizer is a source of wealth to the nation that far exceeds the money expended for it. This nation is particularly poor in fertilizers, and this artificial method of securing it opens up a new vista or rejuvenated farms and profitable agriculture.

Abating the Smoke Nuisance.

The students of fuel problems early found that the smoke nuisance incidental to it was largely due to incomplete combustion. The black particles that go off in smoke are perfectly good carbon, and capable of yielding up their share of energy. But they are not burned in the furnaces from which they come, and, as a consequence, become a nuisance to the community and do it material damage. In fact, a study of the damage done all things brought to the point on buildings brought the conclusion that the city dwellers of the nation pay annually a greater tribute to the smoke nuisance than they do to the government in taxes.

The conservationists' first idea was to bring about a more complete combustion of coal. This has done much toward lessening the amount of smoke that comes from a given chimney. The equipment of the given furnace and the air feed was of primary importance. The people are being shown just the right thing in furnace equipment. The bureau of mines can tell the housewife more about the burning of coal than she ever dreamed before, and will do it for the asking.

The smoke nuisance is also greatly reduced by the gas-producing engine. The great saving in fuel thus secured has led to the installation of several hundred producer gas power plants throughout the United States within the last decade. In the smaller installations, anthracite coal is largely used, but bituminous coals, lignites and peats serve as the fuels in the larger plants. These producer plants are practically smokeless during their operating period. When fires are first kindled more or less smoke is discharged into the atmosphere, but as soon as this preliminary period is over no more smoke issues from the plant until such time as it becomes necessary to clean the producer and relight new fires. In certain types of installations operating under suitable conditions the fires need not be drawn for months, and sometimes for years. In these cases it is no exaggeration to state that they are absolutely smokeless. With other types of plants, or under conditions which do not lend themselves to long periods of operation without shutdowns, the kindling of new fires is more frequent, but even in these cases it is seldom necessary to produce smoke often than once a week and then for a very short period only.

Burning New Fuels.

But the principle of the great central station for producing power, such as that of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, is a still greater step toward an abatement of the smoke nuisance. If industry ever reaches that stage when it gets all its power from these central stations located at great mines and water power sites, a long stride will have been made toward reaching Spotless Town. And the tendencies of the times are so strongly in that direction, that the time of its becoming a reality seems not far distant.

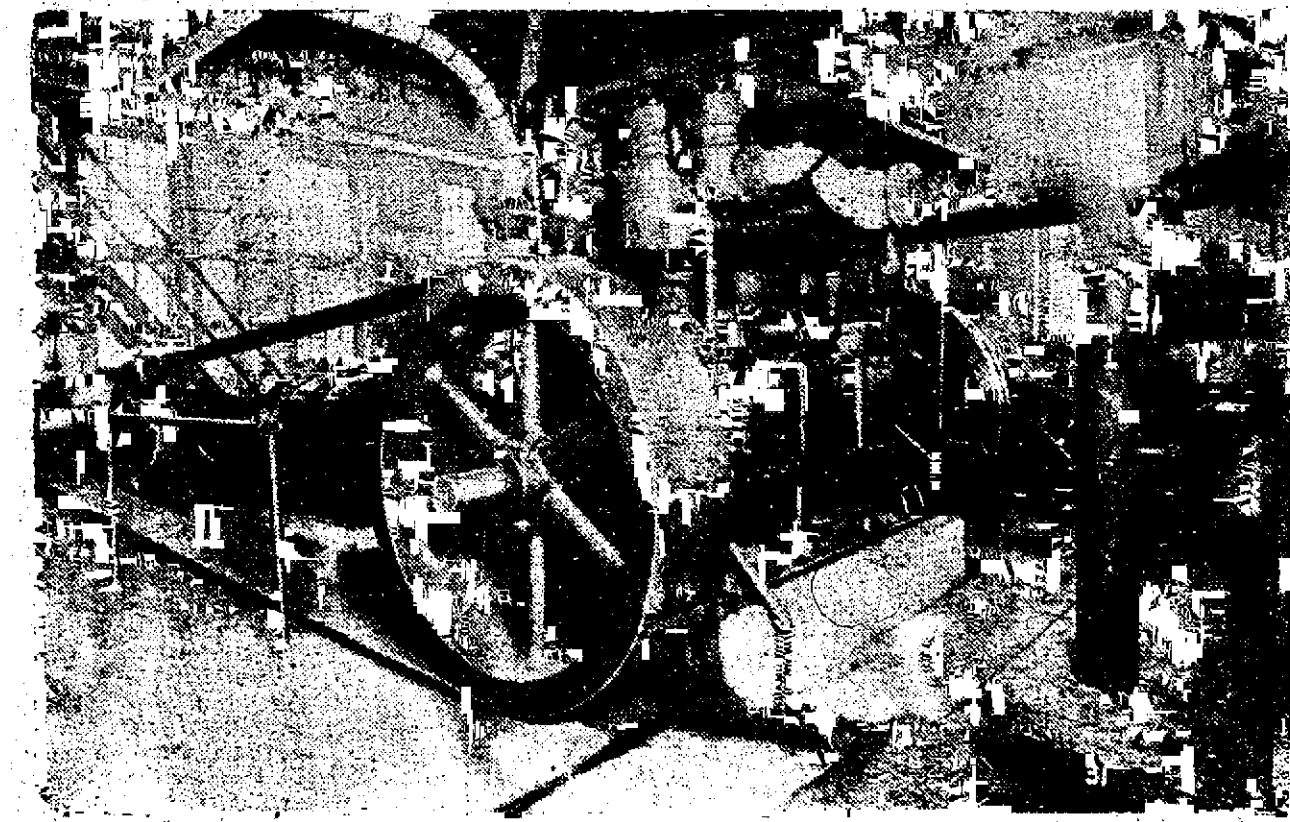

It may surprise the average man to know that such great central power plants may readily be erected on the prairies of the Dakotas. In the hills of Montana or the wastes of Texas and the fuel be found ready at hand for their use. There are 150,000 square miles of lignite land in the United States. Lignite is a sort of dried out peat that exists in almost unlimited quantities in this country. It contains about 60 per cent moisture, and upon being dried out turns to dust and blows away. It will not, as a consequence, stand transportation in the native state. But it would furnish unlimited fuel to a central power plant located in its midst. Such a plant might pull the freight of a nation back and forth across the great plains. And now, finally, the bureau of mines has succeeded in reducing lignite to a briquette, in which form it may be shipped anywhere. Also, it is announced, this process is so inexpensive that the scheme is economically practicable. It is necessary to mix no binder with the lignite. The only element necessary is pressure, and a machine has been devised that will administer the necessary great pressure to the native lignite, convert it into a form where it resembles dark brown cakes of soap, and thrust these into the commerce of the world. The horsepower locked up in 150,000 square miles of lignite has not as yet been figured, but it will doubtless be of sufficient amount to cut some figure in the power problems of the nation.

So it develops that the very maturing of the germ of conservation planted half a decade ago has had the effect, with reference to fuel, that busts of industry that is threatening exhaustion, of doubling its power producing capacity. The same amount of coal burned in the light of the new methods will produce twice the amount of power it would have five years ago. Half the amount of coal will produce the same amount of power. Incidentally the amount of coal has been many times doubled by making it possible to utilize the lower grade materials.

So have wonders been worked in this particular field of conservation. There are attendant accomplishments in the improvement of mining conditions and the added safety to those who go below ground to toil. There are steps of equal importance in almost every other phase of conservation. For the theories of yesterday have been shown to be the sound business methods of today and promise to be the household platitudes of tomorrow.

DIAMOND BAIT FOR TROUT

Now Jack London Hooked a Beardslee Beauty on a Bet.

Lake Crescent-Dispatch in New York Tribune

Tucked snugly in the heart of the Olympic mountains in northwestern Washington is Lake Crescent. The attraction at present is the author, Jack London. Just why Mr. London chose this region for an outing when the rugged mountains of the Sierra Range are near the author's California home is because of a desire of his sporting blood to respond to a new call of the wild.

In Lake Crescent abound the renowned Beardslee trout, found nowhere else in the world. To feel the tug of one on the end of a casting line and to caress its spotted sides brought London here to spend five weeks.

He came here with the avowed intention of remaining until he had captured a Beardslee trout. For four days he went out in the morning and rowed back at night, ate his meals and retired to his tent. Not a word was said. Guests saw him bring in strings of fine speckled and Dolly Varden trout, but not a Beardslee.

Among the guests is Alexander Panfili, who learned at London's great desire and planned to play a little trick on the author. One morning he approached London at breakfast and offered to bet $100 against all the money London had in his pockets that he would not catch a good Beardslee trout during his stay.

London found $3, and they left the money with the innkeeper. In the first boat, assigned to each guest, London rowed across the lake fully five miles and fished all day. His boat was fairly swamped with various species of trout and some nice landlocked salmon. But in spite of 47 changes of flies and three hours of trolling not a Beardslee trout even made a strike at the hooks and spears.

Suddenly the author was seized with an inspiration. Selecting a wondrously well-made trolling spoon London took his diamond stud and tied it to the gut leader, an inch above the cluster of hooks, and then bent to the task of trolling the placid waters of the cove. Hardly had the hook touched the water when a strike and a tug of the line assured the author that a fish was hooked. Fish and man fought a battle of 15 minutes. In the end the man won. Soon in the stern of the boat lay a beautifully spotted trout, 24 inches long and weighing about nine pounds.

About dinner time London carried the prize to the veranda, where guests had assembled, and displayed it, remarking what a fine mounted specimen it would make. Then he turned to the clerk's counter and pocketed the $100. It cost Panfili another $50 to learn how the trout was caught, as the author told of the diamond display on his trolling spoon.

"And it's no nature fake," said London, "for these are the trout and here is the diamond stud."

WHAT WOMEN MUST DO FIRST

From Unity, Chicago.

The women of the Pacific coast under the lead of the ever-youthful Mrs. Caroline M. Severance, "the mother of the clubs," have started an ambitious, but altogether commendable movement for the erection of a colossal statue of peace to be mounted at the entrance of the Panama canal, and they have gone so far as to suggest a most attractive model drawn by Mrs. Frances G. Barnett, a sculptor of San Francisco. It is a noble woman figure, in sitting posture, flanked by peace doves and torches of truth, with the biblical lion and lamb resting at her feet, the olive branch and other emblems. The figure is that of an attractive American woman, typifying the best of our civilization, and who, like the "Christ of the Andes," properly conceived and nobly installed, would send her message of love and her radiant smile of fellowship around the world. But a fortified canal bristling with cannon would be an anticlimax, an indignity to art and religion so palpable that the noble suggestion had better go by unobserved. The women of America have a harder task to perform, on their hands than the erecting of a peace statue at Panama. They must first humanize our government and pluck from their own hearts the false glamour that radiates in the glitter of war and the pomp and parade that breed jealousy, rivalry and enmity.

Ostriches are credited with a peculiar appetite for glass and ladies' hats, but a woodcock just sold in a Paris shop has run them closely. The customer who bought three birds, asked to have them opened, and to his surprise found the assistant one of them had eaten Label cartridges in its stomach. The bird was carried with much procession to the police station.

together with the cartridges, and the authorities are wondering whether they are faced by a new phenomenon that might interest naturalists or whether it is merely a packer's practical joke.—Paris Correspondent London Telegraph.

Cold water is preferable to warm for scrubbing floors, because it does not sink into the wood, and so dries quickly.

"HAMLET" IN JAPANESE

A Seven-Hour Production by a Company of Native Actors.

From the Japan Advertiser.

To realize English drama on art on the Japanese stage is a small undertaking, and "Hamlet" as given last night at the Teikoku-za was quite remarkable, as neither Dr. Teubouchi, the translator and adapter of the play, nor the actors themselves have ever seen Shakespeare according to the traditions of western drama.

From the point of view of the foreigner in the audience, to whom "Hamlet" is a well known story, it is not a little disappointing to find most of the traditions of the English stage swept away. The classical English and poetical lines that are household words are entirely missing, lost in another language. Try as he will he cannot recognize himself to the clash between the costumes and setting, which were true to the foreign stage and the Japanese tongue. As for the Japanese audience, this impression must have been even deeper.

And yet there is much in this play that accords with Japanese temperament. Hamlet's treatment of Ophelia, his revenge and his delay in carrying out his ends are all true to Japanese character and made a strong appeal to the audience. The ghost scene was also impressive, although instead of a six-footer clad entirely in armor wearing a helmet, the ghost of the Teikoku-za last night was short and wore a long veil and his face was suggestive of a No mask.

The audience exhibited that nervousness and restlessness at a first night performance when they feel that something new is being tried on them. To many persons the story of "Hamlet" was not familiar as a piece of literature, and they found it difficult to follow the meaning. And as it was an entirely different from the accustomed plays, it was scarcely to be wondered at if now and then some one went to sleep or the observer's gaze wandered often to the ornate golden dome of the theater. Even newspaper artists nodded over their sketches. On the other hand, university students and well known authors and thinkers were

To see "Hamlet" at the Teikoku-za is like attending a Wagnerian opera. It lasts so long. One of Dr. Teubouchi's ideals is that Shakespeare should be acted as nearly as possible as it was in the day of Shakespeare, and in the matter of duration he has certainly succeeded, for the five acts and 13 scenes take more than seven hours to produce. This is a contrast to the three and a half hours as most commonly takes for a Shakespearean play in the west.

THE SECRET OF FLY-CASTING

Samuel G. Camp, in Outing.

"If the next time the novice goes fishing he will take pains to note the way of the natural fly on the water, he will discover the fact that usually the natural fly floats with the current, while the wings may flutter, the fly always goes with the current, taking the natural trend of the stream, sensitive to each little side-eddy, eventually finding lodgment in some patch of floating foam, some quiet little bay under the bank, or sometimes it will succeed in taking wing again. The moral of all this is to allow the flies to float naturally with the current, with the least possible 'drag' or restraint from the line consistent with a line sufficiently taut to take immediate advantage of a rise, and to avoid as a plague any perceptible and pseudo-imitative twitching and fluttering of the flies. The fly-caster cannot imitate the fluttering wings of the natural fly as it follows through the current, but he can imitate, and very closely, the floating or submerged body of the fly in both action and appearance."

OLD CORONATION CUSTOMS

From the London Chronicle.

The practice of running the fountain and conduits with wine on coronation day was abandoned after the reign of Queen Elizabeth, but another old custom was observed up to the coronation of George IV. After the king and the company had departed from the church banquet in Westminster hall the doors were thrown open and the people rushed in and cleared the tables of everything—victuals, cloths, plates, dishes, etc., all vanished in a few minutes. And, as Sir Walter Scott tells us, the nobility were not above taking away the saltcellars and spoons.

When canning it is well to know that all preservatives are dangerous. Anything that will overcome the gases tending to spoil canned fruit is liable to prevent their digestion, and so is not advisable.

Sayre's brother, the late Al Adams, was a prominent figure in the underworld and the announcement of his betrothal to divorcees has caused a ripple of gossip in New York society.

Lady Arthur Paget, who has announced her intention to go to New York for the winter season. This will be her last visit to her native city, owing to her husband's appointment as commander of all the troops in Ireland and the necessity of the wife living in Dublin. Train Making Ascent of Pikes Peak

Scene at Timber Line

Pikes Peak is the landmark of the Rockies, and one of their chief attractions. It stands at an elevation of 14,117 feet above sea level, and over 5,000 feet above Colorado Springs. Ascent is made by the famous Cog road, an example of the most elaborate and engineering skill. At a cost of nearly a million dollars, this road, with an average grade of 44 1/2 feet to the mile, has been built to its summit. Comfortably seated in an electric car, you are pushed slowly up this nine miles of steep way, until you have reached one of the highest points on the globe. Above the earth, above the clouds, only the sky overhead, all the world beneath. Around you an incomparable view limited by the bounds of vision. On the left the great Canon, on the right the plains, on the south appear the peaks of the Pikes Peak. To the north is Long's Peak, to the west the Continental Divide. It is an inspiration, a sight that stays with you. The train leaves Manitou at 7:30 a.m. and returns at 4:30 p.m. Tickets are sold at the depot.

COLORADO'S ART POTTERY

Probably the point of interest most attractive to those of an artistic nature is the new pottery plant of the Van Briggie Pottery Company. This is where the world-famed Van Briggie Art Pottery is designed and made, and is easily reached by carriage, automobile or by street car. Van Briggie Pottery is modeled from the peculiarly adaptable clays which are found in the neighborhood of Colorado Springs, and Colorado's beautiful wild flowers form some of the chief decorations. Van Briggie Pottery is especially noted for an individuality of mat glaze which was discovered by Mr. Artus Van Briggie in 1898 and was immediately recognized by the master heads in ceramics. Tourists and visitors to the Pikes Peak region are invited to visit the Van Briggie Pottery, where they may learn how the crude, rough clay taken from the ground is moulded and colored into the uniquely artistic forms which characterize this product of the Centennial state. The display rooms at the Van Briggie Pottery are open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Have your driver stop at the Van Briggie Pottery.

RUINS OF THE ANCIENT CLIFF DWELLERS CLIFF CANON, MANITOU INDIAN PUEBLO.

The Ruins of the Ancient Cliff Dwellers are in Cliff Canon, a series of canyons of the Pikes Peak region, containing altogether about one hundred rooms, showing a heritage of life that, under an immense overhanging cliff. A "cave" containing four or five hundred years of the life of the cliff dwellers is in existence. This collection includes mummies, skulls, pitchforks, mugs, bowls, water jars, cooking utensils, stone and bone implements, pictured rocks bearing strange hieroglyphics, etc., etc. Indians live in the Indian Pueblo during the summer and are engaged in dances, pottery making, beadwork, and other native crafts. The student is afforded an opportunity to study the pre-historic and historic Indian under conditions the same as they would find them in their native state. Reached by street car, carriage or automobile.
